Draft Bill Is Approved By Senate Committee

Measure Will Go To Floor Monday; Army Plans to Call 1,500,000 in Year

Compulsory military service legislation, requiring the registration of 42,000,000 American men and the drafting of 1,500,000 the first year, was approved yesterday by the Senate Military Affairs Committee.

Major provisions of a revised edition of the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill were voted by the group and Chairman Sheppard said details would be worked out at a meeting today so the measure can be brought before the Senate on Monday.

The measure would go into effect immediately upon passage and under plans of the War Department from 300,000 to 400,000 men between the ages of 21 and 31 would be called in October for a year's training.

All males between the ages of 18 and 64, inclusive, would be subject to registration under the bill, with those 21 to 45 liable for training and service in the Army or Navy. Registered men below 21 and above 45 would not be subject to any training without further action by Congress.

Regular Pay Provided

It is contemplated under the bill that the 18-to-20 and 46-to-64 group would be subject to call for service in home-defense units, but the revised language provides that such units may not be set up unless later authorized by Congress. The original draft had provided for a home-defense force.

Men drafted would receive the Regular Army pay instead of $5 a month as specified in the original bill. This starts at $21 a month and goes up to $157 a month, but officials said men would probably not rise above corporal ($42 a month) during the training period.

War Department officials said that all of the first group of 300,000 to 400,000 men to be called in October would be taken from the 21 to 31 group, and that probably only this age bracket would be required to register at first.

Drafting of Older Men Later

Later, however, probably this winter, registration of the older men would be directed, with some men 31 to 45 drafted then, it was said. There are 11,500,000 in the 21 to 31 age group and 24,000,000 in the 21 to 45 age bracket.

Brig. Gen. William E. Shedd, assistant chief of staff for personnel, said that small numbers of men would be called each month after October, with a large group of 400,000 drafted in April and 600,000 in October, 1941.

"That program is based on present world conditions," he stated. "It would give us our full protective mobilization force of 1,200,000 men by April. But if conditions grow worse, we will call the April group in January."

Selection by Lot

Gen. Shedd said the plan would operate quite similarly to that used during the World War, with men in each age group being selected by lot on each call. Deferment would be granted to men with dependents and those employed in positions of importance to national defense. Men so deferred probably would not be called in time of peace, Gen. Shedd stated.

Under the revised bill men "whose employment in industry, agriculture, or other occupations or employment is found to be necessary to the maintenance of the national health, safety or interest" could be placed in this deferred class. This section

Machine Tool Thefts Engage Police and FBI

Instruments Vital To Defense Stolen In New York, Chicago

Copyright by New York Times

New York, July 23.—With the speeding up of the manufacture of planes and munitions in this country and the consequent heavy demands on the machine tool industry, a series of thefts of high speed and carbon steel drills from tool manufacturing companies has been reported in recent months, it was learned at police headquarters today.

City detectives and agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation have been looking into the burglaries in an effort to establish whether they were committed for purposes of sabotage, or possibly for resale through undercover channels. The police are convinced that a single gang is responsible for all the thefts here.

At least six of the thefts have been committed here since last October, all of them in the area on the lower West Side where many machine tool firms have their offices and storage and shipping facilities. Agents for some of the victimized firms said that at least two similar burglaries had been reported in Chicago and one in Cleveland.

$7,500 Worth Stolen

Although the authorities have endeavored to carry on their investigation of the thefts quietly, news of them leaked out today when a reward of $2,500 was offered in a newspaper advertisement for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the burglars who stole a quantity of drills from a tap and die corporation over the week-end.

About $7,500 worth of high speed drills was taken from another firm last October, according to its assistant manager, J. K. Smith, who said that two similar burglaries had been committeed recently in Chicago, and another in Cleveland.

Three or four other machine tool firms here have also been the victims of the burglars in recent months, it was learned.

N. Y. Arrests Nazi With Span Photos

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 23 (U.P.). A man described as a native German was arrested today while allegedly photographing bridges and power plants vital to United States and Canadian defenses.

Police Superintendent Thomas J. Holohan withheld the suspect's identity pending F. B. I. investigation. The arrest was made in Whirlpool Park directly across from the Queenstown plant of the Canadian Electro-power Corporation. Field glasses equipped for computing distances were in the suspect's possession, said Holohan.

Storm Breaks Heat, Causes Wide Damage

(For a Way to Keep Cool, See Page 8.)

The season's most violent storms broke the heat wave in its sixth day in the Washington area last night, but not without causing heavy flood and wind damage.

A severe wind struck with violence in Montgomery County (Md.) twisting hundreds of trees off at their bases, ripping down power lines and unroofing buildings.

The storm spread havoc also in Fairfax and Arlington counties in Virginia, where streets were flooded, several buildings struck by lightning and power service disrupted.

60 Fire Alarms Turned In

At Del Ray, Va., Margaret Moore, 17, was stunned by lightning. She was treated at Alexandria Hospital.

In Washington nearly 60 fire alarms were turned in, either by flooded circuits or by residents, alarmed when their basements began to fill with water. The storm hit at 5:34 p. m. while the late afternoon traffic was at its height.

Hundreds of persons were stranded for from 15 to 45 minutes when water grounded streetcar conduits or stalled autos in flooded streets.

Industrial plants along K street in Georgetown suffered an estimated $4,000 damage when water backed up in a sewer at Potomac avenue, blew a manhole cover 15 feet in the air and ran in a 20-foot stream down the street.

The "flood" ruined chemicals at the Briggs Clarifier Co., filtering equipment manufacturers at 3262 K street northwest, while barrels were damaged and cement spoiled at the Warring Barrel plant, 3256 K street, and the Potomac Building Supply Co., 3223 K street.

Two telephone operators at the District Building estimated they received "at least 2,000 calls" for the Sewer Department to pump out flooded cellars. Water in the basement of the Capitol and Senate and House office buildings cut off elevator service and threw the structures in darkness for nearly three hours.

Havoc on Rockville Pike

Street lights in downtown Washington were off for a short time, while many other sections of the city were likewise hit. The Potomac Electric Power Co. turned out all its trouble crews to repair damaged lines.

The Maryland wind storm struck along the Rockville pike, cutting a 6-mile swath from Halpine, near the Congressional Airport, to the outskirts of Bethesda, a distance of six miles.

Two deaths in Washington were attributed to the 90-degree heat that preceded the storm. They were:

W. B. Crews, 40, of 740 Third street northwest, who collapsed while at work for a contracting

U. S. Proposes Joint Mandate Over Colonies

All 21 Americas Must Ratify Havana Plan

By the Associated Press

Havana, July 23.—The United States today proposed that all American republics join in a mandate over European possessions in the Western Hemisphere to keep their sovereignty inviolable until Europe's war is over or eventually to give them independence.

Bolivia was reported seeking a transcontinental South American railroad which would act in emergencies as an auxiliary to the Panama Canal in moving troops and guns from coast to coast.

The joint trusteeship over European colonies in the New World was envisioned in a draft of a convention offered less than a day after the conference of American foreign ministers opened. Broadly, it proposed:

1. That the Americas act as trustees of the European possessions in this hemisphere.

2. That mandates over these possessions be temporary and that they be returned to their original sovereigns as soon as possible or granted their independence.

3. That the parent mandate commission to be set up make recommendations for any military and naval protection deemed necessary to protect the territories from an outside menace.

In a resolution designed to act as a stop-gap until the trusteeship is in operation, the United States foresaw the possibility that some one nation might have to act independently to offset a change in the sovereignty over the European colonies.

However, the resolution declared such action would be provisional only and the affected colony would be given to the mandate commission as soon as possible.

The proposed railroad line would run from the Brazilian coast on the Atlantic to the Pacific coast of Chile, and would be effected by filling gaps between existing lines, it was said. The resolution points out that only about 3,000 miles need

'Greatly Increased' Activity Reported In Low Countries; English Confident

Watchful Waiting

By the Associated Press

London, July 23.—Britain, barricaded behind a growing wall of preparedness, waited watchfully but confidently tonight for Adolf Hitler to start his blitzkrieg.

Reports in neutral sources of "greatly increased activities" in Dutch and Belgian dockyards and railways indicated that her great test may not be long coming.

These reports, unconfirmed in British quarters, said the Germans apparently were concentrating military supplies in the western Lowlands—a logical jumping-off place in a mass attack.

Nazis Bomb Ports

Meanwhile, warplanes roared both ways across the English Channel.

Nazi planes, apparently picking British harbors as their principal targets, bombed ports from Scotland to the Thames Estuary.

[Relays of British bombers, according to United Press, were reported blasting at German bases along the coast from the Arctic Circle to Spain.]

Prime Minister Churchill failed to deliver his anticipated address in the House of Commons in answer to Hitler's so-called "appeal to reason."

Large Stocks on Hand

It was assumed generally that Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax's scathing denunciation of Hitler's peace offer on Monday would suffice.

Taking stock of her position against efforts of German warplanes and commerce raiders to create a starvation blockade, Britain found herself strong in ships, food, men and health.

Naval experts declared the island kingdom had more destroyers now than when the war started, despite the loss of 26.

Even if the Germans intensify their submarine campaign, Food Minister Lord Woolton declared, Britain will not starve because "we have stocks to stand a long seige."

Lord Woolton estimated that the harvest in continental Europe would not be more than 70 per cent of normal this year and declared that "this business of starving people out may work the other way around—we've still got a navy."

War Minister Anthony Eden declared Britain had 1,300,000 home guard troops ready and reported that reorganization and reequipment of French, Belgian, Czecho-Slovak, Norwegian and Polish soldiers now in Britain were making "good progress."

Challenged by G. O. P., House Group Called To Study D. C. Suffrage

Meeting Tuesday; Vote to Be Taken If Majority Seems To Favor Measure

By James D. Secrest

A special meeting of the House Judiciary Committee was called by Chairman Sumners for next Tuesday as the Democratic leadership of the House yesterday prepared to answer the challenge of Republicans who taunted them for inaction on the District suffrage plank in the Democratic platform.

Representative Sumners said that his resolution proposing a Constitutional amendment to give the District national representation and authorizing Congress to delegate local self-government to the National Capital will be considered at the meeting.

A vote on the resolution will be taken, Sumners stated, unless it appears that a majority of the committee is opposed to it. In such an event, the chairman said, he will not bring the issue to a vote.

Amendment Held Unnecessary

Sumners reiterated his opinion that a constitutional amendment would not be necessary to give the District local suffrage. Congress, he said, has the authority to delegate this privilege to Washington's voteless residents.

Other developments on the suddenly revived District suffrage question were:

Chairman Ashurst, of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said that his committee will give the matter "courteous and careful consideration" and will be glad to hear Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, at any time he wishes to speak in behalf of his resolution.

Speaker Bankhead stated that there is some "likelihood" that suffrage legislation may be brought to the House floor before adjournment of Congress, but expressed the opinion that local self-government would have a better chance than national representation.

Capper to Lead Fight

Senator Capper invited Washington civic leaders to prepare a unified program for presentation to Congress and promised to take the lead again in a fight for early Senate action.

A majority of the House Judiciary Committee members in the city indicated a willingness to report or consider a suffrage resolution before adjournment.

The Sumners resolution has been pending before the House Judiciary Committee since April, 1938, and it has never been brought to a vote.

It was drafted and introduced by Chairman Sumners as a compromise solution to the problem after lengthy hearings were held on resolutions sponsored by Representatives Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, and Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia.

Even though it were passed by Congress and signed by the President, the District would have to wait several years until two-thirds of the State Legislatures acted upon the Constitutional amendment.

The resolution has a provision, moreover, that Congress may nullify the action of the States by amending or repealing any legislation that may be enacted under the terms of the original act.

Senator Capper expressed the belief that "there is more sentiment than ever before" in Congress and throughout the country in favor of giving Washingtonians the vote.

"This question is far-reaching in its effect on the future of the Na-

Roosevelt Derides Hanes, Whom He Praised Last Year

Other Bolters, Burke, Reed and Douglas Also Under Fire

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hyde Park, N. Y., July 23.—President Roosevelt, embarking on his unprecedented campaign for a third term, today opened fire on two former close associates in the Government who have announced their support for the Republican Presidential nominee, Wendell Willkie.

The President told his press conference the Administration had found that the minds of Lewis W. Douglas, his first budget director, and John W. Hanes, former Undersecretary of the Treasury, ran more to dollars than to humanity. Both announced last Friday that they could not support the third-term undertaking and offered their aid to Willkie.

Illustrating the sharp change undergone by the President's feeling toward Hanes, it was recalled that only last December 22, when the Treasury Undersecretary resigned to return to his private affairs, having "cleaned up all the assignments given me," Mr. Roosevelt sent him a letter of high praise for his services.

Addressing Hanes as "Dear Johnnie," Mr. Roosevelt expressed "deep and sincere gratitude for the conscientious, loyal and able service you have rendered to the Government, both in the Securities and Exchange Commission and in the record of good work done at personal sacrifice for which you should be honored and in which you are entitled to take the greatest pride."

Today, in shirt sleeves and smilingly at ease as he faced reporters

Willkie Predicts More Will Bolt

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 23.—President Roosevelt will have occasion to discuss a lot of Democrats as he discussed Lewis W. Douglas, John W. Hanes and others who have bolted to the Republican Presidential candidate, Wendell Willkie, the G. O. P. nominee said here today. Indicating he expects many others from the President's party to join his own ranks, Willkie told reporters:

"The President is going to make remarks about a lot of Democrats before this campaign is over. This shows that the President is thinking of something besides the affairs of state."

New Dealers Set to Discard Party Lines

Minorities' Support Sought, With South to Stay Unappeased

By Robert C. Albright

Post Staff Writer

Emergence of a reorganized Democratic Party with Roosevelt and New Deal standards flying high above the old party label last night appeared the first definite consequence of Chicago.

The new campaign setup now being discussed is said to provide tentatively for proffered cooperation with Progressives, Farmer-Laborites, American Laborites and such groups, but for no major gesture of appeasement to the right-wing and disgruntled South.

Reformation of the Democratic organization begun at Chicago is now aimed at keeping New Deal strategists in the campaign saddle of a thoroughly transformed Roosevelt party, it was reported.

New Committees Planned

Plans are said to call for an offer of direct or indirect representation in the new setup to Roosevelt elements in other parties, probably through independent committees created as adjuncts to the new Democratic National Committee.

Although no definite moves will be announced until President Roosevelt picks the man who will succeed Jim Farley as chairman, liberal elements in other parties already are being courted.

Group to Woo Farm Vote

In Chicago, the same All-Party Roosevelt Agriculture Committee, which Democrats built around William F. Settle in 1936 to woo the farm vote, will be re-formed.

Louisiana Charges Involve 'Deadheads' On Election Pay Roll

By the Associated Press

New Orleans, July 23.—Former Gov. Earl K. Long was indicted late today by the parish (county) grand jury on embezzlement charges involving pay-roll "deadheads"—persons drawing pay without working—during the bitter February gubernatorial campaign.

Indicted with him were three former members of the dock board and the former assistant to the board's general manager.

Named in the indictment with the former Governor were:

I. B Rennyson, real estate broker and board member from 1929 until this year.

I. J. Vaccaro, vice president of the Standard Fruit & Steamship Co.

Herbert J. Schwartz, president of the Maison Blanche Co., New Orleans department store.

Felon Refuses to Leave Prison; Climbs Tower, Defies Guards

Threatens to Slug Anyone Nearing Him; Still Up at Midnight

By the United Press

Atlanta, Ga. (Wednesday), July 24.—A 20-year-old convict, anxious to escape a Georgia chain gang, stayed perched on top of a water tower 150 feet high at the Federal Penitentiary today, laughing off guards trying to persuade him to come down.

At 12:30 a. m. Andrew Jackson Wynne had successfully kept on the big tank for 11 hours.

While crowds gathered in the streets outside the prison walls to watch, Wynne, armed with a machinist's hammer, threatened to slug anyone who climbed up to him.

Wynne had been due for release today but chose midafternoon yesterday for his "sit down strike" because he feared rearrest by Georgia authorities.

A Dyer Act offender at the penitentiary, he is wanted to face completion of a sentence for armed robbery, from which he escaped a Georgia chain gang in 1937.

Wynne had taken a drinking cup to the top of the tower with him and from time to time dipped it into the water and drank.

Petain Regime to Purge Daladier and Other Leaders

By the Associated Press

Vichy, France, July 23.—The regime of Premier Petain tonight ordered the arrest and trial of former high government leaders, including former Premier Edouard Daladier, because of their roles in "declaring and continuing the war" against Germany.

Petain's Council of Ministers also ordered the withdrawal of citizenship and confiscation of the property and fortunes of all Frenchmen, including Daladier, who fled France after May 10, when Germany's invasion of the Low Countries began.

The purge of "those responsible for the war," besides Daladier, also will place on trial Georges Mandel, former minister of interior; Cesar Campinchi, former minister of navy, and Yvon Delbos, who occupied the cabinet posts of foreign minister and minister of national education at various times preceding the war.

Other former cabinet ministers of the pre-war period may be placed on trial later, it was said.

Daladier, Mandel, Delbos and Campinchi fled from Bordeaux June 20 aboard the French steamer Massila en route to French Morocco just before the stop-gap Petain government concluded armistice agreements with Germany and Italy.

Welles Denounces Russia

U. S. Refuses Recognition To Three Soviet Baltic States

The United States yesterday denounced Russia's "deliberate annihilation" of the freedom of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania and refused to recognize their absorption into the Soviet Union.

Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State in the absence of Secretary Hull, issued a formal statement giving notice of this country's stand despite the action of Communist parliaments in the three countries in voting to seek union with Russia, after Russian troops had moved into the three republics.

Commenting, also, on the diplomatic break between Spain and Chile, Welles declared that any attempted interference by any foreign government in the "domestic concerns of any American republic will be unanimously resented by all the American peoples."

His statement on the Baltic developments, in which he did not mention Russia by name, said:

"The policy of this Government is universally known. The people of the United States are opposed to predatory activities no matter whether they are carried on by the use of force or by the threat of force. They are likewise opposed to any form of intervention on the part of one state, however powerful, in the domestic concerns of any other sovereign state, however weak."

A LA F. D. R.? When the question of who will be Secretary of State in Willkie's cabinet, if he is elected, comes up, the G. O. P. nominee has intimated rather broadly that he will prefer to be "his own Secretary of State."

* * * *

HENRY'S BUILD-UP: Almost as soon as Harry Hopkins reached Chicago for the convention he began quietly to build up Henry Wallace as the nominee for Vice President. It was a bit of a problem, because Senator Herring was slated as Iowa's "favorite son" for the first ballot.

* * * *

AT 8 A. M.: But Henry Wallace himself didn't know that he had been designated as the White House choice until 8 a. m. on the morning he was nominated, and the chances are that Hopkins wasn't certain much before that, either.

* * * *

SLIP OF THE TONGUE: When President Roosevelt said "president" in referring to the designation of Wallace for Vice President in his radio speech to the convention, many thought it was merely a slip of the tongue.

But many others still feel that the slip revealed what was in F. D. R.'s mind—that the Presidency itself is Henry's destiny, at least in Roosevelt's thinking.

"—will Jim join the huddle?"

JIM'S DILEMMA: Within a few hours after Wallace's nomination he had a talk with Jim Farley. They are good friends, and Wallace declined to reveal what they said to each other.

* * * *

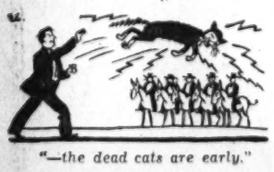
"I understand Mr. Farley's position completely," said Wallace. "He was perfectly frank with me. But I can't discuss his personal affairs. It would be an intrusion."

* * * *

WILL JIM WEAKEN? Most of those who have talked with Farley feel that he is adamant in his determination to retire from the Democratic Party guidance, and that his decision to devote himself to the Yankee baseball team this late summer and fall is irrevocable.

* * * *

But there are others who assert confidently that, when his thousands of Democratic associates across the country begin to plead with him, he may relent and join the Democrats' huddle in some capacity for this fall's big scrimmage, in some role more intimate than that of grandstand quarterback.



"—the dead cats are early."

ALMOST WIRED: Out in Des Moines they're telling a story illustrative of the Scotch calm that pervades the Wallace family.

Some girls were playing tennis with Henry's daughter, Jean, the morning after he was nominated. She wasn't at the convention, nor were her two brothers.

* * * *

"Aren't you excited?" they asked. "Didn't you phone your dad and congratulate him?"

"No," she said. "What is there to be excited about?"

Then she thought for a moment.

"We didn't phone," she added, "but we almost sent him a telegram."

* * * *

HOPKINS' NAPS: During the height of the Chicago shindig, when delegates clogged the lobbies and corridors wondering and worrying, Harry Hopkins took a nap regularly in the afternoon between sessions. Apparently he was following doctor's orders. And when he napped, even big shots couldn't see him.

* * * *

CAMPAIGN CAVIAR: Already dead cats of heroic size are beginning to be tossed through the air . . . And there was supposed to be a hot weather lull in the campaign! . . . On the train returning from Chicago some of the Democratic National Committee staff were edified when a Willkie man offered to bet $500 even that Willkie will be elected . . . One of the biggest brags I heard in Chicago: "Hitler hasn't done anything yet that Al Capone didn't do here years ago on a smaller scale."

The Gallup Poll

By Dr. George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Amendment Against Third Term Opposed By Majority in National Voters' Survey

Princeton, N. J., July 23.—A constitutional amendment to prevent third terms, indorsed by the Republican convention but booed down in the Democratic convention, finds a mixed reception among the voters of the nation. In a poll just completed by the Institute, the Republican rank and file are strongly in favor of an anti-third-term amendment, while the Democrats are even more strongly against it. The Democratic opposition is sufficiently great to tip the scales, so that the total vote for the nation is against the amendment by approximately six to four.

DR. GALLUP

The study is the latest of three surveys made on the issue in recent years. The trend of sentiment favorable to the anti-third-term amendment has been progressively downward as the 1940 campaign approached.

"Would you favor an amendment to the Constitution to prevent any President of the United States from serving a third term?"

	Favor Amendment	Oppose Amendment
Sept., 1938	48%	52%
Nov., 1939	42	58
Today	41	59

Among Republicans, the vote is 69 per cent in favor of the amendment, 31 per cent opposed, while among Democrats it is 14 per cent for the amendment, 86 per cent opposed. It is clear that the G. O. P. platform plank calling for the amendment faithfully reflects the sentiment of the Republican rank and file, while the rejection of the amendment at the Democratic convention likewise reflects the sentiments of that party's voters.

Roosevelt Is Clear Choice

Some commentators were critical of the Democratic convention last week on the ground that the Roosevelt nomination was forced rather than spontaneous. They point to the nomination of Willkie by the Republicans as a clear expression of the wishes of G. O. P. voters, with the implication that the Roosevelt stampede at Chicago was staged or synthetic.

Actually, the facts show that both Roosevelt and Willkie were the outstanding choices of the rank and file in their respective parties. In the Democratic case, particularly, there was never any other candidate who measured up to Roosevelt in popular following in the Institute's surveys.

Last November he was the choice of 83 per cent of Democrats polled, last February the choice of 78 per cent, and in the latest pre-convention survey, begun on June 25 and completed shortly after July 1, Democrats expressing a choice on candidates voted as follows when asked whom they favored for the Presidency:

Pre-Convention Popularity of Democratic Candidates
Roosevelt	92%
Hull	4
Garner	1
Farley	1
Wheeler	1
McNutt	1

The situation in the Republican party, according to an Institute survey completed the day of Willkie's nomination, was as follows:

Pre-Convention Popularity of Republican Candidates
Willkie	44%
Dewey	29
Taft	13
All others	14

The morning after Roosevelt's nomination, the American Institute launched a nation-wide survey on the popular strength of the two rival candidates for President. The first report, showing how the 48 States line-up at the start of the campaign, will be published sometime during the first week in August. It will appear exclusively in Washington in The Post.

Henry Wallace Seen Popular With Farmers

Will Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, President Roosevelt's running mate, be able to hold the farm vote in line for the Democrats?

With the Roosevelt-Willkie campaign just beginning, no conclusive answer is possible yet. However, polls conducted among farmers by the Institute have always found Secretary Wallace personally popular in the farm areas.

Five months ago the Institute asked a cross-section of farmers: "Do you think Henry Wallace has done a good job or a poor job as Secretary of Agriculture?"

The vote of those farmers expressing an opinion was Good Job, 73 per cent; Poor Job, 27 per cent.

The farmers in the South voted eight to two (81 per cent) "good job," while those in the Mid-West—the wheat and corn belt of Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, the Dakotas and surrounding States—voted 68 per cent "good job," 32 per cent "poor job."

Wire-Tapping Quiz to Go to N. Y.

Alleged tapping of telephone wires of prominent New Yorkers will be investigated by a special Senate committee in hearings opening Friday in New York.

Senator Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, last night was considering going to New York to preside at the hearing.

Balloon Barrages Waiting to Snare Nazi Bombers

By the Associated Press

London, July 23.—Like hungry spiders watching for flies, London's balloon barrage crews are waiting patiently for the first big air raid to prove that their lofty mooring cables are more than mere inspiration for amateur poets and devices for strengthening public confidence.

They already have given a sample of their use by netting four stray German raiders—and, inadvertently, five British planes as well.

The latest German to be victimized by a cable was downed Monday when British fighter planes enticed him into the trap of great dangling cables supported by the Gargantuan "guppy" balloons.

Bombs Bounce Off

It is said that small bombs and even good-sized incendiary bombs bounce off the resilient balloons without damaging them. The big bags are constructed with inner compartments so that a puncture would not bring them down, and the newest ones are declared to be lightning proof—a hint that they are constructed to withstand explosive attacks.

The exact nature of the cables and their destructive qualities are military secrets, as are the height to which the balloons can be flown and the number available.

In the World War London had only 35 balloons, but today many hundreds soar daily over the metropolis to guard against attacks by dive bombers or low-flying scout planes.

Other hundreds support their tentacles of death around strategic coastal spots, some anchored to barges.

Each balloon is manned by a crew linked by an intricate communication system with all the others so that any defense plan can be formed from the fact that more men are employed than were in all the Royal Air Force before its big expansion started in 1935.

DAY BY DAY a new menace—the gaunt specter of impending Famine—creeps into the news from Europe. It is an ugly threat, freighted with misery, disease and death. Famine strikes blindly and cruelly, ravaging all alike, the soldier and the civilian, the strong and the weak, the very old and the very young. It hits at the taproots of life, for the first necessity of Mankind is food.

In the world of today Americans may well take comfort—humbly and thankfully—from the fact that Famine will not reach this land. America alone of the Great Powers can feed all her people adequately and unfailingly from the produce of her own soil, and help to provide food for others. On this basic question of food, which underlies all preparedness, America is prepared beyond the dreams of other nations.

America's food security rests solidly on two assets which exist nowhere else in such numbers—progressive farmers and modern farm machinery.

America's farmers excel because they are the most alert, the most scientific, and the best-equipped of the world's farmers. They have made their wonderful production records because of those qualities, and because they use the most efficient production methods in the world.

Preparedness in nations which are farmed with crude tools by the muscle power of men and animals, inevitably means loss of vital crops and decline of food production as men are taken from the land. In our land, that is not true.

America will continue to produce her stocks of food, for the efficiency and strength of the American farmer are multiplied by his untiring aids, the tractor and the combine, the seeding machines, the mower, the corn picker and the motor truck. The American farmer, with their help, can do whatever task the nation sets him.

We take pride in that, because we have helped to make it true. For more than 100 years the industry of which this Company is a part has designed and built the farm machines that have made American farming one of the productive wonders of the world.

No 'Brain Trusters,' Is Willkie's Pledge

G. O. P. Nominee Also Spurns Paid Campaign Orators

By the Associated Press

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 23.—Wendell L. Willkie told 700 Wyoming Republican leaders tonight that if he were elected President "there would be no brain trusters in back rooms writing melodious speeches."

Addressing a dinner of Republican Party workers from every Wyoming County, the nominee asserted:

"I insist that the throttle hold of big Government be removed from our Legislatures, our courts and our business.

"I am determined that the leadership of the country shall not be resolved by corporate wealth or by political wealth in the form of political machines.

"This Government belongs to the people, and we are going to return it to them."

Earlier today Willkie said he had advised Chairman Martin of the Republican National Committee that he wanted no paid speakers in his campaign.

Willkie told reporters he also had discussed the question with C. B. Goodspeed, Republican treasurer. Goodspeed and Martin agreed that there should be no paid speakers, the Republican Presidential nominee added.

"I believe," Willkie continued, "that the cause I represent is the kind of cause in which people who speak for me during the campaign must believe in me deeply enough to speak voluntarily."

Enjoying himself in the "whoop-it-up" atmosphere of Cheyenne's Frontier Days Rodeo, Willkie let go some of the sharpest jabs he has delivered at the New Deal and President Roosevelt since beginning a precampaign vacation Colorado.

He told a platform crowd at Brighton, Colo., that "in this country there is no such thing as the indispensible man."

Hits Chicago Machine

At Greeley, Colo., he told another station audience the United States would go "down the same road as the totalitarian states" if the people follow political "machines."

He mentioned specifically "the Kelly-Nash machine and the remnants of the Pendergast machine and the Guffeys."

In his Brighton talk, Willkie said: "I know it was a series of circumstances that caused me to be nominated for President. I know there are thousands of men qualified for my position, public or private. In this country there is no such thing as the indispensible man.

"The very essence of Democracy is that it develops initiative and the energies of men."

At Greeley the Republican nominee asserted:

"There are few places in the world where we can gather as we do here today—uncontrolled by anybody."

He said he thought the American way of life never could be preserved if people followed political machines.

"I ask you to send me to Washington as your uncommitted representative who will work only for the preservation of our democratic life."

Democratic Willkie Group

New York, July 23 (AP).—The Associated Willkie Clubs of America announced tonight that a National Committee of Democrats—dissidents from the New Deal—would be organized within two weeks to work for the election of Wendell L. Willkie.

After a conference with John W. Hanes, former Undersecretary of the Treasury in the Roosevelt Administration, Oren Root, jr., chairman of the clubs, announced that Hanes will confer first with three others who announced they would bolt the Democratic ticket and work for Willkie. They are Lewis W. Douglas, former budget director under President Roosevelt; Mrs. Robert Campbell Lawson, Tulsa, Okla., clubwoman, and Dr. Alan Valentine, president of the University of Rochester.

The four will meet in either New York or Chicago to evolve plans, Root said.

He made public a telegram to Hanes in which Mrs. Nina Gore Auchincloss, an alternate delegate at large from Virginia to the Democratic National Convention, said she would not support President Roosevelt for a third term.

Guard Doubled on Ships Using Panama Canal

Balboa, C. Z., July 23 (INS).—It was learned tonight that the United States has doubled its "sabotage guard" on vessels passing through the Panama Canal, and these sentrys have been ordered to "shoot to kill" to protect America's vital link between the Atlantic and Pacific.

An armed guard now boards ships at the Canal entrance, instead of coming aboard at the first set of locks.

Nominee Willkie Visits Cheyenne Frontier Style

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

WHOOPIN' IT UP—His straw hat in hand in contrast to the super gallons around him, Wendell Willkie saluted crowds from this old-time stagecoach as he arrived in Cheyenne, Wyo., yesterday. Gov. Willkie Rides in Stagecoach But Won't Wear Cowboy Hat

Arrives for Cheyenne Rodeo on Special Train From Denver; Indians Mingle In Crowd as He Jokes About Cattle Business

By the Associated Press

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 23.—Wendell L. Willkie rode through this pioneer cowtown today atop a stagecoach which once provided transporttaion between Cheyenne and Deadwood, S. Dak.

The Republican Presidential nominee stood in the driver's compartment of the four-horse coach and waved his straw hat to the cheering crowds here for the opening of Cheyenne's Frontier Days Rodeo.

Although 10-gallon hats were the rule, Willkie stuck by his policy of "just being myself" and refused to wear the Western headgear.

Arrives on Special Train

He arrived from Denver on a special train along with several hundred Colorado citizens and stepped from the modern air-conditioned train into the rustic stagecoach to ride to his hotel.

As the train arrived Willkie stood on the rear platform beside a young woman who was designated to greet him.

"This young lady and I have gone into the cattle business together," he said.

The nominee shook hands with 26 Wyoming and Colorado sheriffs as crowds pulled and shoved about him.

As Willkie waved during his trip to the hotel, the crowd, attired in brightly colored cow-country garb, cheered loudly.

Indians in Crowd

Gov. Ralph L. Carr, of Colorado, and Gov. Nels H. Smith, of Wyoming, rode with Willkie. A cowboy band played such tunes as "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight.

A number of Shoshone and Arapahoe Indians mingled in the throng.

"Perfectly fine" was the way he felt, he told reporters, adding that he was anxious to see the rodeo.

A half dozen Indian chiefs boarded the train before it arrived here.

During the slow drive to the hotel a bystander noted Willkie's shaggy head and shouted:

"What a beautiful scalp that would make."

D. C. Willkie Club Headquarters Will Open Today

The Willkie Washington Committee, described as "the Capital's Own Bipartisan Willkie Club," will open its headquarters at 11 a. m. today in the O'Donnell Building, 727 Fifteenth street northwest.

An active public campaign, said Chairman Haven B. Page, will be carried on "to interest independent voters, regardless of party, in the election of Wendell L. Willkie."

A large picture of the Republican nominee will adorn the headquarter's entrance. "Willkie for President" signs outside the building will be visible from the Treasury Department a block away. Volunteer workers will comprise the headquarters staff.

Roosevelt Calls Douglas, Hanes Money-Minded

President Derides 2 Former Aides, Along With Burke, Reed

question on the bolting of various Democrats to the Republican slate, Mr. Roosevelt mused that he was thinking of a couple, whom he characterized as good, old Lew Douglas and Johnnie Hanes.

Douglas, he said, did not vote the Democratic ticket in 1936 and he doubted that Hanes did. Both were in the Government service, he said, and both are honorable and amiable young men, but he thought the concensus in the Government found their slant of mind ran more to dollars than to humanity.

Regarding Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, who also has offered his support to Willkie, Mr. Roosevelt said he understood the Democratic Party had really bolted from the Senator. Burke was defeated for renomination in the Democratic primaries.

Advised that former Senator James A. Reed (Democrat), of Missouri, had called a meeting of "grass root, Jeffersonian Democrats" in Chicago Thursday to oppose the third term, Mr. Roosevelt asked in mock surprise: Again?

He said Reed had done much the same thing in 1932 and 1936 and he thought perhaps in 1928. Reed is well qualified from experience, he continued, adding that we all remember that sweatshop matter, of course.

It was made plain the President was referring to a National Labor Relations Board complaint against the Donnelly Garment Co., of Kansas City, of which Mrs. Reed is president. Reed appeared before the board in oral argument on the complaint, and which the board found against the company, appealed to the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals.

An immediate Republican challenge, however, came after the President made it clear that Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, the Democratic Vice Presidential nominee, will continue to hold the Cabinet post while campaigning.

Point to Hoover

Authoritative sources here pointed to former President Hoover as having remained as Secretary of Commerce while campaigning for the Presidency, but out of Washington came a prompt denial.

Representative Ditter, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, in a statement pointed out that Hoover resigned as a cabinet officer before he began his campaign. Ditter demanded that Wallace resign as Agriculture Secretary "not only because as a Vice Presidential candidate he will be unable to attend to the vast affairs of this important department, but because no man running for public office should be in direct control of the distribution of subsidies aggregating $100,000,000 of public funds."

The authoritative sources here had said that three newspapers not named, undertook to make what was termed a simply wonderful distinction between the status of Mr. Hoover, who had $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 of department funds to spend, and Secretary Wallace, with several hundred millions of dollars of funds in the Agriculture Department.

Another dig at Hoover came when a reporter observed that the former President in a recent interview had forecast, on the basis of "official information" the worst European famine in history this year if the war continued through the fall.

President Roosevelt retorted he would like very much to receive such information—would, in fact, give anything in the world to have it.

Mr. Hoover, he pointed out, is head of a refugee relief commission, and as such, is in touch with the Red Cross, but so far has not forwarded any such report to Washington headquarters.

Reports that James A. Farley would resign as Postmaster General on Friday and be succeeded by Mayor Edward J. Kelly, of Chicago, were branded just another story by the President.

Nazis Take Half Of Danes' Meat, Roosevelt Told

Bullitt Has Little To Say at Hyde Park Press Conference

By the Associated Press

Hyde Park, N. Y., July 23.—Unofficial reports have reached President Roosevelt that perhaps half of Denmark's cattle, pigs and poultry are being slaughtered for German use.

If the reports from Denmark are true, the President said at his press conference, it naturally would be a pretty serious thing for the Danish people.

As for prospects of "mass starvation" in Europe this winter, the Chief Executive said there was general talk about it but definite facts and figures were lacking.

William C. Bullitt, United States Ambassador to France, sat in on the press conference and listened with obvious interest to a question whether he would return to his post.

Discuss Nazi Conquest

Mr. Roosevelt's reply was: He's just turned around and I think he needs a few days' holiday.

The President and Bullitt, a house guest at the Roosevelt home, have been discussing the German conquest of France and the establishment of the new Petain government. Mr. Roosevelt told reporters merely that a very interesting story was unfolding gradually in a normal way.

Three additional matters relating to world conditions figured in the press conference:

Mr. Roosevelt described as "very wild," rumors spread in Europe that he had counseled Britain to turn down Adolf Hitler's demand that she surrender or be destroyed.

Hull Report Optimistic

He said Secretary Hull had informed Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, who passed the word along, that the Pan-American conference in Havana was getting along very well.

When the conference turned to a discussion of the assignment of four destroyers to the Marine Corps for use in meeting any Western Hemisphere emergency, Mr. Roosevelt said it was an experimental thing. The destroyers are being fitted out to carry a very small number of Marines, he said, probably less than a company or men each.

Asked in what type of operation the reconditioned World War vessels would be employed, the President said they had a speed of 32 or 33 knots and would be used to get the most men to a given point in the fastest possible time.

House Group Speeds TVA Expansion Bill

$25,000,000 Measure Expected to Reach Floor Next Week

The House Rules Committee yesterday cleared the way for early action on a bill to provide a $25,000,000 expansion of TVA power facilities, chiefly for production of aluminum for the aviation industry.

Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, chairman of the appropriations deficiency sub-committee, said he expected the bill to reach the House floor next week.

Edward R. Stettinius, jr., member of the Advisory Defense Commission, and Gano Dunn, former Commonwealth and Southern engineer and now a power consultant for the commission, appeared before the rules committee yesterday to back the appropriation as an essential defense measure.

Woodrum told the rules committee he will offer an amendment to the bill providing that the Defense Commission must approve the extent and location of transmission lines to carry the new power.

President Denies Nazis Got Red Cross Cash

Reports Supplies Fell Into Their Hands Called Unfounded

Emphatic denials came yesterday from President Roosevelt's press conference at Hyde Park and from national Red Cross headquarters here in response to reports that some of the Red Cross war relief funds or supplies had fallen into German military hands.

President Roosevelt revealed that reports of some form of fifth column effort to sabotage the raising of funds for European war sufferers were reaching the Red Cross.

At the request of Norman Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross, the President stated that he was glad to say that the reports were completely and utterly unfounded and that supplies were being distributed actually and physically to people in need.

Inquiries Pour In

Stewart Brown, director of the Red Cross public information service here, said thousands of letters of inquiry had been received, representing a "good cross section" of the country's population.

No relief supplies and "not one cent" of relief funds have been confiscated or interfered with by Germany, Brown said. He explained that all funds are kept on deposit in American banks to be drawn upon by Red Cross officials in the field, as needed. Distribution of supplies is closely supervised by field officials.

Yesterday the war relief fund of the Red Cross neared its $20,000,000 goal, with $19,658,319 contributed. About $8,000,000 has already been spent.

Brown said the Red Cross is studying the problem of predicted food shortages in Europe next winter, but that rapidly changing conditions made it impossible to determine definite plans yet.

Situation Appalling

Meanwhile John W. Maloney, an American Red Cross representative, returned from Europe yesterday with the statement that "Europe faces one of the greatest shortages of foodstuffs in modern times."

Maloney, who is expected at national Red Cross headquarters here in the next few days to make a report, said in Jersey City, N. J., soon after landing:

"The situation in Europe today gets more appalling by the week, as far as food is concerned. Conditions are very bad. In fact, they are chaotic. There are a lot of people in Europe wondering what is going to happen this winter."

Both were decorated by the French government.

Rep. Houston And 8 Diplomats Get Tickets Fixed

Representative John M. Houston (Democrat), of Kansas; eight diplomats and a policeman were among 62 motorists favored with traffic ticket "adjustments" last week.

Fourteen of the notices were canceled outright, while the other 48 were "fixed" when the defendants received warnings.

Representative Houston received a warning on a ticket for parking less than 20 feet from the building line. He told Capt. James E. Bobo that his automobile was pushed.

Park Policeman Albert Kruger, of 2207 Sixteenth street southeast, was given a warning on a ticket because he said he left his car to go to the aid of a fellow policeman who was having difficulty restraining a prisoner. He was charged with a violation of the building-line regulation.

Four attaches of the German Embassy had tickets canceled. They were ticketed for parking in front of the embassy.

Jones Denies U. S. Is Planning Trade War With Germany

Declares No Strings Will Be Attached To Export-Import Bank Loans if $500,000,000 Capital Increase Is Granted

The Administration is not planning to declare economic war on Germany in Latin America despite President Roosevelt's request Monday for a $500,000,000 loan fund, Jesse Jones, Federal loan administrator, asserted yesterday.

"There is no economic war contemplated," Jones told reporters in his first press conference since the President's request for more lending power for the Export-Import Bank, under Jones' direction, was sent to Congress.

Jones admitted, in fact, that some of the United States dollars lent to Latin-American nations could find their way to Germany.

No Strings Attached

"There will be no attempt to dam up the natural flow of trade," Jones said. "There is and should be some trade between South America and Europe," Jones declared, in an effort to quiet fears that proposal to increase the bank's lending power to $700,000,000 might lead to an effort to cut off German-controlled Europe from trade in the Western Hemisphere.

"We cannot require that all the money be spent in this hemisphere if we want to be helpful to these Latin-American countries," Jones continued.

The bill, on which committee hearings are scheduled to start next week, is "purely a vehicle to help countries that need our assistance in helping their own nationals," Jones maintained.

Questioned whether this "no-economic-war" policy might be in conflict with the policy of the Treasury, which has frozen assets of invoded nations to keep them out of Nazi hands, Jones recalled that a Treasury representative would be on the bank's board.

"Obviously we will not get crossed up," Jones said, adding, however, "but this is a good neighbor proposal."

Loans under the proposed bill might be made against commodities such as Brazilian coffee and Argentine beef, Jones explained, and the United States might take over the commodities in event of default.

THEY'VE GOT THOSE EXTRAS THAT WIN BALL GAMES
Yes, it's the extras that carried Joe DiMaggio, "Bucky" Walters, and George Case to the top. The extras of slower burning won them to Camel cigarettes

HE STEPS UP to the plate, and he looks like 'most any other ball player. But when that bat of his comes crashing through—man, look out! It may be the ball game. Experts call him one of the greatest natural hitters in the game. Where...how he gets all that extra power into his bat, even Joe DiMaggio himself can't say. But you can easily see below how he gets the extras in his cigarette. "I smoke Camels for extra mildness and extra flavor," says Joe.

JOE DI MAGGIO—He topped both major leagues in batting last season

NO, "Bucky" Walters has no magic pitch. The magic's in his extra pitching sense—the extra degree of control. It shows in every pitch...in a change of pace that shackles the mightiest of bats. Those are the extras in his pitching. In his cigarette, "Bucky" will tell you: "Extra mildness and extra coolness win with me. So I smoke the slower-burning brand...Camels." Yes, Camel's costlier tobaccos and slower way of burning mean extra pleasure—and extra smoking per pack (see below, left).

"BUCKY" WALTERS—He won more games in 1939 than any other pitcher in the majors

EXTRA COOLNESS
EXTRA FLAVOR
● In recent laboratory tests, CAMELS burned 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them. That means, on the average, a smoking plus equal to 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

GEORGE CASE—He stole more bases last year than any other man in the majors

YES, it's the Case of the stolen base—George Case. Extra smartness in getting the jump on the pitcher...extra speed in getting there ahead of the ball—those two big extras have won George Case acclaim as the "fastest base-runner in the game today." Extras do make a difference—even in cigarettes.

With George Case—with millions of others—the extras of costlier tobaccos in slower-burning Camels are the difference between just smoking and smoking pleasure at its best. So turn to Camels. Enjoy mildness, coolness, and flavor—with an extra measure of each...and extra smoking per pack (see left).

U. S. Indexing Scientific Leaders For Emergency Defense Duties

500,000 of Nation's 'Brain Workers' Put On 'Punch Cards'

By Edward Ryan

An inventory of America's brain power, first of its kind in the Nation's history, is being prepared by the Government in cooperation with leaders of learned and professional societies as a strategic part of the National defense program, it was learned yesterday.

Dr. Carmichael

The study has been planned to give the Government a Nation-wide roster of its best scientific and professional brains, on a scale equal to the defense surveys of natural resources.

A punch-card catalogue of 500,000 or more scientists, specialists, and professional men from which the Government can mobilize, within a few hours, the best men for emergency duty, will be ready in about six months.

Official name for the catalogue will be the Roster of Scientific and Specialized Personnel. It is being organized as a joint project of the National Resources Planning Board and the Civil Service Commission, in cooperation with the American Council on Education, the American Council of Learned Societies, the National Research Council, the Social Science Research Council, and others.

College Head Named

Dr. Leonard Carmichael, president of Tufts College, has been named director of the project, and James C. O'Brien, defense liaison official for the Civil Service Commission, is executive officer.

The project officials explained, has a two-fold purpose:

1. To provide a centralized index of all American citizens who have special scientific or professional skills which may be important to the Nation either in emergency or peace time.

2. To safeguard against upsetting important research work or other activities by calling the men at work on them into the Government service when similarly trained experts might be found elsewhere.

List Human Resources

Underlying plans for the roster, it was suggested, is a fundamental idea of conservation, that in an emergency defense effort every human resource should be as quickly available for use as natural resources. A little known chemist working in an obscure field of research might become the one man who could work out a defense against some new chemical weapon. A physiologist studying the effects of high altitude on the human system might be wanted in a hurry to give advice to aviation planners. An expert in some little known dialect of a foreign language might be just the man for a specialized defense problem.

One official described it this way: In an emergency it would be just as urgent to know where the brains of the Nation are and what they are doing, as it would be to know where tin deposits or arms supplies could be found. The new roster is expected to give this information, in a form that can be used at high speed.

Mapped Project

Outlines of the roster project were mapped June 28 by a committee including these officials: Frederic A. Delano and Thomas C. Blaisdell, Jr., of the Resources Planning Board; Arthur Flemming, Civil Service Commissioner; Dr. Ross A. Harrison and Dr. Albert L. Barrows, of the National Research Council; Dr. W. H. Cowley, of the American Council of Education; Dr. D. H. Daugherty and Dr. H. C. Doyle, of the American Council of Learned Societies; Dr. R. T. Crane and Dr. Carl C. Brigham, of the Social Science Council.

They agreed, it was learned, that while the roster should ultimately include all scientific and professional workers in the United States, the survey would start in the fields where immediate Government personnel needs would be heaviest. Professions which have gone on this "must" list include chemistry, physics, mathematics, engineering, psychology, statistics and economics.

Some Lists Already In

First move in setting up the roster has been to obtain the membership of profesional and scientific organizations. Some lists are already in, others are being prepared by the organizations, while for some groups, including administrators and the medical profession, a study is still being made into how the lists will be prepared.

Second step will be to ask every member of these organizations to fill out two questionnaires, one a general information sheet about education, training, experience, hobbies, the other listing details of ability in the specialized field. Committees of experts are being asked to prepare the qualifications blanks to be used for their own professions.

Within three weeks, it was estimated, the project will be in production, with a staff of about 100 persons, to be taken from civil service rolls. They will code the information supplied on the questionnaires, and transfer it to punch cards.

To Set Up Committees

Meanwhile, the professional committees, it was indicated, will be set up with the idea that they may aid in operating the final roster. Officials pointed out that selecting men for important Government posts cannot be reduced entirely to a mechanical card-sorting process. As a result, while machines can be used to sort out of the punch-card roster a list of likely candidates for a particular job, the committees may be needed to help make a final selection. In addition, these committees will help protect important educational and research work.

The national roster, it was pointed out, is being organized separately from the Government's current punch-card file of some 750,000 of its own employes. A similar scientific and professional catalogue was completed in England last year, officials said, and has proved valuable in their defense organization.

Roosevelt to Get Lewis Support, Bittner Predicts

Morgantown, W. Va., July 23 (AP).—President John L. Lewis will support President Roosevelt for a third term, "just as you and I and everyone else are going to do," one of his chief lieutenants told the West Virginia Industrial Union Council (C. I. O.) convention today.

Van A. Bittner, chief international representative of the United Mine Workers, president of U. M. W. A. District 17, and leader of the Mid-western steel organizing drive, made the assertion.

Lewis, in Washington, said he had "no comment" on Bittner's speech. Several times in recent months Lewis has predicted "ignominious defeat" for Roosevelt if he ran for a third term.

"If it hadn't been for John L. Lewis we wouldn't have got Wallace (Secretary Wallace, Democratic nominee for Vice President) and the platform we did at Chicago," Bittner added.

Equity Assets Drop

New York, July 23 (AP).—The Equity Corporation, an investing concern, reported today assets as of June 30 were equal to $39.09 a share on the preferred stock, compared with assets equal to $45.07 a share on June 30, 1939.

Sumners Calls Committee On D. C. Vote

Judiciary Groups To Consider Bill Next Tuesday

tional Capital," he said. "I think it is indeed strange that the greatest democracy in the world should continue to deny the franchise to the residents of its seat of government."

Senator Capper said that it is highly important that all factions within the District reach an agreement on an objective in the suffrage campaign and work in harmony toward that goal rather than at odds over whether national representation or local suffrage should have precedence.

Among the members of the House Judiciary Committee who indorsed the principle of suffrage yesterday were Representatives Celler (Democrat), of New York; Murdock (Democrat), of Utah; Tolan (Democrat), of California; Massingale (Democrat), of Oklahoma, and Robsion (Republican), of Kentucky.

Representative Michener (Republican), of Michigan, repeated the challenge of Representative Rees (Republican), of Kansas, in urging a test vote before adjournment.

Celler Favors "Principle"

"The Democrats called for suffrage in their Chicago platform. If that is what they believe in, why not do the job now rather than wait until the next Congress—if they are as lucky next time as they were the last."

Celler stated that he favors "the principle" of District suffrage but suggested that "it will take a great deal of thought to draft a proper measure."

Both Tolan and Massingale indicated they would vote to bring the Sumners resolution to the floor, while Representative McLaughlin (Democrat), of Nebraska, promised to give "full consideration to any suffrage bill."

It is expected that if the Judiciary Committee were to report out the Sumners resolution that the Rules Committee would have an opportunity to pass upon it also by deciding whether or not to grant a special rule for its consideration.

A report commending the Democratic Party for including a District suffrage plank in its campaign platform and calling upon Congress for "immediate action" was prepared last night by the executive committee of the D. C. Suffrage Association, meeting in the Woodward Building.

The report will be presented to President Roosevelt and the House and Senate District Committees, said Wilbur S. Finch, association president.

Pepco to Fight Saboteurs WithRadioCars

Precautions Taken In Capital Plants Vital to Defense

Quietly but no less certainly, precautions are being increased against sabotage and malicious tampering with Washington's vital plants and buildings.

Latest step to be taken in the program of vigilance and prevention was the launching yesterday of a shortwave broadcasting system to link headquarters of the Potomac Electric Power Co. with its hundreds of emergency, trouble shooter and line trucks.

Modeled after the police radio, the Pepco control room is located in the headquarters building at Tenth and E streets northwest and the transmitter is on the grounds of the company's Benning plant.

J. H. Ferry, vice president, said the radio dispatching system starts out with 27 trucks equipped with receiving sets but that approximately 300 more will be similarly furnished before long. While he did not describe the innovation as a specifically antisabotage measure, it obviously will simplify the task of protecting the company's two major plants and the 36 scattered substations.

Defense Plants Guarded

A number of extra men have been added to the special police force and rules regarding visitors have been made more stringent, Ferry declared.

Meantime, vigilance against any untoward occurrences is being stepped up at the Potomac Yards, Union Station, Bureau of Standards, the Capitol, Navy Yard and the Washington Gas Light Co., a check-up revealed yesterday.

All of these have important roles in the national defense program.

At Potomac Yards in Alexandria, one of the country's most important railheads, visitors and outsiders are allowed on the huge reservation, with its 87 miles of trackage, only if accompanied by yard men. Cameras are forbidden, except for certain purposes sanctioned by the office.

Picked Squad at Capitol

E. L. Hofmann, superintendent of Washington Terminal, of which Union Station is only one part, said protection emphasis is being placed on the power plant.

"We're keeping eyes and ears open, but there's nothing to get excited about," said Capt. William S. Orthman, head of the Capitol police force. Responsibility for guarding the building now rests with a picked squadron of Metropolitan Police officers recently assigned to the Capitol.

The Bureau of Standards, where precision lenses are being made for Navy optical instruments and numerous other defense jobs are under way, is enforcing its rule that all entering the 56-acre reservation shall carry passes, and working on plans to inclose more of its buildings behind high fences.

Workers Watched

Some 900 men and women work at the bureau and the conduct of them all is being watched more closely than they suspect.

The Navy Yard, always careful whom it admitted, except when open house was held once a year on Navy Day (October 27), is now stricter than ever before. The marine and sailor guard forces are being bolstered, social events on the reservation have been eliminated, the Navy Day open house is off indefinitely and sentries are under orders to demand that every person in mufti produce his pass.

Rear Admiral George Pettengill, commandant, has been challenged several times recently as he walked around in civilian clothes.

The Washington Gas Light Co. likewise is taking extraordinary steps against sabotage but officials declined to discuss them yesterday.

Hecht Co. Begins Store Enlargement

Selling Space of Many Floors to Be Doubled By Big-Scale Change

An expansion and building program that will increase by 50 per cent the actual selling space of many floors of the Hecht Co. store was announced yesterday by Charles B. Dulcan, sr., vice president and general manager.

While various improvements have been made on the property during past years, this will be the first large-scale construction operation entered into by the Hecht Co. since erection of the $1,000,000 service building at New York avenue and Fenwick street northeast in 1935.

"Our purpose is to keep pace in physical area with our greatly expanding business," said Dulcan. "Washington's great population growth make it necessary for us to provide additional facilities to serve the community properly. We intend to relocate many departments so that related merchandise will be easily accessible to our patrons, and our plans call for the installation of many new fixtures, most modern lighting equipment and considerable redecoration."

Almost every department in the present Hecht Co. building will benefit by the expansion program. The women's and misses' ready-to-wear departments, including dresses, coats, millinery and corsets, will gain more than 11,000 square feet of selling space. The rug and linoleum departments will be given an entire floor, materially augmenting their present facilities. Another entire floor will be devoted to homewares, kitchen utensils, the gift shop and paint department.

The program also will make available a complete floor for the selling and display of all types of furniture, including bedroom, dining room, living room and occasional pieces. Also to be constructed is a complete new group of model rooms that will embody the newest ideas in home decoration and color coordination.

A total of 33,000 square feet of selling space will become available through the expansion plan, Dulcan said. The buildings adjoining the main Hecht Co. store, at 614, 618 and 624 F street, now owned by the company and occupied as offices, will be remodeled into selling departments, and will connect directly with the main building on each floor.

Construction is being rushed so that the major part of the buildings will be ready for occupancy in the early fall.

Hitler Talks With Leaders On 'Zero Hour'

Nazi War Machine Poised to Launch Invasion of Britain

By the United Press

Berlin, July 23.—Proclaiming angrily that "the die is cast!" Germany tonight held her war machine poised for an invasion of the British Isles and boasted of shattering aerial attacks on the Chatham naval base and a half dozen major British ports and airdromes.

Adolf Hitler was reported conferring with his military leaders to fix the "zero hour" of the first mass assault on the British Isles in nearly 900 years as result of the blunt rejection of his "final appeal to reason" by British Foreign Secretary Halifax.

Lord Halifax's speech, according to Nazi spokesmen, has smashed all prospects of peace and the German armed forces will strike at any hour.

"There is nothing more to discuss—the die is cast," said a Wilhelmstrasse spokesman, and this was echoed in boldly splashed headlines across all German newspapers.

"Germany who wanted to seek a means of peace, has been punished with cold scorn for her well-meaning action," said the press, referring to Hitler's speech Friday offering Britain the choice of submission or destruction.

"The answer we will mete out can now be given only in the hard language of Germany's armed forces. Its power will astonish the British Empire.

"Only the Fuehrer will decide the exact moment."

The official D.N.B. agency delivered a sharp warning to the British against engaging in any civilian "guerrilla" resistance against German forces attacking the British Isles, asserting that such resistance will only lead to terrible civilian slaughter.

The D.N.B. referred to British Prime Minister Winston Churchill's statement that English cities and towns will be defended street-by-street, to the mobilization of civilian "parashots" and photographs showing members of Parliament training with rifles.

"Civilians who take up weapons against a single soldier of the German army are nothing else but common murderers, whether they wear priests' robes or carry a certificate of the House of Commons," it was stated.

Viscount Halifax had barely finished his Monday night radio speech rejecting Hitler's "offer," it was said, before German planes raided the port of Pembroke "with its oil reservoirs," the naval base of Chatham, Sheerness, Edinburgh and Aberdeen and airports near Portsmouth naval base and the Bristol channel, the high command said.

The Suffrage Pledge

"The processes of democracy," Congressman Randolph told the House of Representatives on Monday, "should function in the District just as in any part of America." That is the indisputable logic which supports the current move to enfranchise this voteless community. To those who believe in democracy the continued denial of any rights of self-government to the Nation's Capital is indefensible.

According to Mr. Randolph, who is chairman of the House District Committee, the District suffrage plank in the 1940 Democratic platform is the first declaration of its kind ever adopted by either of the major parties. For a country devoted to the ideal of government through consent of the governed that is a strange record. Washington is as much a part of the United States as St. Louis, New York, Seattle or Podunk. In addition, it is the Nation's Capital. In many ways it serves as a model for other communities. Yet 140 years after its founding it is a disfranchised island in a sea of democracy.

There is no basic reason why this should be so. While the Constitution now forbids the election of Senators and Representatives from the District, it places no impediments in the way of local self-government. Indeed, the people of Washington exercised limited rights of suffrage until 1874. It is a sad commentary on American statesmanship that since the old Territorial government was abolished 66 years ago no plan to democratize the Capital City has been put into effect.

As Mr. Randolph pointed out, this discrimination against Washington residents was not so flagrant when the city was small and a large percentage of its residents retained their citizenship in some State. Today the District is a great metropolitan community. Its inhabitants number more than 663,000. Even ten years ago it exceeded eight States in population. It is time to grant political rights to this vast number of voters or modify our boast about being a land of the free.

To be sure, a grant of suffrage to Washington residents will involve some difficult problems. One of these is representation of the District in the Senate, where only the States are represented. But almost every proposed amendment to the Constitution poses some difficult problem. Such issues afford no excuse for continued inactivity when an important principle is at stake.

So the House may well bring out the Sumners resolution and debate it. With the Democratic Party in control of the legislative and executive branches of the Government, it cannot act too quickly to redeem its pledge to the District of Columbia.

Suffrage in any form would be a net gain for the District. The city's most acute need is a more responsible and efficient local government. Fortunately, that can be provided without enactment of a constitutional amendment. But any grant of political rights would stimulate interest in community affairs and improve the quality of service rendered by the local government. Moreover, a District government responsive to the will of the people in local affairs would quickly demand representation in Congress and the right of Washingtonians to vote for Presidential and Vice Presidential candidates. The first job of District Congressmen, should the plea for national representation be granted, would be to work for a better local regime.

No More Duplicates

Once a year men of strength and intelligence quail before their manifest duty. On March 15, or sooner, they seat themselves at desks or dining room tables, surround themselves with small scraps of paper, bite their pencils, mumble, moan, wave their hands in the air and give up. Then they consult their wives, their lawyers, and special officials appointed by the Government to comfort them.

The object of all this travail is to set down a few figures on a simple-looking questionnaire. If it were an application for a better job or an estimate on a construction contract out of which one could expect a profit, the work would seem light. But human nature, alas, is such that the calculation of money owed to Uncle Sam is punishing labor.

Since 1935 this annual accounting has been doubly disheartening. For when the taxpayer had pocketed his slips of paper, driven or walked to the revenue office, jostled through the line, threshed out his problems with the adviser and got his blank filled—when he thought he was through and felt the burden lift from his shoulders—then he remembered he had to find some place to sit down and make out a duplicate. It was like an extra day in jail to a prisoner who has been told he can go free.

Now, however, there will be no more duplicates. The Treasury has said so. And that sigh you hear is a happy one—of millions thinking how much easier it will be for them next March to pay out bigger taxes.

New League Of Nations

To create a league of nations it is not necessary to draft a formal covenant, incorporate it in a treaty of peace and obtain national ratifications thereof, as was done in 1919.

A league of nations may also be developed more informally and in more piecemeal fashion. That seems to be the procedure favored for the league now being shaped at Havana under the guidance and leadership of the United States.

It is not difficult to determine the moment at which a system of international cooperation goes beyond that preliminary stage and becomes a definite form of international government. This clearly occurs when the association of governments assumes a form of sovereignty heretofore not exercised, independently, by any of the various members of the association.

By this definition of international government, Secretary Hull, at Havana on Tuesday, proposed the creation of a new league of nations, definitely exercising new sovereign powers, in the Western Hemisphere. It is a step of great significance in American history.

It was, of course, hypothetical to suggest for European possessions in this hemisphere "a collective trusteeship to be exercised in the name of all of the American republics." Such a trusteeship, Mr. Hull made plain, would be established only if the present sovereignty of these possessions should be seriously called in question.

But the very definite intent behind the project was demonstrated yesterday when the United States delegation introduced a convention which, if signed and ratified, would make the creation of this trusteeship automatic under certain contingencies.

It is to be noted that this convention would make the new League of American Nations a sovereign body. In a given situation the new league would immediately assume the responsibility of government for certain territories and the peoples thereof. It would retain this responsibility until, Mr. Hull suggests, each region in question could either "be restored to its original sovereign" or "be declared independent when able to establish and maintain stable self-government."

This is a momentous proposal. It would involve not merely periodical Pan-American conferences but also a permanent international organization empowered to exercise continuously the proposed functions of government.

The project is thus a more advanced political concept than was the creation of mandated territories by the Treaty of Versailles. For these were operated, under the general oversight of an international committee which met periodically, by a single mandatory power. Mr. Hull specifically says that the mandates which the Administration proposes would "be exercised in the name of all of the American republics." Seemingly there would be no one mandatory power.

The proposal is as yet hypothetical. And in addition it is still in a very preliminary stage, undebated and uncriticized. Nonetheless it must be called a most significant milestone in the long effort to build definite international government. It is certainly not less significant because sponsored by the Nation which, only 20 years ago, rejected membership in the League of Nations, partly in the belief that Geneva might aspire to some characteristics of a superstate.

Five-Cent Milk

The distribution of milk at 5 cents a quart to families in need of public assistance will be an interesting experiment. If the families eligible for milk cards take advantage of this opportunity to obtain a limited supply of a healthful food often unavailable to them in the past, Washington's difficult relief situation will be in some measure relieved. From this viewpoint the plan is certainly worth a trial.

It is by no means certain, however, that low-income families will take full advantage of their opportunity to obtain 5-cent milk. Actually the milk thus distributed will be of the same quality as that which is delivered to the door by the local dairies or purchased in grocery stores. But families on relief are sometimes suspicious of foods sold at lower prices for their benefit.

In appraising the value of this experiment, too, the public should remember that consumers who pay the regular price for milk are helping to subsidize the distribution of this commodity to the poor.

More Reasons Wanted

Opposition to a third term in the Presidency for any man has been a long-standing policy of the Democratic Party. When President Roosevelt decided to upset this tradition by permitting himself to be renominated at Chicago he must have realized that he would lose the support of some members of his own party. What he perhaps failed to realize is the strength of the distrust of any third-term movement among many Democrats who regard themselves as wholly loyal to that party.

Men like Senator Burke, John W. Hanes, Lewis W. Douglas, Stephen F. Chadwick, former Senator James A. Reed and Vance C. McCormick bolted the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket within a few days after it was named. In none of those cases was the action taken very surprising. But a large number of other Democrats who are perturbed by the outcome of the Chicago convention are with difficulty holding their silence. Many of them may never speak their opposition. Others may do so as the Presidential campaign becomes more intense.

It is already evident, however, that the President has widened a split in the Democratic Party which had previously attained serious proportions because of the fight over enlargement of the Supreme Court and Mr. Roosevelt's subsequent attempt to purge Senators who had opposed him. Instead of closing the ranks of the Democratic Party, the forthcoming campaign is almost certain to drive the discordant groups farther apart. And if the President wins the election, in spite of this opposition within his own party, the resentment now emerging may easily crystallize into suspicion and distrust of his next Administration.

There is some danger, therefore, that the President will unwittingly defeat the purpose which caused him to seek a third term. He has given the country to understand that he accepted the nomination at Chicago only because of his unwillingness to reject a call to service during a national emergency. But a President who becomes embroiled in a row over a long-standing policy of his own party would scarcely be in a position to furnish the leadership which the country needs in this critical period.

To date the President has only challenged the third-term precedent which every other Chief Executive has either voluntarily or of necessity respected. Should he actually break that tradition, at a time when the powers of the office have been greatly magnified, the opposition may tend to become stronger. It is, therefore, important that Mr. Roosevelt should, at an early stage of the campaign, discuss in more detail the factors which have prompted him to defy tradition. He cannot assume that they are understood by all.

The "Bite"

Some small difficulties along our northern border serve to remind us of its essentially peaceful character. Representatives of Canadian tourist interests plaintively refer to what they term a "misunderstanding" over frontier restrictions. Prospective customers, they fear, believe that a passport is now necessary for United States citizens crossing the line.

"This undoubtedly is due in part," the complainants write, "to the new ruling that noncitizens coming into this country" (the United States) "from Canada must present passports."

While no passport is needed by Americans entering Canada, some form of identification is required. An official of the Department of State is quoted as recommending for this purpose, among other personal documents, club cards or tax bills.

These, at a glance, should inform the Canadian immigration authorities how much money the applicant can be expected to spend north of the border. If the club is a good one, his income is likely to be large; and if the tax bills are unpaid, the chances are he has at least some cash in his pocket.

Less cooperative than the Department of State are certain dentists who have discovered that cut rates on Canadian false teeth are taking a bite out of their profits. They protest that the tariff law forbids anyone to go into a neighboring country specifically to "shop" unless duty is paid.

The result is that, whereas Canadians politely decline to look the gift horse in the mouth, returning tourists have to say "Ah" for United States customs inspectors. If their incisors look too good, it's too bad; nearly 50 sets of chewers have been confiscated in the last few months.

Can this be another indication of reviving Republican influence? The G. O. P. always has favored putting teeth into the tariff laws.

"Hitler's Offer"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The editorial "Hitler's Offer" (on the Hitler peace offer) in The Post of July 20 is the most sensible and constructive article on the Anglo-German war that has appeared in any of our Washington newspapers for many a day.

Why, indeed, should not Mr. Churchill learn the German peace terms and publish them to his own countrymen and to us here in America, so everyone may know just what a continuation of this bloodshed would mean should he reject the gesture held out to his country.

We here in America particularly should know, for notwithstanding the disclaimers of those in high office of any intention to send American boys to fight abroad and in spite, too, of the strong—almost unanimous—opposition of those who did the actual fighting in the last war, we shall be drawn inevitably into this destructive vortex should the war continue a few more months.

Motorist's Burden

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: My dear friends, the moviegoer, the smoker, the booze hound and the purchasers of cosmetics are all doing their bit for defense in the way of increased taxes. But what about the motorist? He thinks that his tax should go, solely, for the maintenance and construction of highways.

Now, could we not place a small tax on gasoline and oil in the District of Columbia and divert it, temporarily, for defense purposes?

Are not the car owners just as well, if not better, equipped to help out as we poor straphangers?

Urges Military Training

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is not fantistic to believe that America's independence is gravely threatened, when we realize that we face not only Germany aiming at world domination but also a world proletarian revolution. Germany has made herself the strongest threat to civilization in world history, through seven years of fanatical concentration on the science of mass murder, together with the cancellation of liberty, ethics and religion, and by her alliances with other nations of similar proletarian ideologies.

If Germany can conquer all Europe we may reasonably believe that she can conquer America. The Atlantic is a highway, not a barrier, in approaching an unprepared Nation. Our need now is to convert our national man power into trained air pilots, tank drivers, artillerymen and riflemen.

Voluntary enlistment is a failure. Selective military training is the fair method of calling on all Americans to defend their country according to their skills and capacities. It gives us both technical fighting preparation against enemies without and creates a national spirit to combat enemies within.

The world is sick, perhaps the Dark Ages are coming again, perhaps a 50-year war, certainly a life and death struggle for the things that make life worth living. Let courage rise with danger; no defeatism, only an implacable determination to destroy the despotism that threatens us.

On Philippine Democracy

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Philippine Commonwealth President Manuel Quezon in reply to American High Commissioner Sayre's statement assailing the President's advocacy of the need of a one-party system for the Philippines said that the Filipinos "have to do their own thinking and learn from the lessons of contemporary history or bust."

It seems that Mr. Quezon's latest political blitzkrieg was prompted by the failure of democracy in France. Such a failure Mr. Quezon attributed mainly to friction caused by the division of representation among several political parties.

Being a real Filipino, I'd want to do what Mr. Quezon has said about doing my own thinking. Well, profiting by the lessons of contemporary history, I say that President Quezon's conclusion as to the failure of democracy in France is based on hearsay; it is contrary to well-known, established facts.

Mr. Quezon's disposition to concede the principle of democracy in government a failure with only a meager chance to survive is understandable. It is certain that the forces of this idea are in full retreat; that they have failed in a great crisis and are now at their last bastions.

Seemingly as Mr. Quezon has observed, democracy is dead in France, one of its traditional strongholds, but a doubt is raised by a recently published article by David Lloyd George, whose conclusions correspond closely to those of other observers of the French transition. And I think David Lloyd George is far more qualified than President Quezon to pass judgment on contemporary history, especially European history.

The former British prime minister asserts that the Petain government represents not the will of the French people, but of the great vested interests championed by parties of the Right, the ultraconservatives who are more interested in the maintenance of their own power and in "advantageous arrangements" even while an ancient enemy is beating upon the gates than they are in the security of their own country.

David Lloyd George maintains that the leaders of the French government from the outset demonstrated that they "had no real sympathy with liberty;" that they and the acquisitive money classes, who insisted upon doing business at a profit even to the very end, sold out the cause of freedom for financial gain.

If this is an accurate picture of the situation in France, it cannot be maintained that democracy has failed or that the ideal is dead. Democracy has simply been betrayed by the selfish, greedy exponents of an undemocratic system whose policies produced the logical fruitage of unpreparedness, folly, treachery and enslavement.

Democracy will flame forth again as it has so often, both in France and elsewhere, when all appears lost, and it will survive. But it will be of sterner stuff, hardened by sacrifice, under vigilant, incorruptible leaders, who, having learned the lessons of the corruption, selfishness and incompetence that cleared the way for the collapse of France, are determined that nothing of the sort shall happen again.

I say that democracy will live in the Philippines if given half a chance, and if President Quezon so permits. But it cannot endure if it is exploited by the rich or by the poor, by sinister, conscienceless politicians, by evil predatory capitalists, by irresponsible radicals. It can flourish only in the hands of patriots.

Advice to Mr. Wallace

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Excellent logic and vital truth underlie your editorial in The Post of July 20, "Mr. Wallace Must Resign," and the supplementary comment of July 22, "A Poor Excuse." Where is the exercise of independent judgment and statesmanship the created condition suggests?

The Department of Commerce setup, as existing when supervised by Mr. Hoover, then Secretary of Commerce, does not parallel that of the Department of Agriculture as operative today. To show the power behind the latter's organization, on one occasion, an item in the department's appropriation bill was legislatively deleted. Five thousand telegrams came from one State alone protesting this action.

There is quoted below, as sustaining the viewpoint of The Post, a paragraph which appeared in the Nation's Business, March, 1938, showing how far-flung might be the ramifications of this Federal department and how potent might be their use. "The 1938 appropriation for the department's Office of Information is $1,474,770," says the item. "In addition there are publicity offices in each 18 administrations, bureaus and services within the department; all spending, it is conservatively estimated, not less than $10,000,000 a year on agricultural publicity by press, radio and motion pictures."

Supplementing this powerful branch is the army of county agents in the more than 3,000 continental counties. Thus it will be seen that the prestige of office, in a political campaign, is a formidable weapon.

Hollow Laugh

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The greatest Democratic convention in history has outwitted fate and gone down into history. Before its overdue demise after its routine task, it devoted much time and talented oratory to derision of the Republican platform.

This must have brought pained grins to the pans of many industrial royalists, the tin-box politicians and to many members of the lower classes.

For the Third Term Party's attitude toward platforms (1932-36) still being fresh, let us go forth and enjoy a hollow laugh and a cry into our spiked limeades at the fact that anyone over 7 should ever credit one of those things again, from whatever source it may emerge, with whatever intent foisted upon its helpless victims.

Refugee Children

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There have been quite some comments about the United States offering asylum to British refugee children. Particularly, does Miss Thompson over-emotionalize her emotions when she gets off on this subject. Therefore, I'd like to ask Miss Thompson and the others a few questions.

First, why reserve all your pity, anguish, pleas, etc., only for the British refugees? Do you know there are thousands of Spanish refugees in France?

Also, I remember Miss Thompson loudly crying out that the riches of America could easily feed and care for these British children: I agree with Miss Thompson; America is an infinitely wealthy land. But why doesn't Miss Thompson's anger and pity come to the fore when she sees the starvation and suffering of thousands of American children?

Plan For Aliens

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I suggest a simple psychological approach to the pressing problem of the 3,500,000 aliens now stranded in the United States without hope to get back to their native countries within reasonable time. Even if the war is over before 1941 or 1942, the conditions in Europe with the approaching famine will make it impossible to send them back to death through starvation.

Therefore the only human solution seems to me, from the psychological point of view, is to give them a clear-cut choice: Either the loyal elements swear immediate allegiance to the United States, in exchange for permission to settle down in America under specified conditions which Congress should lay down, or they must submit to drastic control which is necessary in the presence of national peril.

Should bona-fide aliens swear under oath absolute allegiance to the United States, those who break their solemn oath could be punished for perjury, and put in jail for the time being, without further complications from the legal point of view.

At the same time such a solution would allow the bona-fide elements to become within five years useful American citizens.

Old Poul

It was nearly the middle of June. Old Poul stood leaning on his hoe, his eyes staring but unseeing.

Blue corn flowers nodded lazily among the tall oat panicles in the near field; the meadows were green and lush. A stork, lately arrived from the South via the old route high above the smoking, throbbing munitions factories of central Europe, stood in speculative mood on the thatched roof, carefully balanced on one long leg. He was Storkefader, and casually opened a bright eye in the direction of the meadow. Fat frogs and other delicacies were hidden in its greenness. But they could wait. Storkefader closed his eye again and shook himself in anticipation.

A mild breeze, as soft as silk and perfumed, caressed old Poul's weathered face, touched his sparse gray hair and drifted on.

A lark winged up suddenly, in musical flight. Old Poul's eyes watched it. Up, up into the blue. Up there in the vastness—from where the farm sun, so dear to the Dane, sent its glow into heart and soil. Empyreal expanse, bestowing warmth and beneficence, cold and fury, beauty and destruction, with impersonal largesse.

Old Poul heard Lise calling, "Father, Father, the coffee is ready!" He pictured the coffee table, spread in the Upholdstue. His two stalwart sons and their apple-cheeked wives would be waiting for him there. And his grandchildren, six of them now, born into a changing world. Only to them it was a vivid, exciting world.

The children loved to talk of school. Erik had begun last evening, quickly checked by a look from his mother—"The Laerer said today that the New Order that was coming in Europe——"

The New Order! Gentle old Poul who loved Erik had almost hated him in that moment, for he realized that little Erik would accept the New Order—they all would—all the young. That was the plan—to get the youth.

He remembered when he was Erik's age. That was the year they built the new cooperative dairy in Meirup, where he lived. How excited the townspeople had been! "We've solved our problem," they said.

Faced with economic disaster in 1870, the farmers of Denmark had stood together, shoulder to shoulder, and jointly worked out a way of overcoming their difficulties. Taciturn, strongly individualistic, these men had not depended on popular agitators to set their course. They had chosen not to be led, but to work together.

Old Poul thought of that simple boyhood home in Meirup. He seemed to see his mother place the steaming bowl of porridge on the plain deal table. How the children scrambled for their horn spoons in the rack by the fireplace! Armed with these they awaited the father's entrance. He came in slowly, a heavy, serious man, and took his accustomed place at the head of the table. He opened his Bible and his little book of Grundtvig's hymns and read a little in both. Marthe, his wife, stood by with folded hands. The children composed their faces and stood by, too, waiting with what patience they could muster.

Finally, came the last "Amen." The father laid aside his books and inserted his spoon in the hot pudding. This was the signal for the children to take their places—standing—around the table, spoons poised for action. The mother smiled at them and, at once, eight spoons in eight eager little hands followed the father's example.

The old clock ticked. How good the warm food tasted! In later life old Poul said, nothing ever tasted so good as mother's "grod."

"Father, Father, the coffee is ready——" Old Poul turned slowly and made his way toward the cottage. His grim old lips formed a soundless prayer as he walked.

Thoughts For An American Friend

TO MANY PEOPLE in America, so I am told, our war over here in Europe seems surprisingly remote and unreal. That in no way surprises me. Even to many Englishmen the struggle on the Continent seemed, until quite recently, surprisingly remote and unreal. Just another phase of that vast gladiatorial display which we have been witnessing for close on ten years, in Manchuria, in Abyssinia, in Spain and in Poland. Wars and rumors of wars have come to be part of our normal environment in this age of enlightenment.

Even to Mr. Neville Chamberlain, charged until recently with the supreme conduct of our nation's affairs, Czecho-Slovakia seemed until quite recently to be singularly remote—that "far-off country," he called it in March, 1939. And then, a few weeks ago Mr. Chamberlain learned that 70-ton tanks, produced in the great Czech arms works at Pilsen and manned by Germans, had smashed their way through France's defenses and isolated the British army in northern Flanders.

For many people in this country that piece of intelligence gave a new meaning to the agreement concluded at Munich in the month of September, 1938. We had provided Hitler with a weapon wherewith to accomplish our own defeat.

I suggest that Americans, who think of the war in Europe as a remote gladiatorial show which has little bearing upon their own future, should reflect upon the significance of those 70-ton Czech tanks. They were produced by workmen who have a great democratic tradition and who detest Hitler and everything for which Hitler stands.

IN THE SHIPYARDS on Tyneside and on the banks of the River Clyde, some hundreds of thousands of British workmen are working seven days a week producing warships for the British navy. They are men who have been accustomed for generations to produce some of the finest warships the world has ever seen; they expect to produce about a million tons of shipping for the British navy this year.

But let there be no mistake about it. If Hitler were to succeed in crushing British resistance in these islands, those self-same workmen would be obliged, willy-nilly, to go on building warships, just as today the workmen of Czecho-Slovakia are building tanks. They would not enjoy building warships for the German navy, any more than the Czechs enjoy building tanks for the German army. But they would have no alternative. The combined output of British, French, Italian and German shipyards would, in the event of a German victory, provide Hitler with a formidable armada.

It is possible that the existing British navy would escape from Hitler's grasp and would continue the struggle from bases in the Western Hemisphere. Possible, but by no means certain. For Hitler would have formidable means of pressure at his disposal wherewith to compel its surrender. Suppose, for instance, that he was in a position to impose an effective blockade upon our islands, and that he refused to let the food ships in unless our warships were surrendered to him. Remember that the crews of those ships would have wives and families in the British Isles.

YOU MAY OBJECT that I have forgotten about the American naval program, about your astronomical expenditure of dollars on naval craft. I have not forgotten your naval program. But I suggest that it would take you all your time to keep up with the shipyards of Germany, Italy, France and Great Britain, and that, even if you succeeded in doing that, you would still be faced with the question of Japan.

The old naval ratio of 10:10:7 would, perhaps, survive, but with this difference: the place of Great Britain as the equal partner of the United States would have been taken by Germany, and Japan would have, as before, a fleet two-thirds the size of the United States Navy.

Does the picture which I have drawn seem exaggerated? I do not think that it is. I think one could safely assume that Hitler, if he found himself the conqueror of Europe and of Africa, would demand a fleet "second to none."

I think it is equally safe to assume that Italy, after a Hitler victory, would have no alternative but to continue to be Hitler's vassal. And it appears reasonable to suppose that a conquered Britain and a conquered France would be obliged to expiate the crime of opposing Hitler by placing their resources at the disposal of the German war machine. Hitler has proved often enough in the past that he neglects nothing which can contribute to the supreme aim of German power.

You may be feeling, by now, that I am trying to make your flesh creep. Maybe I am. But at least you will have to give me credit for the fact that I have avoided most of the familiar bogeys, such as the bogey of invasion. That is the suggestion that Hitler, if he succeeded in defeating Great Britain and France, would enforce his claim to our possessions in the Western Hemisphere even to the extent of going to war with the United States.

I DO NOT BELIEVE in the danger of a German invasion of America, for a very long time to come. Nor do I believe that Hitler would be so foolish as to provoke a conflict over the question of our dependencies in the Western Hemisphere. Why should he? As the ruler of a vast slave-owning State, disposing of the human and material resources of all Europe west of the Russian border and of the greater part of Africa, he could afford to wait, for time would be on his side.

The means of exerting pressure upon the United States would be infinite. With naval bases on the Atlantic seaboard of Africa, he could make his power felt in the South American continent, employing the technique of conspiracy and intrigue which proved so effective in the Balkans, in Norway and in Holland.

And while Germany could devote the whole of her strength to improving her position in South America, America would always have to keep one eye on Japan. Hitler would be able, once more, to employ the diplomacy of encirclement, which proved so effective against Czecho-Slovakia and against Poland. Disposing of superior resources and of a preponderance at sea, Hitler would be able to use to the full the immense prestige which would follow from an uninterrupted series of brilliant successes.

But, you may object, America is placing her resources at the disposal of Great Britain in order to assist the British people in their fight against Hitler. I entirely agree. You are giving us most valuable assistance, and we have your promise that the amount of that assistance will constantly increase. We appreciate that assistance, and we believe that it may be sufficient to turn the scales in our favor; or again it may not.

But your policy towards us is based, at present, upon this important condition: that the United States should run no risks; that she should stop short when there is a risk that an American ship might be torpedoed, that an American dollar might be lent, and not returned, that an American airplane might be supplied and not paid for. And, above all, that America might be involved in war.

NO ENGLISHMAN has the right to reproach you with this policy, for it is the self-same policy which we ourselves followed until a little more than a year ago. In our desire to avoid the short-term risk, we allowed Hitler and Mussolini to triumph in Spain, and Hitler to overrun Czecho-Slovakia. We allowed men and factories to pass into the hands of our enemies when they might have worked for our cause. And today our policy of avoiding risks has faced us with the supreme risk, the danger of annihilation. We set Hitler firmly on the road which may lead to our own destruction.

So far, all the indications go to show that America is following us down the same dark road—the road that leads to powerlessness in the face of the enemy, to the loss of security and independence of action.

We are both of us face to face with an enemy who is prepared to take every risk in his pursuit of ultimate victory. And recent history suggests that, faced with such an adversary, a country which bases its policy on the avoidance of the immediate and obvious risk is bound, in the end, to succumb. Hitler's occupation of Prague on March 15, 1939, compelled us, tardily, to face that brutal reality.

I still hope that we did not face it too late. I hope that the United States of America will realize it too, before the ships, the arsenals and the man power of Great Britain have fallen into Hitler's hands. For if that realization is delayed overlong, it will come too late.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Untruth As Weapon

ADOLF HITLER has written, as an article of faith of the German nation, that the lie is an honorable and deadly weapon which ultimately drugs the reason of the enemy and leaves him helpless. His constant reiteration of the term "warmonger" constitutes a use of this weapon, and, as a sort of decontamination measure, those who have been sprayed with the poison should remind themselves of the facts after each attack. Thus may the fumes be neutralized.

The facts, contrary to much pretentious discussion and writing, are not lost or compromised in the complications of European politics, rivalries and history.

One of the most important facts, almost forgotten now, is that the German nation, at the height of its old military power and arrogance, was responsible for bolshevism in Russia. Hitler, of course, knows this, and his clamor concerning the Jewishness of bolshevism does not remove the damned spot, although his repetition of the first great lie of Hitlerism has served to confuse many otherwise intelligent beings. The German nation of Kaiser Wilhelm provided safe conduct for Lenin from Switzerland to Russia so that Lenin and his followers could finally take Russia out of the first World War.

ALTHOUGH A LARGE proportion of the original Communists were Jews, the fact remains that nothing which they did could have been done without the first assistance of the German government, which was given recklessly but deliberately for the sake of a temporary military advantage. This fact should be reduced to handy form for desk and wall motto purposes as a ready reminder that bolshevism is a German contribution to the woes and iniquities which plague the unfortunate human race today.

Another fact which should be kept at hand and squirted about the premises of the civilized races after each attack of Hitler's new war weapon—the oft-reiterated lie—contains the truth regarding the relative militarism of Germany, on one hand, and the Allies, on the other.

It was Hitler who armed and planned for offense, and constantly paraded his legions and threatened war. The French built their Maginot Line as a defense, a solid, immovable barrier intended to withstand, not to launch, attack. Their whole strategy was defensive, and their arms were pathetic by comparison with Hitler's.

THIS WEAKNESS may be attributed to various causes, but it insults intelligence to say in one breath that the Jews hate Hitler and want him destroyed, as unquestionably they do, and in the next breath to say that they sabotaged the French effort to arm and fight him and to follow that contradiction by calling them warmongers.

It is equally incoherent to blame bolshevism and capitalism together, because they are as irreconcilable as Jewishness and Hitlerism, and will not be found on the same side of any fight.

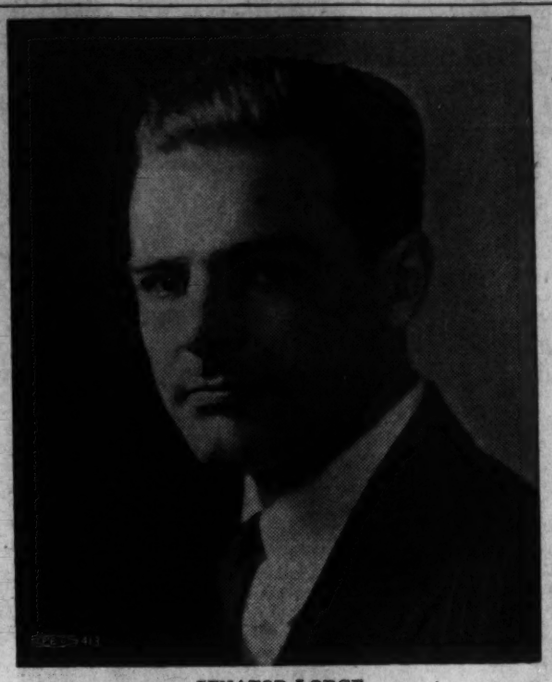
The truth reveals, also, that the British were pitifully weak in arms and trained soldiers and humiliated themselves in an attempt to avert war by appeasing Hitler, and went to war hesitantly and very ineptly only when Hitler invaded Poland in violation of his promises and to avenge inhumanities on German minorities which he discovered very abruptly not long after he had expressed his complete satisfaction with the treatment of the Germans in Poland.

The truth shows that Hitler impounded the head of the Austrian government and seized that country, and, in every case of invasion since then, has been the aggressor who carried war to smaller and weaker peoples in Denmark, Norway, Holland and Belgium.

IT WAS NOT the Allies who invaded any of these countries. They merely rushed in, bravely but hopelessly, except in the case of Denmark, which was inaccessible to resist the warmaker, and no discoveries or forgeries of documents by Hitler will ever eradicate the fact that it was Germany which invaded peaceful countries without the slightest preliminary discussion of grievances or declaration of war.

Further, as an incontaminating measure to be used after each attack of Hitler's weapon of the new warfare, it should be instantly remembered that the despised bolshevism of Russia, which Hitler has denounced with shrewish fury on many occasions, has been his ally in this war, and gave him the "go-ahead" last summer in the Nazi-Bolshevik treaty of alliance.

This war would not have occurred at all if Joseph Stalin had not joined Hitler as his ally against the Christian peoples. And if Jewishness actually be Hitler's favorite foe, how odd it is that he joined bolshevism in war and directed that war against nations which were predominantly Christian or, anyway, non-Jewish.



SENATOR LODGE

In his fight for a pledge to compulsory military training at the Republican convention, writes Ernest Lindley, touched one of the issues which will test political talents in the next few months.

Stiff Political Test

By Ernest K. Lindley

The Issue Of Conscription

IN POLITICAL campaigns most public office seekers dread being compeled to take or advocate action which may offend large groups of voters in their constituencies. They dread most of all being forced to take a stand on issues on which public opinion has not crystallized or may be changed sharply by subsequent events.

Thus increases in taxes ordinarily are shunned like the plague in election years. The higher taxes voted by Congress this spring were no exception to the underlying rule. Congress was not suddenly transformed into a body of courageous superpatriots determined to do what they felt the national interest required, irrespective of public opinion. It acted only when it was convinced that the voters back home were demanding higher taxes.

The next few months will place an almost unprecedented strain on the ears, eyes, noses and intuition of the office seekers of both parties, especially the candidates for President, the Senate, and the House of Representatives. For almost certainly they will have to act or take definite stands on matters of the gravest import.

CONSCRIPTION seems likely to be the first test. The issue was shunned by both national conventions. At Philadelphia, Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, fought for a pledge to compulsory military training, but he was able to muster only a meager handful of supporters. At Chicago no serious effort was made to commit the Democratic Party to conscription. If it had been made it would have failed or, at least, would have provoked a bitter floor fight and perhaps impelled several influential Democrats openly to bolt the party.

Politicians in both parties would feel much safer if debates and action on conscription could be postponed until after the election. The President's radio address to the Chicago convention contained a reminder, however, that the question of compulsory military service cannot be dodged and a strong hint that it cannot be postponed.

We have embarked on a vast rearmament program. The latest appropriations and authorizations for it were voted practically unanimously. Obviously, the ships, tanks, guns and airplanes we are building will be useless unless we have the men trained to use them. With all the bottlenecks in production which must be broken or widened, we probably will be getting airplanes a year hence faster than we can train men to pilot them. Even less skilled military jobs require extensive training and months of hardening.

THE ARMY has been having a difficult time getting enough voluntary recruits to build up to the old authorized peacetime strength of 280,000 men. It is now authorized to recruit up to 375,000 men. The National Guard also will be called out gradually, but privates and noncommissioned officers with dependents will be allowed to resign. This will cut down the National Guard, which even now is far short of its authorized strength.

The upshot is that the Army wants 400,000 men in October, and another 400,000 by next April, or perhaps as early as January. This demand is correlated to the big program of arms-making on which we have now embarked. New equipment won't be ready for 400,000 conscripted men this fall, but we have plenty of rifles and miscellaneous old equipment which will serve for training purposes.

A high-pressure publicity campaign, put on with the aid of "slacker" and other epithets to shame men into enlisting, might fill out the Army with "voluntary" recruits. But this method works to the advantage of the less patriotic and less sensitive. It is essentially undemocratic, and the type of publicity campaign it requires would leave scars of hard feeling in every community.

SOME FORM of compulsory service seems to be necessary. The Army prefers the selective draft, after the World War pattern, with the first call on men aged 21 to 30, without dependents. The chief alternative would be to call out all young men of a particular age say 18 or 21. But the Army is not equipped to handle—and does not want—1,200,000 men at one time. And there are about that many in each year group in the age range 18 to 25. For immediate purposes the Army's plan seems superior, even though eventually we require military training for every boy when he attains a particular age or, as the President has suggested, institute universal service embracing noncombatant training as well, for both boys and girls.

Weeks and days count in rearming the country. The politicians would be relieved if the conscription question could be postponed until January, or even until mid-November. But if it means a delay of from four to six months in getting an adequate Army, the Nation can't afford to appease the politicians. At present the man power for our Army isn't even "on order."

Books And Things

By Alfred Kazin

LAWRENCE EDWARD WATKIN'S "Geese in the Forum" (Knopf, $2.50) is a comedy of Southern college life. It has its quasi-serious purpose, true. Mr. Watkin, being a professor himself, has had enough of the national myth which regards all college professors as funny people and the absent-minded professor as the only heir apparent to the traveling salesman. So he has set out to prove that college professors are real, folksy, practical, even rough. But the substance of his book is its sustainedly hilarious description of Southern college folkways, and his bitterness merely adds spice.

Here, not always in cap and gown, is the faculty of dear old Beauregard, which like most faculties has its diverse skills, its morons, its almost maniacal jealousies, its plodding scholars and occasional creative minds. The president (Mr. Watkin has kept to the myth a little) is a profoundly stuffed shirt, rather excessively illiterate, but full of the proper reverence for trustees. The trustees are a motley group with a fine reputation in Wall Street, and things start popping when Beauregard's history department hires a young instructor who just happens, coincidentally, to be the son-in-law of a particularly wealthy New York trustee.

For young John Burgess, Southern-born and bred, does not like his father-in-law's shadow hanging over him, though his fashionable New York wife, Conover, does. John wants to write his studies in American history, he wants to teach and be taught, but Conover's ambitions are too much for him. Within nine months of his appointment John is offered an associate professorship and a raise, soon after a deanship. Conover's snobbery meanwhile embarrasses him, college jealousies—of which there were perhaps more than there were books in the library—are rampant, and John's only friends try to fight President Burkholder's passion for diverting endowment funds from scholarship to publicity. The results get a little complicated, certainly excessively silly, at times, but there are some wonderful moments.

Imaginary Interviews: Roosevelt and Farley

Franklin—So you're really going into baseball?

Jim—Yes. After the last eight years in politics it seems a great business.

Franklin—What's baseball got that politics hasn't got?

Jim—Well, for one thing, the rules are accepted as applying to everybody on the team.

* * * *

Franklin—I didn't know you were so anxious to get into baseball.

Jim—And I didn't know you were so anxious to stay in the White House.

Franklin—What's the big appeal of the game to you, Jim?

Jim—Among other things, there's never any doubt about who's running.

* * * *

Franklin—I thought you had a bright future in the Democratic party, Jim.

Jim—So did I.

Franklin—I hate to see you go. Don't you like it here with me?

Jim—It was all right as long as I knew what position I was playing and who was at bat.

Franklin—You were always a good first baseman.

Jim—That was my idea, too, up to the time I discovered I was wearing a catcher's mask.

Franklin—Have you any objection to a catcher's mask?

Jim—Not when I know what's being thrown at me.

* * * *

Franklin—I hear you paid $4,000,000,000 for the Yanks.

Jim—Million, not billion.

Franklin—My goodness! Are there still some people who deal in mere millions? Where did you get that much money, Jim? You never were in the movies or on the air or on any newspaper staff.

Jim—It was one of the few cases in the country in which a Democrat and $4,000,000 got together on something that was not a Federal relief project.

Franklin—Aren't the Yanks a relief project?

Jim—Not yet. They only looked that way the first part of the season.

* * * *

Franklin—Don't you think you will feel strange going around the country with a lot of baseball players?

Jim—Why?

Franklin—Because you've been so long going around with politicians.

Jim—It's the same thing, except that in baseball, spiking is illegal.

Jim—Neither are the Democrats.

The Touchstone

By Barnet Nover

The Trusteeship Issue

Havana, July 23.

AS THE HAVANA meeting of American foreign ministers gets under way, three great problems are uppermost in the minds of the delegates.

The first is what can be done to ease the disastrous impact of the war on the economic life of the republics of this hemisphere as well as what steps ought to be taken to cushion this hemisphere against the economic consequences of a totalitarian victory. The second involves the threat to American security from "activities directed from without the hemisphere but which operate within our respective borders," to quote what Secretary Hull said in his speech to the conference Monday. The third has to do with the fate of the American colonies of European nations which have been or may be overrun by the Third Reich.

ON THE ECONOMIC problem there are as many points of view as there are nations represented at this meeting. The result, temporarily, is a state of confusion which may be resolved as the various specific suggestions advanced by Mr. Hull and the plans of other delegates are subjected to examination and discussion.

In contrast to this confusion is the apparent unanimity of attitude on the Fifth Column issue. There is not a delegation represented at the Havana parley which is not to a greater or lesser degree concerned by the open and covert activities within the borders of their nation of subversive elements representing foreign governments. They would like to do something about it. They would particularly like to do something in concert. But it may prove difficult for the conference to agree on specific measures to combat a danger which all the delegates recognize to be real and pressing.

The touchstone of the success or failure which the meeting is likely to achieve on the various issues it is called upon to consider may be the attitude displayed and the action taken on the question of the transfer of sovereignty. For this issue is the nearest the delegates are likely to get at this meeting to the defense problem.

IN HIS SPEECH to the conference Monday, Secretary Hull indorsed the proposal, first presented by Cuba, that a system of collective trusteeship be created and exercised in the name of all the American republics over European possessions threatened by a change of status.

Such a system, he indicated, "must not carry with it any thought of the creation of a special interest by any American republic." Its purpose must be, he said, to "further the interests and security of all the American nations as well as the interest of the region in question." Moreover, he added, "as soon as the conditions permit, the region should be restored to its original sovereign or be declared independent when able to establish and maintain stable self-government."

This plan is both realistic and statesmanlike. It takes into account the very obvious fact that if these possessions fall directly or indirectly into the hands of the totalitarian powers the security of all New World nations will be threatened. It also constitutes on the part of the United States an attempt to prevent charges from arising that this nation is seeking to make use of the international situation to embark on a program of imperialistic expansion. If this plan is adopted, any arrangement that would be made for the temporary administration of European colonies in this hemisphere would have the full approval of all 21 American republics.

Yet the fact cannot be ignored that if Germany is victorious and insists, as the reward of her victory, on receiving the American possessions of defeated European nations, any measure taken on this side effectively to prevent such transfer of sovereignty would be tantamount to an act of war, whether or not accompanied or followed by forcible measures.

IN TAKING a stand on this issue, the other republics are called upon to decide not merely a juridical question, namely, the legal status of any European colonies whose sovereign has been defeated in war, but also a major question of policy, i. e., whether they are individually prepared to take a strong stand against the would-be totalitarian masters of Europe and are willing to carry out to wherever it may lead the principle of American solidarity.

It will not prove an easy decision for some of them to make. In making up their minds as to what should be done regarding the colonies the republics of this hemisphere will have to weigh and balance many possibilities and several sets of alternatives. Since it is the possibility of a German victory in Europe which lies at the basis of much of the Havana discussions, each of the governments represented will have to decide to what extent such a victory will directly imperil them and whether it would not be wiser to make peace with the victor, even on his terms, than to court his displeasure.

It is certain that Germany will do all in her power to bring home to the Latin-American nations the wisdom of playing ball with the Third Reich and doing nothing to hamper her. The American republics will also have to decide whether, if they refuse to play that game, the United Sates can provide them with the military, naval and economic protection they may need to remain secure and independent. The discussion of the trusteeship plan may thus provide a real clew to what the Havana meeting may achieve in other fields.

"Care to look over this evidence before it goes off, Chief?"

The Heat? Pshaw . . .

Maintaining a cool head . . .

JACK GOLDSMITH, 67, has evolved a system to beat the heat. It's so simple that you'll wonder why you didn't think of it yourself.

The hot weather, of course, got Goldsmith thinking about it. Two weeks ago the abnormal heat had prostrated him as he worked at his trade—sign painting. It happened several times before, so Goldsmith got to thinking about how he could outfox the sun, heat and humidity.

Well, he did it. And he believes his idea will revolutionize the heat-beating industry.

GOLDSMITH got himself a small water bottle, filled it with water and ice and inserted it under his panama hat. This combination he placed on his head, separating the water bottle from his scalp by means of two or three handkerchiefs.

"The handkerchiefs control the ice-conditioning," explained Goldsmith. "If the system gets too cool, you merely add another handkerchief."

What about the hat? The ice-conditioning system doesn't bother it at all, according to Goldsmith, and he ought to know.

"The system also serves a second purpose," its inventor pointed out. "I carry a paper cup or two and when I am thirsty, I can pour myself a cold drink of water. Sometimes I fill it with beer or coca-cola.

"AND it's already proven its first-aid value. A friend of mine was in a bad way the other day. A drink from the ice-conditioner fixed him up again."

Goldsmith, who lives at 907 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, wants to share his idea with the rest of heat-suffering Washington.

"Of course, some people will believe I'm eccentric because the idea is so simple. But it's also practical. It works. Say, I don't worry much about the heat."

Democracy Reigns In Judiciary Square

By Dillard Stokes.

WITHIN the five stone piles that circle Judiciary Square, the courts unceasingly guard the liberties of this Republic.

And outside, in the Square, up to the very portals of the law courts, children enjoy these liberties. It is thus but a step, the thickness of a wall, from the machinery of democracy to its practice.

Because these buildings are air conditioned, their windows and their doors are closed about the measured accents of the grave and black-robed justices.

Undisturbed by the clamor of the youngsters, these utterances of justice in Judiciary Square are a countermelody of the Song of the Square, blending into a harmonious whole with gleeful laughter and fervent admonition to "knock it over the statue."

Batter up

FOR under the old shade trees and across the new grass of this Square, all day the children scamper. They show up in bathing suits, and sometimes (the very little ones) in no clothes at all, to splash in the Square's fountain.

Behind the new and not yet weathered Police Court, there is a makeshift ball ground.

There is another ball ground next to the District Court. There, too, are benches, where little girls set up housekeeping with dolls and toy furniture.

Between the Police Court and the Municipal Court children climb over the statue of Gen. Jose San Martin, who loved liberty, too, and was winning great battles for it at Lima, Ayacucho and Junin when the solid brick walls of the District Court were being raised in the 1820's.

There is new grass all over the Square, kept alive these days by a battery of revolving sprays. Kept cool and clean at the same time are children who have taken the sprays for outdoor showers. In the shade, where the grass is not wet, tired men and women sprawl.

ON the very walls of the building of justice, the children assert the right of the First Amendment, publishing to the world in chalked legend that "Pete Loves Annie."

There may be the long faced and the blue nosed who will say the Square is a little short of dignity. Instead there is happiness. And if, as is right likely, there be ghosts in so ancient a structure as the District Court, among them will doubtless be the shade of United States Attorney Francis Scott Key, whose offices overlooked these grounds. Key will not miss the dignity.

Rather, the man who wrote the Star-Spangled Banner would love the Square as it is. His democracy was none of your prim and prissy sort. He saw in the smoke above Fort McHenry something nobler and more beautiful than punctilio. That ideal, of which he sang and for which he fought, lives on in the Square today, on the old ground beneath the windows of his office, where he served eight years as attorney of the Republic.

So we may be sure that he will not be thinking of dignity, but will smile upon the clamoring children and say, in the deathless words of the anthem:

"Oh, thus be it ever when free men shall stand
"Between their loved homes and war's desolations!
"Blessed with victory and peace, may the heav'n-rescued land
"Praise The Power that hath made and preserved us a Nation!"

Draft System Is Indorsed By Educators

Policy-Forming Group Urges Relentless Fight On Totalitarian Threat

A relentless fight against the threat of totalitarianism was strongly urged yesterday by the policy makers of America's educational system.

Indorsing selective compulsory military training as one means of meeting the authoritarian menace, the educational policies commission issued a 6,000-word statement, copies of which already are on their way to 5,000 leading educators.

The E. P. C. was created in 1935 jointly by the National Education Association and American Association of School Administrators to chart policies. Its chairman is Alexander J. Stoddard, superintendent of Philadelphia public schools, and members include Edmund E. Day, president of Cornell University; United States Commissioner of Education John W. Studebaker and George F. Zook, president of the American Council on Education.

"Without the loss of a single day," says the commission's report, "the American people should move to achieve the greatest possible military strength in the shortest possible time.

"If the totalitarian states should eventually triumph throughout the Eastern Hemisphere and if American democracy should resist successfully their first onslaughts in the West, the task of building a long-time program of defense, probably involving universal military training in some form, would require major attention."

The policy-making body went on record in favor of "a fair and impartial system of selective compulsory military training and service . . . limited to men 21 years of age and over."

All American schools were urged to share in laying the physical and mental groundwork for effective military service and "provide technical training which the conduct of modern war requires, and to clarify the goals and to include the loyalties basic to a society of free men."

New Dealers Put Ideas Above Party

W. Douglas later on will be matched by a counter New Deal vote offensive. Bids will be made for support from the two big labor organizations, liberal Republicans and left-wing minority parties.

Indications that the Farmer-Labor Party may accept any overtures and go along with Roosevelt came yesterday with the announcement by Representative Buckler (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, that he is for a third term and thinks Roosevelt will carry his State. Buckler is filing for reelection tomorrow, and said he hoped he would have no Democratic opposition.

La Follette Silent

From Senator La Follette and Progressive Party leaders, silent to date on the third term and at odds with the President on foreign policy, came no word. La Follette, who is up for reelection, is expected to reach his decision in the next few days.

While an active campaign will be waged in the South to combat the "Willkie club" upsurge there, no gestures of comfort to Democratic conservatives apparently are planned or expected.

One antithird term Southern Senator said yesterday he was sure his Dixie colleagues would be given only the choice of: "Go along with Roosevelt or quit," on the theory that the "solid South" again will stay solid.

He said his personal belief was "very few will quit" although upward of a score of senatorial dissenters might conduct a virtual campaign sitdown.

Among Senate Democrats who have opposed a third term, three indicated yesterday they would vote for Roosevelt. But Southern members of this group were silent.

Habit Life-Long

Senator Adams, of Colorado, said: "I am in the habit of supporting the Democratic ticket, and that is a life-long habit."

Senator Wheeler, of Montana, and Senator Van Nuys, of Indiana, both said they would vote for President Roosevelt in November.

But Van Nuys added: "I'm afraid that the third-term issue will be an important factor with many voters."

Privately, many of the Southern contingent were still talking about the unsuccessful Democratic "purge" effort of 1938 and predicting that this time it will be carried fully into effect so far as conservative influence on the Democratic National Committee is concerned.

Other developments:

Friends of Vice President Garner, who left Washington Monday, "reserving a decision" on whether he is coming back, said they knew for a fact that Garner will be back on the Senate rostrum presiding when the curtain rings down on the session.

Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina, whose floor work for Roosevelt at Chicago probably salvaged the first ballot nomination of Secretary Wallace, left for a vacation in his native State.

Undersecretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard was reported slated to be acting Secretary of Agriculture in case Wallace changes his mind and takes a campaign leave of absence from his job. Wickard will be Wallace's personal campaign manager.

Windsors Expect To Leave Soon

Lisbon, July 23 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor and his American-born duchess probably will leave early in August for America en route to his new post as governor and commander-in-chief of the Bahamas, it was reported today.

One reason for the failure of the Windsors to leave sooner, it was said, was the delay in the arrival of their luggage and silver from France.

Frances Parkinson Keyes Judges Dolls at Playground

Author Shows Her Own Collection At Garfield Park

Neither heat nor the threatened downpour of yesterday afternoon deterred Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes, noted author and doll collector, from keeping her date with the children of Garfield Playground, Virginia avenue and Second street, as a judge of their annual doll show.

With Joseph Cohen, the other judge, she selected the largest, smallest, oldest, best dressed and most-played-with dolls and then showed the children a group from her own collection, including her childhood favorite, Carol.

Mrs. Keyes said that when she was 8 years old, she made all of Carol's clothes. Other dolls she showed were from Panama, Spain, Switzerland and France.

Nearly 70 little girls, seated with their dolls in their arms were gathered in the shade to hear her, and the boys who had deserted their ball games, stood in the background. One who was independent enough to grin at the jibes of his fellows, entered a Pinnochio doll and took first prize for the cutest. He was Dave Fineran, 116 C street southeast. Second prize in this class went to Dolores Hiponia for her Shirley Temple doll.

There was one casualty among the entries. Little Billy Smoraldo, 135 D street southeast, aged 21 months, had been provided with a large chocolate doll but he bit off a large portion of its head as he sat on his mother's lap awaiting the judging. With his entry thus disqualified, he ate other portions with evident satisfaction as he watched the judging of china, and rag varieties.

The doll that took second prize in the class for the oldest also was brought by a boy, Donald Braund, but he refused to hold it and Rita Johnson took care of it for him. It was bought at Kann's store in 1887 by his grandmother, Mrs. David Meredith, and wore a quaint white, lace-trimmed dress and striped stockings with black velvet shoes.

Frist prize for the oldest, went to Barbara Ann Hill, 602 G street southeast, who brought a small china doll that had belonged to her great grandmother and was 86 years old. Third in this class went to Barbara Anna Havenen, 101 E street southeast.

Mrs. Evelyn Sheridan, director of the playground, who is "Miss Susie" to the children, conducted the contest.

Other winners were Gwendolyn Cavanaugh, 537 Second street southeast, for the best old-fashioned doll. It was 29 years old and wore clothes her mother had made for it that long ago, including a black brocaded coat, fur trimmed.

Draft Bill Wins Approval Of Senate Committeemen

has not yet been passed on by the committee.

Local boards would pass on such deferment in the same manner as in World War days, it was said. Another section of the revised bill not yet approved by the committee makes executive officers of the Government, judges of all United States courts, members of State Legislatures, State executive officers and judges of all State courts except "inferior courts" exempt from military service.

Under the original measure only Cabinet members, the Vice President, members of Congress, members of the Supreme Court and State governors were exempt. These officials would also be exempt under the new bill.

Prepared by Army

The revised draft, Chairman Sheppard stated, was prepared by the War Department after conferences with the Navy, National Guard, and the sponsors of the legislation, the Citizen's Military Training Corps Association.

Eseablishment of a training period of one year, instead of the 8-month period set in the original bill, or the 15 to 18 months period asked by the War Department, was accepted by Army officials, Sheppard stated.

Other changes approved by the committee include substitution of the maximum age of 64 instead of 65; a declaration that the National Guard should be retained as an integral part of the Nation's defenses; continuation of voluntary enlistments in all branches of the service, and permission for anyone to voluntarily enlist for the year's training ahead of the time he might be drafted.

No Provision for Families

Men drafted are placed in the reserve after conclusion of their year's training for a period of ten years or until they are 45. During this period they are subject to later training.

No provision is made for family allowances for men with dependents, but this might come later if any men with families are called, officials said. A section of the revised bill, not yet passed on by the committee, declares the intent of Congress that employers should rehire drafted men at the conclusion of their military service.

Chairman Sheppard said there was some sentiment in the committee in favor of limiting the draft to men 21 to 31 years old, but that the majority had approved making the wider group subject to service.

Holbrook Dairy Wins Injunction In Milk Pact Fight

The Holbrook Farms Dairy, Brentwood, Md., appeared yesterday to be assured of immunity until October from enforcement of the Washington Milk Marketing Agreement, but the dairy may have to post a bond of $30,000 to assure that it will obey the agreement if it should be upheld by the District Court.

The dairy claims that all its business is done in Maryland and that consequently the Federal Government has no power to regulate it.

Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat of the District Court granted a temporary injunction which protected the dairy against enforcement of the agreement until the case was tried. A Government motion to dismiss this injunction was denied by Justice Bolitha J. Laws.

However, said Justice Laws, the Government's request for a $30,000 bond deserved a hearing, which was set for 9 a. m. today

Huff Reappointed To Head District Penal Institutions

The Commissioners yesterday reappointed Ray L. Huff as superintendent of District penal institutions less than six weeks after he resigned to accept the McNeil Island wardenship. He was stricken on the way to the new post and spent most of his time since his resignation at Mount Alto Hospital.

The reappointment of Huff by the Commissioners followed a special request by the Board of Public Welfare and the refusal of the Commissioners to accept the welfare board's first candidate, Claude O. Botkin, superintendent of the reformatory.

U. S. Proposes Hemisphere Mandate

to be built for the projected road.

The first article of the United States' proposal affirms the principle of nonrecognition and nonacceptance of any change of sovereignty over any European possessions in this hemisphere.

The proposal also insists that any action regarding European possessions must be a joint American affair. It stipulates that each American republic must be represented on a commission for actual government of the colonies during the mandate period.

Inhabitants of mandated territories would be allowed the "most ample" control possible over their internal affairs.

The convention must be ratified by each nation before it is effective. Its accompanying resolution was designed for any situation arising from the change, or threatened change, of the sovereignty of the colonies which might come before the convention is operative.

United States Secretary of State Hull was elected president of the peace commission as the delegates began serious work on problems of hemisphere defense and integrity.

Leopold Melo, head of the Argentine delegation, was named president of the neutrality commission, and Eduardo Suarez, Mexican finance minister, was elected chairman of the economics commission.

Axis Papers Predict Conference Failure

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Rome, July 23.—The national interests of both the Argentine Republic and Brazil, which conflict with those of the United States, may be counted upon to prevent any real success of the second Inter-American Conference of foreign ministers at Havana, the peoples of the Berlin-Rome Axis powers were being informed today.

After the conference has failed and Germany has completed her successful invasion of England, it was learned here, a campaign already planned by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, the genius of totalitarian commercial expansion, will be launched for further conquest of Latin American trade.

Any desire for American mandates over possessions in the Western Hemisphere now held by nations about to be defeated must clash with the Argentinian interest in the Falkland Islands, it was said here. These islands are a natural part of Argentina and are invaluable to that country in any scheme of its own defenses, it was said.

A correspondent of Il Giornale d'Italia in Havana noted with satisfaction that Dr. Jose Marie Cantilo, Argentine chancellor, has declared that American trade agreements must leave Argentina free to trade in Europe according to its own national interests. Political trends in Brazil under President Getulio Vargas are also considered here to mean that Brazil is more closely tied to a new Europe of the totalitarian order than to the North American Continent.

The new scheme for barter commerce with Latin America, in which gold will not be a factor, is expected here to be worked out according to the classic totalitarian formulas. Vigorous propaganda and political pressure will be the handmaidens of trade.

Madrid Papers Attack U. S.

Madrid, July 23 (AP).—the newspaper, El Alcazar, in an editorial today declared the Pan-American conference as Havana is "doomed to failure."

"Washington has forgotten, or pretends to forget that Hispano-American peoples already have reached a mature age and therefore have the necessary intelligence to see through the mischievous purposes of Yankee politicians," the paper said. "This time, as on other recent occasions, the Yankee mask will not serve to hide the abortionist aims of Washington."

War Tasks Occupying Bermuda, Says Mrs. Pell

Wife of State Department Aide Tells Of Transformation of Island Paradise

By Carolyn Bell

Bermuda, once an island of caretree bicyclists, is buckling down to grim war work these days, according to Mrs. Robert Pell, who arrived here the other day to see her busy husband who is burning the midnight oil at the State Department.

A possible food scarcity is one of the problems facing those who linger in the erstwhile paradise, although nothing of the sort has happened as yet. Pleasant days on the beach are often interrupted by war bulletins. Excitement was rampant some weeks ago when the rumor was circulated that England would send thousands of children to Bermuda. Delighted to do their part, the islanders scurried around making preparations, but so far nothing has come of the idea.

With virtually no tourists on the island, the populace is made up mostly of refugees and the Royal Navy set. Although war work, such as knitting, bandage rolling and what not, takes up a good deal of time, swimming, tennis and bicycling are still induged in.

Leased Home With Garden

Bonnie Mrs. Pell with her two children left early in June for Bermuda, where she had leased a home at Paget. A pretty place on the water, it has a lovely garden going down to the sea. When Mrs. Pell boarded the clipper several days ago for home she left her children in Bermuda.

Her prime interest in coming to Washington was to coax her husband off on a much-needed holiday to Bermuda. Mr. Pell is the assistant chief of the European Division of the State Department. She hopes to whisk him off by the first week in August.

Mrs. Pell is in hopes of gathering up a few refugee children herself. She has offered a haven to several of her cousins (Mrs. Pell is British) who live at Hove in Sussex, England, but with evacuation plans at a standstill she is in doubt whether they will be able to leave England.

When Mrs. Pell left for Bermuda in June they leased their lovely old Virginia home, Cornwallis, to the Minister of Yugoslavia and Mme. Fototich, who have done a good deal of entertaining there this summer.

Frances Keyes Off to Mexico

But to change the subject abruptly: The incomparable Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes will pack up shortly, in two weeks to be exact, to be off to Mexico City on a writing assignment. With her fifteenth book due on the bookstalls in October, the widow of Senator Keyes has yet another idea up her sleeve—not to be divulged as yet.

The fact that her latest story, "The Sublime Shepherdess," came out last spring and that her next novel is due in the fall, brought forth a typical witticism from the famed authoress, "Yes, sinners in the fall and saints in spring."

Although Mrs. Keyes will make Mexico City her headquarters, she plans short jaunts all over the countryside. Her return to her house in Alexandria is not definite, but she plans to be back in time to do some large-scale fall planting.

Nobody Home Law Refuted By Club Crowds

Anyone who's under the impression that "there's absolutely nobody in town" should go out to the Chevy Chase Club and he will find dozens of his friends. Particularly during the heat wave is the cool green swimming pool of the club in great demand.

Mornings the pool is mostly occupied by children, while mothers or nurses look on from chairs under the trees. Late in the afternoon the fathers drive out from their offices to join their families for a pleasant hour of "coolth."

The other afternoon Mrs. Henry Stimson motored out to the club to watch the swimmers. The wife of the new Secretary of War has just joined her husband at their estate Woodley.

Others glimpsed at the club included Mrs. William MacCracken, whose young daughter, Nell, is just beginning swimming lessons; Mrs. Thomas Bradley, lunching with Mrs. Fontaine Bradley; the Blaise de Sibours, Miss Anne Carter Green, Miss Marion Shouse, accompanied by Mrs. Corcoran Thom, jr., and Commander William D. Thomas. The latter has moved out to the club for the rest of the hot months.

Mrs. Richard Buchanan was watching her daughter, pretty Ann Buchanan, swimming in the pool. Miss Ann will leave tomorrow for New York to see her talented older sister, Aileen, perform in "Louisiana Purchase," and also to visit the World's Fair.

Mrs. Buchanan was saying that she certainly feels sorry for Aileen during heat waves. One of her numbers, in which the dancers dress up as animals, calls for the performers to wear woolen suits of underwear under their costumes. However, she reports that her daughter is having a wonderful time and wouldn't give it up for anything.

Patricia Hill To Give Party For Honor Guest

Miss Patricia Hill, daughter of Mrs. Uline Hill, has issued informal invitations via telephone for a garden party tomorrow afternoon. Honor guest will be Miss Barbara Manton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Manton, of Toledo, Ohio, who is visiting here.

The party will be given from 5:30 until 7 o'clock on the spacious grounds of the Hill place on Ellicott street—which boasts of 2½ acres of flowers.

Mrs. Hill and her debutante daughter plan to leave some time in August for an extended visit. They will stop in Toledo, Detroit, Canada, and end up in Cape May, N. J.

Madame Chairman

UNLESS New York friends prevail on her to spend a few days there, Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, will return to headquarters, 1734 N street, tomorrow. With more than 20 other prominent members of the federation including Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, of this city, she arrived yesterday afternoon aboard the Santa Clara, of the Grace Line, from a two-months' Good Neighbor tour of South America.

A dinner in honor of the members of the party was scheduled last night at the World's Fair, sponsored by an Inter-American group. Mrs. Wiley expects to remain in New York for a week or more before returning to the Capital.

The Good Neighbor tour of the General Federation members included visits to educational, cultural and welfare institutions of the various South American countries, conferences with leaders in these fields and contact with club women from the United States who are now residents of the Latin-American countries and have formed clubs affiliated with the federation.

Preparations for the trip and for reports of it which will go to clubs all over the country, was made last season by means of a good neighbor tour study program sponsored by the international relations department of the federation. Mrs. Frederic Beggs, of New Jersey, department chairman, received the cooperation of the Pan American Union in working out the program, of which many clubs took advantage.

COFFEE TAKES PRECEDENCE—So far as Zeta Chapter of Sigma Kappa is concerned, coffee outranks tea this season.

This morning, from 10 to 12, the chapter members who are not off on vacations, will entertain at a "coffee" in the sorority rooms, 2129 G street. The girls decided on this kind of a party, where coffee and doughnuts will be served, as cooler and more interesting than a tea in the heat of the late afternoon. It is planned so as to meet some of the students who will enter George Washington University in the fall. Nearly 100 invitations were sent out for the affair, each one decorated with a little hand-painted figure of a college girl in sports tog, done by Muriel Rafferty, who is in charge of arrangements and is a gifted young artist.

Assisting her are Jeanne Spaulding, Betty R. Jones and Laurene Edwards.

YEARBOOK ISSUED — The 1940-41 yearbook of the Capitol Hill History Club has just been issued.

The club program does not reflect in any marked way the trend of world events although, on December 11, there will be a paper on "Hitler and Stalin, Leaders of Millions" as well as one on "Color Photography and Painting."

There is wide variety of subject matter for the season, under the heading of "History of Arts and Sciences." October 9, "David Livingston, A Missionary" and "Shelters, Houses and Abodes" will be subjects; on October 23, "Joseph of Egypt" and Shark Fishing—Million Dollar Industry" are listed. On January 22, the two papers will be "Relief, Security and Obligations" and "Cleopatra and Caesar, Infatuated Rulers."

Among other topics will be such personalities as Edison, Coolidge, Jane Addams, William Allen White and Hippocrates and such matters of current interest as "Transportation," "Sales, Promotions, Protection of Consumers" and "Physical Adornments, Past and Present."

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

ALTHOUGH HAVANA is tropical and can't be any too cool at this time of year, one feels like congratulating the delegates to the Havana conference on escaping these last few hot days in Washington.

When Secretary Hull and the United States delegation entrained for Havana they were seen off by the entire staff of the Cuban Embassy, from the Ambassador, Senor Martinez Fraga, to the youngest attache, Joe de Lasa. Senora de Baron, wife of the Counselor, presented Mrs. Hull with an enormous bouquet of red roses, a gala touch in the Union Station.

In fact the whole station resembled a diplomatic levee, with Capt. Alfaro, the Ecuadorean Ambassador, and Brazilian Ambassador and Senhora Martins among those present. Pretty Senhora Martins, arriving a little late, made a noble sprint for the official train and, though hampered by high heels and the biggest straw hat in existence, got there in time to give a bon voyage handshake to the departing travelers.

The dean of the Diplomatic Corps, Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander, had left for the conference by plane the preceding day, as had the Argentine Ambassador and Senora de Espil.

Others escaping Washington's own particular brand of heat, though not exactly in the same way, were Mr. and Mrs. Northam Griggs and Mr. and Mrs. George Howe, who drove down to Rehoboth Beach in the Griggs' snappy maroon car.

The Howes will soon be moving again, and seem to be looking forward to it with extraordinary calm, the reason for their many moves being that when Mr. Howe does over a house it is so attractive that someone immediately buys it right out from under them.

THE PRESENT HOWE habitat on P street, inaugurated last spring by the amusing costume dance at which the Edward Burlings, jr., were joint hosts, has been bought by Dr. and Mrs. Lauriston Hardin. George and "Bussy" Howe, nothing daunted, have bought another house on P street a bit nearer to Wisconsin avenue and will begin to do it over at once. At this point their friends will refuse to say again, "the Howes are permanently settled," but will rather wonder who will be lucky enough to dispossess them.

Also at Rehoboth recently was hard-worked James Clement Dunn, who came down for one cool night's sleep and a dip in the ocean before returning to his desk at the Deparement of State.

Dancing at the Rehoboth-Indian Beach Club one evening was a gay party of young Washingtonians among whom I spotted lovely Peggy Townsend and Johnny Galliher. And on Sunday night Delaware's senior Senator, John G. Townsend, jr.—no relation to Peggy, I believe—entertained a large family party at the club's weekly buffet supper.

These Sunday night buffet suppers have become very popular since they were started a few weeks ago. A tempting buffet is set in the middle of the dance floor, which is screened and under cover. The guests serve themselves from an array of dishes—the club has the best food imaginable—and eat at small tables, placed around the edge of the dance floor.

ALSO HAVING a family party at the club Sunday night were Mrs. Ernest Scheonfeld, and Mrs. A. H. Ferrandou and their two attractive subdebutante daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Watson, of Washington, spent several days at the Henlopen Hotel.

Judge and Mrs. Ernest Van Fossan, who have been vacationing at Evergreens-by-the-Sea at Rehoboth, have returned to Washington.

Three of Rehoboth's celebrities who have arrived back from the Chicago convention are newswriters Raymond Clapper and Turner Catledge and cartoonist Harold Talburt. Of the three Mr. Talburt looks far less exhausted by the ordeal. I suppose this means that a political convention is easier to take from a humorous angle than from a serious one.

Miss Cochrane Weds Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Cochrane will entertain at an informal reception this evening in honor of their daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Cochrane, whose marriage to William Arthur Hallett will take place on Saturday morning at Sacred Heart Church. Msgr. James Smith will officiate at the 9 o'clock ceremony.

Miss Nancy Lee Cochrane will be maid of honor for her sister along with Miss Margaret Jonscher. Richard Hallett will be best man for his brother. Following the ceremony there will be a wedding breakfast at 2460 Sixteenth street northwest.

In town for the ceremony as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cochrane are the bride-elect's cousins, Miss Ola Belle Miller, of Mooresville, N. C.; Miss Jean Purcell, of Philadelphia, and Miss Martha Waugh, of Statesville, N. C.

Anne Greene Fetes Players

Miss Anne Louis Greene entertained at a party last evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Walter Greene, on Drummond avenue, in Chevy Chase.

Guests of honor at the party were 25 of the musicians who were to have played in the All-Youth concert, led by Leopold Stokowski, at the Watergate last evening. However, the concert was postponed because of rain. Just as their hostess, these youngsters were students at the Curtis Institute of usic in Philadelphia. Miss Greene plays the harp.

Assisting Miss Greene were Miss Sylvia Meyer, harpist with the National Symphony Orchestra, and Miss Constance Russell, well-known pianist in Washington.

Eva Spilman L. M. Hamilton Marry Today

Quiet Ceremony Will Take Place In Virginia Home

Mrs. Eva Stewart Spilman, daughter of Percy Hamilton Stewart and the late Mrs. Stewart, of Plainfield, N. J., will be married today at her home at The Plains, Va., to Laurens M. Hamilton, of Palm Beach, Fla., in the presence of members of the immediate families.

Mrs. Spilman, the former Miss Eva Cochran Stewart, is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Francis Cochran. She was married in 1920 to Harvey Wallace Shaffer, from whom she was divorced in 1933. They have two children, H. Wallace Shaffer, jr., who is a student at the University of Arizona, and Miss Anne Childs Shaffer, who graduates next year from Fermata School at Aiken, S. C.

She married Baldwin D. Spilman, jr., of Warrenton, Va., in 1934, and was divorced from him in 1938. Mrs. Spilman has a home in Palm Beach and also at The Plains, Va.

Mr. Hamilton is the son of Mrs. Morgan Hamilton and Mr. William Pierson Hamilton. Through his mother, he is a grandson of the late J. Pierpont Morgan and through his father is a great-great-grandson of Alexander Hamilton. He left Groton School in 1917 to enter the United States Army, after a preliminary course at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Commissioned a second lieutenant in 1918, he served abroad after the Armistice and was attached to various military missions in Europe during 1919, notably the Interallied Military Mission to Hungary. In January, 1920, he married Mrs. Gertrude Warren, of Paris, France, in Portsmouth, N. H. After a separation dating from 1931 he and Mrs. Hamilton were divorced this year.

Since 1938 and until he moved to Florida at the beginning of the current year, Mr. Hamilton was active in civic and patriotic societies in and around New York and was president of the New York Chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution.

He is a member of the Metropolitan Club in New York City and of the Fort Orange Club in Albany; also of the Tuxedo Club and of the National Golf Links. He is a member of the Seminole Golf, the Everglades and the Bath and Tennis Clubs in Palm Beach and is a member of the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

After their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton will spend the summer in Southampton, where the former Mrs. Spilman is occupying Killarney on First Neck Lane. They will live in Palm Beach after spending the fall at Byrnely Farm, The Plains, Va.

Jack Hartley Visiting Mr. and Mrs. Holmes

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Holmes have as their guest, Jack Hartley, of San Francisco, Calif. Mr. Hartley is well known in Washington where he lived until last summer when his parents Lieut. Col. and Mrs. L. P. Hartley, were transferred to the West Coast.

A WOMAN'S

WASHINGTON

By JEAN BROWNELL

Mrs. Palmer Sees That U. S. Ships Have Latest in Labor-Saving, Safety Devices

MRS. A. MITCHELL PALMER'S job with the Maritime Commission is to see that Uncle Sam's new passenger ships are equipped with the latest in labor-saving and safety devices. She recently spent a week in New York inspecting boats of various companies. One gadget that caught her eye was a red-and-green traffic signal used by the Panama Railway Line to prevent stewards from colliding on their trips to and from the galley.

Mrs. Palmer

Mrs. Palmer traveled widely with her father, who was in the shipping business, and with her late husband, a former United States attorney general. Her particular enthusiasm is any kind of device to prevent passengers from falling down stairs or through doorways when the boat lurches. She traces this interest back to the time when she broke her arm in such a shipboard accident.

ᔓᔕ

The heroine of this incident is still trying to live it down. A phone call had interrupted her bath. Clad only in a towel, she was about to return to the tub when she heard heavy footsteps in the kitchen, and ducked into the nearest closet. The footsteps came nearer, the door of her hiding place opened and there was the gas company man. The meter was in the closet.

Seeking to end the embarrassing silence which followed the encounter, she pulled the towel more securely around her and said with dignity, "I thought you were the ice man!"

EDUCATION NOTE—Wives of officers who spent the year at the Army Industrial College here were awarded the degree of Spinster of Domestic Felicity in a cock-solemn ceremony held last month at the Army-Navy Club. According to the inelegantly decorated diploma given to each woman, the degree was for "having completed a one-year course in schoolboy husbandry, including speech-listening, proof-reading, thumb-twiddling, solitary child-shushing, chatter and yawn control."

HORSE LAUGHS—Latest development in horse show circles is the Horizontal Horsemen's Association, Frank (Happy) Christmas is president, by virtue of a broken collarbone; Margaret Cotter is vice president, thanks to a spine injury. But both will go out of office as others become crippled enough to qualify as their successors.

Other charter members include Jean Bradley (bruised spine), Anne Hagner (sprained ankle) and Walter Craigie. Walter, a Richmond equestrian who is well known here, qualified for membership when his horse carried him through a picket fence and deposited him on the other side in a battered condition. Just before he passed out cold, he murmured to onlookers, "At last, a picket has won a battle in Richmond!"

Girls Swim To Beauty At Aquacade

Exercise in Water Gives Them Perfect Figures and Health

By Ida Jean Kain

WHAT IF YOU were under contract to swim for a couple of hours a day every day in the week? What do you think it would do for your looks? Well, from all the evidence presented by the Aquabelles comprising Billy Rose's famous show, your figure would be something to daydream about.

The swimmer silhouette is realy perfection: A beautiful pair of shoulders, a firm, high bust, and slimly tapering waist and hips. The best of it is, Rose declares, is the swimmers have no weight worries and their figures improve from a season of this activity.

The average girl can consider herself lucky if her hips are no more than 2 inches larger than the bust. That's a good proportion. But the swimmer can boast a hip-line that is smaller than the bust. And, invariably, she has a diminutive waist.

Has Gorgeous Figure

Jane Spence, with one of the most gorgeous figures in the line-up, runs true to form. Her measurements are: Bust, 35 inches; waist, 26 inches, and hips, 34 inches. She is 5 feet 3½ inches tall and weighs 113 pounds. As an afterthought, we'll tell you that she has a 2-year-old youngster.

Then, there's lovely Bette Carr, five feet six, with this kind of symmetry: Bust, 35 inches; waist, 24 inches; and hip, 34 inches. Those 34-inch hiplines seem to be the rule. Little Marjorie Neal, another bit of perfection, measures 34 inches through the bust and hips and has a 23½-inch waist.

Personally, Rose regards Eleanor Holm's figure as the ideal—and to keep you from imagining his opinion is influenced by the fact that she is Mrs. Rose, we'll give you her measurements: Bust, 34 inches; waist, 24 inches; hips, 33 inches. She is 5 feet 2 and weighs 108 pounds.

A quick glance at these statistics on symmetry reveals the difference between the figures in a top-flight show and those you see on the streets. The former is characterized by wide shoulders, a slimly tapered waist and streamlined hips. The average figure is a sharp contrast—it's narrow at the top and gets wider.

Thin Girls Gain

Although avoirdupois never worries them, the belles take a keen interest in comparing notes on pounds and inches. Amazingly enough, their experience seems to establish swimming as the perfect streamlining exercise for the fat or the thin. When they swim regularly, the thin girls gain and the fat ones lose.

Of course, these girls are expert swimmers—some are champions. Long before they turned swimming into a weekly pay check, they did it for fun—and they still do. Their idea of the best way to spend time off is to "go to the beach whenever we can get someone to take us."

But there is still another point in favor of your taking up swimming as an exercise and a hobby. It is as marvelous for the health as it is for the figure. The doctor who watches out for the health of this group of girls declares they amaze him. Even when the weather is blustery and too chilly for swimming—as it was last spring—they never catch colds.

Table Tips

Service of Food Quite as Important As Its Preparation

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor

ATTRACTIVE and correct service of food is as important as the food preparation and meal planning itself. While service will of necessity vary for different types of homes, yet the same general rules will apply.

Breakfast is a meal that should be served with as much thought to the service as any other meal, although there is rarely any sort of formality. No one has much time to spend at the breakfast table, with the children getting off to school and the man of the house to business, yet it does not mean that the table service need be haphazard. The following rules may well be helpful as a general guide:

LINEN: White damask or checked or patterned cloths in color; heavy lace or embroidered runners or doilies. Napkins to match.

CENTERPIECE: Fruit bowl or flowers.

INDIVIDUAL COVERS:

1. Bread and butter plate, butter spreader (for toast, muffins, bread).
2. Napkin (fold lengthwise or triangle).
3. Water goblet or glass (other beverages, milk, coffee, tea or chocolate, go at right of plate).
4. Breakfast plate of medium size, holds smaller plate on which is placed fruit first course. If cereal is served, the bowl is placed directly on breakfast plate. Other foods—eggs, meat, potatoes, waffles—are served and eaten from breakfast plate.
5. Fork, (6) knife, (7) dessert spoon for cereal or berries, (8) fruit spoon for use with orange or grapefruit halves, melon or similar fruits. Pass teaspoon on saucer of coffee cup.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Wed 14 Months, Man Frets About Bride's Habitual Flirtatiousness; When He Cautions Her, She Calls Him Carping Critic; Is He Being Small Minded?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a young married man, 24 years old, and have been married for 14 months. I was very happy until recent months. My trouble is that I have a very pretty wife who seems to have forgotten that part of the wedding vows about "forsaking all others." She is 23 years old and a very smart girl.

We had been married only about two hours when she began telling me how many proposals she had had, and then she added: "I never thought I would marry you." This was quite a blow, so to speak. I passed it off, however. After we had returned from our honeymoon and had furnished our apartment, we were indeed happy. Then, when I started introducing her to my friends in Washington (as she comes from out-of-town), she began giving special attention to the men, and still does. I thought nothing about it, at first; figuring that she just hadn't yet got adjusted to the idea of being married.

This went on for months, until I began to wonder what it was all about. Finally I cautioned her very tactfully about the matter and she accused me of criticizing everything she did, wore, etc. This stopped me. I decided perhaps I had been too critical and so I tried to forget it.

Then we met another married couple and the same thing started with the man. He liked her attentions and returned them in kind. Some of his gestures were unnecessary between friends, so I thought; but my wife did not resist him. After a while, I told her if she didn't do something about it, I was going to ask him to keep "hands off"—which would have embarrassed all of us and ruined the friendship. So she subsided and all was forgotten, as the man proceeded to leave her alone.

Here's another instance: We had a disagreement one evening and the next day she met a strange man in a drug store, gave him her telephone number and address, and agreed to go out with him, not telling that she was married. Well, he called one evening and asked for Miss So-and-So. I told her to get herself out of it as she had got herself into it.

Another time, I took her to a fraternity dance and she flirted with several of the boys there; didn't tell any of them she was married, and became very familiar with one of the fellows. All of this may sound as if I am extremely jealous, but I don't think I am. I just don't think she is being very fair about the whole thing.

I have been thinking very seriously about calling quits on the marriage and taking my departure. But this, as you know, is quite a step, and I want to be sure I doing the correct thing before I start it. Would you be so kind as to advise me? Am I being "little" about this thing, or is there reason on my side?

PUZZLED.

Wife's Vain Behavior Is Indefensible

DEAR PUZZLED: You have abundant reason for feeling outraged; and there is no acceptable defense of your wife's vain, vulgar, foolish, disloyal behavior. Far from being petty in your attitude, you have been remarkably patient, charitable and self-controlled. Her honeymoon boasting about her many proposals was in extremely bad taste; and her remark that she never expected to marry you was cruelly (as well as stupidly) tactless.

She intended, I imagine, to convince you that you had carried off a prize, and her man-baiting tactics generally may be partially inspired by the notion of keeping you "sold" on your investment. But cheap sexual conceit is the principal motivation of her promiscuous flirtations. Her attitude toward men is so entirely all wrong that one wonders, indeed, whether she is capable of being the kind of wife that a man can respect, cherish and trust.

There is nothing mean-minded or jealous about a man's desire that his wife shall keep her social interchange with other men on an essentially impersonal (however gracious) basis—since, as he well knows, if she fails to do so, she invites their facetious contempt or patronizing familiarities.

In wanting her to behave with restraint and decorum, he is wanting for her the reverence and respect he thinks are her due—either in her own right or as the bearer of his name. If there is an egoistic, personal element in this wish of his—it is the hope that she will tactfully imply to the world the totality of her devotion to him, by showing no special sentimental interest in other men, severally or singly. And this, surely, is a minimum expectation—in view of the fact that he has pledged his life to her service, primarily that he may stake first claim to her heart.

In bygone eras—in more artificial and wastrel societies than ours of today—it may have been considered "chic" for a married woman of truly magnetic gifts to flirt discreetly (her husband indulgently assenting). But that exotic phenomenon of moral profligacy is rapidly fading from the social scene. It's considered more civilized nowadays for a wife to be, in truth and fact, in spirit and in deed, her husband's "better half."

The more intelligent modern wife readily realizes that it is up to her to create her own permanent "standing" with her mate—since nowadays women are evaluated more and more as human beings and increasingly less as creatures of special privilege. Today, a wife abuses her husband's reasonable sense of justice and fair play at her peril—since the intelligent modern man expects and demands an adult performance from his marriage partner. He does not want, and will not be satisfied with, a parasitical fraud and cheat, or a prettily pouting, willful "child-wife."

So my advice to you is to tell your wife such truths as these, and to issue an ultimatum to the effect that (a) either she subscribes, from this moment henceforth, to an acceptable pattern of fidelity and decorum; or (b) you (as you have already said) "call quits on the marriage and take your departure."

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post's Woman's Page.

No 'Wasp Waists;' Slim Silhouette New Correct Style

New York, July 23 (AP).—Take a deep breath and prepare yourself for fall corset news.

"Inches off at the hips for a straight silhouette." . . . "Longer corsets for firmer back, hip and thigh control" . . . "Rounded hips flattened out . . ."

That's the ruthless way corset makers and buyers talk as they plan foundations on which to build the slim silhouette for fall.

A more humane note is heard when they speak of waistlines. "No more wasp-waists." Well, that's something. "Waistlines must be let out slightly as hiplines are taken in." Glad they realize a person's pounds have to go somewhere. "Though the midsection is still controlled, it is certainly made much more comfortable." Good, you can breathe again. They even allow "breathing sections" of elastic in new all-in-ones and long brassieres.

Summer Upkeep of Hair

EASY going summer is a misnomer when it comes to upkeep of hair. Sticky heat draws dirt like a magnet and calls for frequent shampoos. Sun and salt water dry your hair to a crisp unless protected. Wash the salt water out daily after a swim in the ocean and the natural oils are depleted. Leave the sea residue in the hair and scalp and even more serious damage is done to the tresses.

To counteract the drying effect of salt water and sun, and to keep the hair spic and span through a hectic round of outdoor activities, are two new hair preparations to use between shampoos. One, a fragrant dry cleanser, is dispensed with a shaker can which sprinkles out sweet smelling powder that can be swept out with a brush, taking musty odor, dust and oil in their wake. The substance has a cleaning and freshening action without gumming the hair or leaving powder streaks that dim its luster. Accompanying the cleanser is a turkish towel mitt to help you rub the powder thoroughly through the hair.

Another cleanser for in-between shampoos is the product of seven famous sisters, scalp specialists, who include this in one of their new low priced hair kits for summed. "The Fifth Avenue Hair Kit" contains special hair preparations, scalp pomade, creme set and a choice of oily, dry or concentrated lotions. As a special inducement to good hair grooming a dandy curl brush with strong, long bristles has been put on the market. It is small enough to carry around in your large size pocket book and can be whipped into use at a moment's notice.

Thinking Swells Size Of Brain, Editor Avers

Intensive thinking, says Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, editor of the American Journal of Physical Anthropology, increases the size of the brain. Alvan McCauley, president of the Packard Motor Co., reports his hat size has increased from 7¼ to 7⅝ in 36 years. Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood states that in 40 years his hat size has changed from 6⅞ to 7¼. Leonard P. Ayres, Cleveland banker, wore a size 6¼ cap when he was in the Army. Since then he has advanced steadily to 6⅞, 7, and 7⅛.

Taxes to Take 70% of Normal British Income

Drastic Measures Taken to Meet Budget Of $13,868,000,000

By the United Press

London, July 23.—The heaviest taxes in British history were introduced today to meet the nation's biggest wartime budget, demanding that Britain give up almost 70 per cent of normal income to finance the war.

Even such staggering taxes will leave a large deficit, and new loans of more than $8,000,000,000 will be necessary.

The basic income tax was boosted to 42½ per cent and, for the first time will be deducted at the source weekly or monthly.

The message of Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, to Parliament dealt in record figures. The budget of $13,868,000,000 was a new high, the new income tax rate is the heaviest in British history and the loan asked also is the biggest in the nation's history.

Surtaxes Boosted Sharply

(The dollar equivalents of British pound sterling budget figures in this dispatch are based on $4 to the pound.)

A revolutionary "purchase tax" ranging from 12 to 33 1-3 per cent was imposed and taxes on entertainment, beer, wine and tobacco were increased.

Surtaxes were raised until, on incomes of $80,000, the government will take nine-tenths by direct taxation.

Supplementary budget estimates presented to the House of Commons by Sir Kingsley comprised the first budget of the Churchill government. Sir Kingsley estimated Britain's peace time annual income at about $20,000,000,000.

Sir Kingsley emphasized that the government was applying the new rates to all classes and that rich and poor alike must meet the unprecedented cost of war. He said the government was determined to prevent inflation.

How Income Levy Works

He said the new direct and indirect taxes would yield about $956,000,000. On the basis of revenue estimated by his predecessor, Sir John Simon, the total revenue of the government would be about $5,893,564,000—leaving a prospective deficit of about $7,974,736,000, Sir Kingsley said.

Under the new income tax a married man with two children and an income of $4,000 would pay $842.17 in direct income tax. This figure does not include the many luxury, excise or "purchase" taxes which everyone must pay.

(In the United States a man in this classification would pay $52.80 Federal income tax).

Taxes on tobacco were increased 40 cents per pound, on beer 1 2-3 cents a pint, and on wines 60 to 80 cents a gallon.

U. S. Pushes Probe On Rockville Mob

The Department of Justice has no immediate intention of dropping its investigation of a mob attack on a meeting of Jehovah's Witnesses in Rockville, Md., June 19, an official of the Civil Liberties unit declared last night.

Whatever action the department takes, it was stated, will be determined, in part, upon how fully it considers the requirements of justice in the case have been met by the State.

A Montgomery Circuit Court voted acquittal Monday for ten defendants accused in the attack.

Meanwhile, it was learned, the department has under consideration a "great number" of cases of alleged civil liberties violations, most of which are attacks against Jehova's Witnesses.

Lieutenant Governor Saves Woman in Iowa

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, July 23 (AP).—Iowa's Lieut. Gov. B. B. Hickenlooper was credited today with saving Mrs. H. F. McGinnis, of Cedar Rapids, from drowning in the Cedar Rapids Country Club swimming pool.

Mrs. McGinnis went beyond her depth in the pool while the guards weer off duty. When she called for help the lieutenant governor raced across the pool and pulled her out.

British Farmer Dies Fighting War Orders

Recluse Shoots Three Policemen In Resisting Eviction

By the Associated Press

Basingstoke, Hampshire, England, July 23.—A hard-bitten English farmer fought to his finish today against police forces seeking to evict him for failure to comply with war-time emergency food production orders.

The 66-year-old bachelor recluse, Raymond Warden, turned his house into a fortress and resisted for 18 hours before he was fatally wounded.

Constable P. C. Draper attempted yesterday to serve the eviction order based on a government measure to take over fields not in maximum production.

Warden shot the unarmed constable in both legs.

Draper called reinforcements. At dawn tear gas bombs were flung into the house. No effect. Warden just donned his gas maks—issued by the government to all persons.

Next police and firemen smashed in two doors. Five shots put two more policemen out of action with arm and leg wounds.

Once more the police withdrew for reinforcements and returned to battle with service rifles.

Warden, barricaded in one room, fired three more shots before collapsing.

Police found him bleeding from wounds in the right eye and temple, gun in hand. Warden died several hours later.

British Woman Talks Herself Into Jail

Glasgow, July 23 (AP).—Mrs. Matilda Forsyth, 47, a mother, was sentenced to 21 days' imprisonment today after she admitted she had made these statements about the war:

"That the Germans had landed in southern England and destroyed the docks, and that President Roosevelt had sent a ship to remove Britain's poor children to safety, but that it had been monopolized by persons such as Alfred Duff Cooper, minister of information."

Defense Program Creating Jobs

Cleveland, July 23 (AP).—The Statler, one of Cleveland's largest hotels, announced today it was employing girl elevator operators for the first time because of the job pick-up in defense-active industries.

Fifteen men had left elevator posts for jobs in the metal trades in the last few months, Manager Eugene Kelly explained.

Trawlers Stand Off German Bomber

London, July 23 (AP).—Three fishing trawlers armed with machine guns stood off a German bomber today until British chaser planes drove the Nazi plane away.

"He missed up with eight bombs," one fisherman said. "We kept at him with machine guns and we hit him. That's certain.

"Then Spitfires came in like the wind. He bolted. They were right on his tail and we heard machine guns going until they got out of sight."

Defunct D. C. Bank Assets Bring $3,500

Remaining assets of the closed International Exchange Bank here were sold yesterday to M. Jay Kramer, of New York City, for $3,500, it was announced by Frederick J. Young, receiver.

The institution closed July 14, 1932, and has since paid 45 per cent to depositors in four dividends, totaling $137,969.95.

Similar liquidation action will be taken today at the closed Bank of Brightwood, Young said. This institution, which closed its doors July 13, 1932, has paid depositors 63½ per cent in four dividends amounting to $504,941. Book value of remaining assets is listed at $275,114.70.

When affairs of the two defunct banks are settled, depositors will receive all remaining cash, but Young said it would be several months before final dividends will be available.

Farm Urged In District For Drunks

Proposal Put To Welfare Board At Hearing Held On 1941 Budget

Establishment of a farm for alcoholics was urged yesterday by Vincent Saccardi as the Board of Public Welfare opened hearings on its 1941 budgetary needs.

Saccardi, chairman of the corrections committee of the Council of Social Agencies, said "it is wrong" to place alcoholics in correctional institutions. The farm plan has the support of Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen.

Spokesmen for other private welfare and civic groups, attending the hearings on the needs of child agencies and penal institutions, were unanimous in asserting that the welfare board needs more funds to carry on its work next year.

Another hearing will be held today at 2 p. m., to be devoted to the needs of the Public Assistance Division and the penal institutions.

Saccardi urged the extension of the rehabilitation program for convicts and approved a $50,000 program outlined in the Kepecs report by the Citizens Advisory Committee two years ago.

Maj. Campbell C. Johnson, a member of the Parole Board, recommended setting up a psychiatric service at the penal institutions for early examination of prisoners; increased training of inmates for occupations; additional personnel for the Parole Board; separate reformatory for first offenders and better control and treatment of alcoholics.

Need of additional case workers in the protective and foster child welfare services was stressed by Miss Louise McGuire, of the Monday Evening Club and Miss Margaret Meyer, supervisor of case workers of the Jewish Social Service.

The Rev. Lawrence J. Shehan, director of Catholic Charities, recommended adequate personnel for case work; more funds for the care of children in foster homes; development of a housekeeper service, where workers are sent to care for children when the mother is absent or ill, and development of convalescent care for children.

2 Liquor Store Holdups Net Robbers $263

Bandits obtained $263 in two liquor store holdups here last night.

A tall, thin, white man in a black raincoat entered Steelman's Liquor Store, 2746 Fourteenth street northwest, at the height of the rainstorm, produced a blue steel revolver and ordered David Love, clerk, 2704 Courtland place northwest, and Ernest Funches, delivery boy, 1623 First street northwest, to the rear.

Then he demanded all the bills from the cash register and backed out with $135, after telling Love to "forget about the change."

The Lucky Liquor Store, 1218 Fourth street northwest, held up and robbed of $340 last October, had another bit of hard luck shortly before last midnight. A powerful-six-foot colored man in khaki clothes, his hand in his pocket as if it held a pistol, demanded and obtained $128 from Harry Lewis, of 4627 Kansas avenue northwest, the owner.

Stokowski's Youth Concert Is Rained Out

6,000 Ticket-Holders Offered Refunds Or Fall 'Rain Checks'

The thundershower washed out last night's concert of Leopold Stokowski's All-American Youth Orchestra, but it was immediately announced that plans have been made for two "rain check" appearances of the orchestra in Constitution Hall next September.

The concert was called off at 8:30 p. m., half an hour after scheduled starting time, though some 300 hopeful music lovers huddled under the two Water Gate arches. Seats, street, and the Sunset Symphony barge were drenched.

C. C. Cappel, manager of the National Symphony Orchestra, revealing that 6,000 tickets had been sold for the concert, said that purchasers could turn them in for the Constitution Hall engagements, or could obtain a refund at the box office, 1330 G street northwest.

Dates for the September concerts will be announced within a day or two, Cappel added.

The 110 members of the youth orchestra showed up during the height of the storm, tuned up their instruments and waited impatiently for the rain to cease.

The players, including three Washingtonians, arrived here early yesterday and hurried to the Water Gate for rehearsal. Last night they hurried back to New York, where they perform tonight. Friday they will sail on a South American good-will tour.

The three Washingtonians, National Symphony veterans, will return to the Capital's orchestra following the tour. They are Miss Kay Rickert, 25, of 1901 Nineteenth street northwest, who plays the violin; Franklin M. Biskey, 27, of 2707 Adams Mill road northwest, bassoon, and Philip Silverman, 25, of 1723 G street northwest, tuba.

John F. Barry, 69, 3609 Tenth street northwest, a Spanish-American War veteran, who died after a heat stroke.

Seven persons in Washington were prostrated by heat. One of them collapsed at the wheel of his car and the machine crashed into a parked automobile.

Prestorm heat victims included William Staylious, 60, colored, 1840 Fourteenth street northwest, whose car crashed into a parked machine in the 3800 block of Fulton street northwest; Lillian Botkin, 42, of 1116 H street northeast, and Clement J. Legorie, 1775 N street northwest.

Police at Bethesda and Rockville, Md., reported 500 trees felled by the storm "as cleanly as though they had been cut with axes."

In Washington the Weather Bureau measured a 2.46-inch rainfall from 5:34 to 7:30 p. m. In that time the temperature plumeted 12 degrees to a 73 reading.

Earlier in the day, storms west and northwest of the city dropped the temperature from a high of 90 at 1:05 p. m. to 81 an hour later. In the last 24 hours nearly 60 persons have been treated in Washington hospitals for heat exhaustion, though the rate of prostration fell off sharply with the temperature drop.

Last night's forecast indicated the relief brought by the storm would be temporary. Cloudy and continued warm with local thundershowers was predicted for today with tomorrow expected to be fair and warmer.

Many Cellars Flooded

Cellars were flooded, power lines blown out and trees torn down in many sections of the city.

The Capital Transit Co. reported trolleys stalled on lines in southwest, northwest and along U street northwest when water grounded conduits.

A high tension line was hit by lightning in the 4200 block of Garrison street northwest while in front of 2216 Douglas street northeast another electric line was torn down.

Julius Martin, 6520 Western avenue, reported that a tree, 1½ feet in diameter, was hit by lightning at 5:30 p. m. His wife, sitting on the front porch a short distance away, escaped unhurt as the bolt destroyed the tree, scattering fragments over the yard.

Lightning struck and set on fire a small evergreen tree in the yard of Dr. Julia M. Green, 2726 Quebec street northwest. The fire department was called to put out the blaze.

Police Radio Shut Off

Water flooded the basement of the Times-Herald Building, 1317 H street northwest, and seeped into the office of Capt. John L. Person, assistant engineer commissioner, in the District Building.

The police department's radio station was shut off and all radio cars ordered to their stations while Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, called from his home to order details to be alert for washouts.

Streets were flooded and impassable to traffic momentarily in several sections. Water rose over hubcaps for several blocks in the vicinity of 2900 Pennsylvania avenue southeast and Fourteenth and Constitution avenue northwest. Water in the K street underpass stood 4 feet deep.

Basements were flooded in an entire block of houses at Sheridan and Stanton streets southeast and a portion of the wall at St. Elizabeths Hospital collapsed from a washout.

The District Fire Boar reported receiving at least 50 alarms from Southwest Washington householders whose basements were flooded. Nearly 20 of these were answered until it became apparent that a large section of the city was being left without fire protection.

Police reported part of the foundations washed from beneath a house at 1227 Thirty-seventh street northwest. Massachusetts avenue at Observatory circle dropped three feet along a 30-foot cut where the District is laying a sewer.

Scores of homes were flooded in the vicinity of Eleventh and East Capitol streets.

Six feet of water washed into a 400-foot steam-line tunnel at Gallinger Hospital while at a railroad underpass near Ninth and D streets southwest, dozens of children went swimming, some diving from the stalled auto of Mrs. Kate M. Bueheler, 3710 Bangor street, Summit Park, D. C., a Bureau of Engraving and Printing employe.

Power Line Blown Down

Two 4,000-volt transformer feeders burned out in the Tenleytown area when trees fell on them. A power line was blown down at Forty-third street and River road northwest.

Lightning struck twice in the Chevy Chase area, setting afire the roof of the home of W. K. Crosby, 7 Leland street, and running down an aerial and burning a radio in the residence of J. C. Benzing, 8 Blackthorne street.

Richard T. Disney and two boys, Richard Kirk, 12, Montgomery Hills, and Harold Ricketts, 11, Halpine, took shelter in Disney's fruit and vegetable store at Congressional Airport.

The wind tore off the rear part of the roof. Disney said the wind struck with terrific violence first from one direction and then in the opposite direction.

"It was dark as pitch just before the storm struck," Disney said. "It was all the three of us could do to keep the doors closed against the wind. Right after the storm hail stones fell as large as marbles."

Power Cut Off

A large sign was tossed 400 feet by the wind. A tree was blown over the house of E. W. Offutt at Montrose.

Electric lines were blown down in several places and all power was out along the pike from near Bethesda to beyond Rockville for almost 3 hours.

Two women and two men, not immediately identified, escaped injury when a tree fell on their car on the Rockville pike, about 5 miles from the District line.

The wind spent its force before reaching the business and residential districts of Bethesda.

In Arlington County more than 50 houses in the vicinity of north Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets suffered heavy damage with cellars flooded and driveways washed out. Low-lying streets in Lyon Village were converted into lakes, while water rose to 3 feet at North Washington boluevard and North Arlington street.

A small wooden bridge washed out at Crestwood road and North Seventeenth street near Lyon Village. Ballston was flooded several feet deep.

Lightning Hits Power Plant

The Virginia Public Service Co. power plant was hit by lightning, cutting out service for a short time and starting a small fire which was quickly extinguished. Telephone service in Alexandria also was partially crippled, but the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. reported little disruption here.

Herndon, Va., suffered a 20-minute power failure.

210 Graduate At Strayer; Gooch Talks

Virginia Professor Says U. S. Is Morally, Spiritually Unready In World Affairs

The United States is "in large measure," both materially and morally, unprepared in the face of the international situation, Dr. Robert Kent Gooch, University of Virginia professor of political science, said at Strayer College commencement exercises last night.

The 210 students receiving degrees and diplomas formed one of the largest classes in the history of the college, which marked the close of its thirty-sixth year last night, it was pointed out by the presiding officer, E. G. Purvis, vice president. The semiannual commencement was held in the Mayflower Hotel ballroom.

While pointing out indications that "a serious beginning is being made toward our material preparation," Dr. Gooch warned that "ethical confusion prevails on a large scale in the United States."

He warned against three considerations which, he said, are contributing to that confusion: the argument that forces represented by the dictatorships are young, vital, virile, whereas the forces opposed to them are decrepit and decadent; a tendency for "the strength and efficiency of the forces of evil to be commended" on the apparent assumption that everyone in some measure worships success; a tendency toward fatalism in considering the "triumph of the forces of evil" as the working out of destiny.

Edmond S. Donoho, president of the college, conferred degrees on accountancy graduates and awarded diplomas to secretarial graduates. Presidents of the two classes, Coleman Bond Jones, jr., accounting, and Robert Lloyd Harris, secretarial, spoke briefly.

Among the graduates, Lester B. Weller has just been notified that he passed the certified public accountant examination, and Mario Edmond Bicciocchi already has an accounting job with the Civil Service Commission.

Fair Labor Standards Revised For Fruit, Vegetable Canners

By the Associated Press

The Wages and Hours Administration eliminated certain exemptions for canners of fresh fruits and vegetables yesterday, but made some concessions to the industry.

Officials said that a new order by Col. Philip B. Fleming, administrator, becoming effective October 1, would:

Increase the number of plants coming under the Fair Labor Standards Act by altering the present exemption for plants in towns of 2,500 population or less which obtain their fruit and vegetables from within a 10-mile radius. (This change was made by rewriting the definition of "area of production.")

Raise from seven to 10 the number of persons who may be employed in an exempt plant.

Grant a partial exemption from the hour provisions for 14 weeks, in addition to the present full exemption for 14 weeks.

Give fruit and vegetable storage warehouses a 14-week partial exemption from the hours provisions. They now have no hours exemption.

An official said that in general the changes would make more persons eligible for the 30 cents an hour minimum pay, but that some persons now receiving overtime probably would no longer get extra pay.

An unofficial estimate placed at 70,000 the number of persons affected by the changes.

A new definition of "area of production" will exempt from the wages and hours provisions employes in plants receiving fresh fruits and vegetables from farms in the general vicinity and employing no more than 10 persons.

Vincent said that he found that the present "area of production" definition "resulted in serious discriminations." One example cited was where a plant just outside a city limits would be exempt from the law if it obtained the fruit and vegetables to be canned within 10 miles of it, but a plant 100 yards away and inside the city limits would be forced to meet the requirements of the act. The changes will eliminate such situations.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Farewell to a Perennial, Hail to Its Successor!

'Life With Father' Soars, 'Tobacco Road' Ends; Willard Roof to Break Out Another Melodrama; This, That and the Other About the Theater

ALTHOUGH THE END OF THE NEW YORK RUN of "Tobacco Road" has been announced, it would seem that there remains at least one comedy on the Broadway stage destined to compile its full quota of records of one sort and another.

BELL

That would be "Life With Father," presented at the "command performance" in the National Theater last January to open the President's birthday celebrations.

Not only was "Life With Father" viewed by President Roosevelt, when it was presented here in his honor, but since its New York opening last November it also has been witnessed by Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican Presidential nominee—for whatever that may be worth. Mrs. Roosevelt has seen the play three times and the famous cartoonist, Fontaine Fox, six times.

Translated into terms of folding money, the Clarence Day sketches, dramatized by Howard Lindsay—who appears in the title role—and Russel Crouse, has brought in more than $1,000,000 through the New York and Chicago ticket wickets. New York's Empire Theater Company alone has paid the sponsors of the play a profit of 1,000 per cent over their original investment. A year ago Oscar Serlin, the producer, was borrowing nickels to make phone calls. Today he heads a million dollar enterprise, has turned down an offer of $350,000 for the motion picture rights, rejected the radio serialization offers of $100,000 and is withholding stock and amateur rights, despite the handsome sums being proferred.

Great thing, show business, if you happen to hit the jackpot.

However, "Life With Father" has a considerable distance to travel before it overtakes "Tobacco Road," in the various aspects of that rowdy drama's freak career—if it ever does. What has been described as "the weed growing in the barnyard of the theater," opened on December 4, 1933, and has run up a record of 2,847 performances—315 more than "Abie's Irish Rose," another tawdry play that was supposed to die a quick and unlamented death. "Tobacco Road" will have run six years and nine months! I don't know how much money it has grossed, but it would have a tidy profit if it only made $1 net for each actor who has appeared in the role of Jeeter Lester!

Plans are being perfected with as much speed as current temperatures will permit for a novel presentation of "The Night of January 16" on the Willard Hotel roof three evenings a week, beginning Wednesday, July 31. The project is under the joint guidance of Boniface Harry P. Somerville, managing director of the Willard, and Bess Davis Schreiner, who made a name for themselves with the six-week run of Barnum's "The Drunkard" back there in 1934. This "January" business is the courtroom mystery-melodrama in which the jury is composed of members of the audience, selected at random at each performance. That is what makes it so ideal a vehicle for such intimate performance as is possible on the top floor of Mr. Somerville's famous hostelry. The cast, which has been in rehearsal for three weeks, under the direction of John Montgomery, contains many of Washington's best-known players.

In response to numerous requests from its patrons, the Mount Vernon, open-air, drive-in theater, 'way down yonder on the Richmond highway, has booked a group of Walt Disney's color cartoons as an added attraction the last three days of this week. These whimsies will consume a total running time of 50 minutes and will be in addition to the feature, "Honeymoon Deferred," costarring Edmund Lowe and Margaret Lindsay.

Little 13-year-old Virginia Weidler needn't worry about her future. One of the few screen players, of whatever age, actually born in Hollywood—that was in March, 1927—Virginia rapidly is clinching her right to be known as the cienema's foremost juvenile actress. While she has appeared in a list of pictures longer than most of us have been in town, it is in "All This and Heaven Too" that she outdoes even herself, in support of Bette Davis and Charles Boyer. As a reward for her fine work in the current Earle feature, she has been assigned to an important role in the screen version of "The Philadelphia Story," which tosses her in there with a cast that includes Katharine Hepburn, in the role she created on the stage; Cary Grant, James Stewart, John Howard, Roland Young, Ruth Hussey and Margaret Nash. Nice going, is what I always say.

'Ramparts' Is LustilyCheered At Premiere

Distingusihed Audience At Keith's Hails Spirit of New Film

By Nelson B. Bell

What the United States of America has done once within the memory of those still living, the United States of America can do again. This is the implication, if not the primary message, conveyed by "The Ramparts We Watch."

Presented last night for the first time on any screen before a distinguished audience of political dignitaries, diplomats, officials of the Army and Navy and the world press in RKO-Keith's Theater, this first feature-length picture produced by the editors of Time and Life, makers of "The March of Time," expresses a vigorous and militant faith in the capacity and the ability of a Republic of free men to meet and overcome any threat to the principles of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness to which it has been consecrated through a century and a half. It symbolizes the reactions of this country's 130,000,000 inhabitants to a national emergency by those of the residents of a typical small American city that has not changed greatly since the first World War. It utilizes as a direct and obvious analogy to the present world crisis, the cataclysmic years of 1914-18.

Approach to War Gradual

Less a personalized drama of individuals than an elaboration of the "documentary" form of film recital that adheres to the "March of Time's technique of running commentary by the voice of the unseen Westbrook Van Voorhis, "The Ramparts We Watch" makes use of actual scenes of the 1914-18 era that have been selected with rare judgment from the film libraries of the U. S. Army Signal Corps, the National Archives in Washington, the Imperial War Museum in London and the Archives Cinematographiques in Paris and documented with extraordinary skill and dramatic effectiveness.

Initiating its action in a peaceful little city, grown accustomed to the fullness of living during a long period of prosperity, the film traces with amazingly complete detail the consequences to its manner of life and thought of the horrendous events that were set afoot by the murder of Archduke Ferdinand and the "minor" war between Austria and Serbia that blazed into a world holocaust.

The interest of this country in a war so far away at first is detached and remote. With the constantly more ominous encroachments upon American rights by the European belligerents, the instinct for righting savage national debauchery and preserving the traditions and ideals of this country grow until the Government is impunged for remaining out of the conflict instead of manifesting a willingness to enter it on the side of international honor and justice.

This is not to say that "The Ramparts We Watch" is an inflammatory subject, advocating a repetition of what was done by this country 20 years ago. On the contrary, it employs only the eloquence of past events, rather than any direct plea of its own, to point the duty of America to itself in time of crisis.

The Great and Near Great

The almost forgotten scenes of 1914-18 are vividly brought back to mind by the procession of events the picture unfolds. Intimate views of the world's great figures of the time are thickly sprinkled throughout the later sequences of the action—Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, Kaiser Welhelm II, King George V, of England; the boyish Prince of Wales, now the Duke of Windsor; Czar Nicholas, of all the Russias; Admiral Sims, Ambassador Von Bernstorf, the then Assistant Secretary of the United States Navy, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, on his first visit to the Western Front; Joseph Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson; Admiral Cary T. Grayson, his personal physician; Emperor Franz Josef, of Austria, and scores of others. Perhaps never before have the newsreel and the documentary camera been so glorified as indispensable instruments of valuable historical record.

Not content with this parade of world figures of an earlier day, "The Ramparts We Watch" chronicles with minute accuracy the many phases of conduct and misconduct that led us into the last war. The growth of sabotage in this country, the drawing of the first draft number by the President, the industrial organization of the country to meet war's demands, America's part in the war at sea and on the Western Front, the inevitable "witch hunts," the Armistice and restoration of peace—all are chronicled with an impact that is stunning—and inspiring.

No Hollywood Glamour

There are no "production values," in the usual sense, and no "acting" in "The Ramparts We Watch." The tremendous cast is made up of unknown nonprofessionals, who make no gestures in the direction of "glamour" or histrionic finesse. Such personal drama as finds its way into the film must be numbered among the least of its assets.

"The Ramparts We Watch" is timely to a split-second and vastly inspiring in its inescapable reminder of the capacity, the courage and the greatness of a unified America, dedicated to effort, service and personal sacrifice. It was spontaneously cheered by last night's audience—by an odd coincidence, on the evening of the day the United States Senate Military Affairs Committee approved the draft.

The major feature is not the sum total of the new Kieth program, which begins its regular, popular-priced, continuous-performance engagement this morning. The newsreel, a new realese of "Information, Please" with Deems Taylor the guest guesser, and "Put-Put Trouble,' one of the most amusing of the Donald Duck cartoon comedies, complete a bill fashioned to the need of every American.

Star Prepares for Dancing Role

MAUREEN O'HARA,

the versatile, 19-year-old, Irish actress, first seen with Charles Laughton in "Jamaica Inn," undertakes strenuous preparation for her next role in RKO-Radio's musical production of "Dance, Girl, Dance." "Stretching" is the technical term for it. Miss O'Hara is currently on the screen in "A Bill of Divorcement," at the Metropolitan

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, July 23.

HARRY HOPKINS: F. D., jr., wasn't surprised when his brother, Elliott—who was a Texas delegate to the convention—cast his vote for Garner instead of for a third term. At the Stork Club a few weeks ago, both Roosevelts sat down with us, and Elliott was asked, point blank, whether he favored a third term. "Of course, I do," he assured . . . "Really?" said his startled brother, "then the newspapers certainly have been misquoting you."

DARRYL ZANUCK: Maurice Maeterlinck, whose "Bluebird" you produced as a Shirley Temple movie this season, has received an offer to live at Peace Haven, the million-dollar suit-estate on Long Island.

N. Y. BOXING COMMISSION: Jack Dempsey's "comeback" is finished, and he'll never fight again. He has canceled his tour and is trying to settle the contract for his next fight, scheduled to be held in North Carolina. Max Waxman, Jack's manager, now confesses that the only reason he arranged for this comeback was to take Jack's mind off his matrimonial difficulties.

SAM GOLDWYN: Mary Pickford, who plans to return to the screen, is interested in a story by Mitzi Cummings—a story based upon the life of Dolly Madison. Mary wants to play that role.

BEN HECHT: When Norman Krasna refused the $60,000 offer his agents obtained for his screen play of "Mr. & Mrs.," he decided to intervene and to speak directly to George Schaefer, head of RKO . . . "But Mr. Krasna," said Schaefer, "you've got all the money you want—so why do you want $75,000 for this script, instead of 60?" . . . "Because," was Krasna's simple explanation, "I want to be the highest paid screen writer in Hollywood."

EQUITY: The police station at Clinton, Conn., is located in the same building where Alexander Kirkland is presenting his Clinton Playhouse productions. Because Kirkland parked his car too long in front of that building, he was arrested and tried—between rehearsals of "After the Ball."

JIM BARTON: Jack Kirkland, in whose "Tobacco Road" you starred for so many years, now is deciding between Noah Beery, jr., and Dean Jagger for the lead in the Paul Gangelin play he's producing.

WAVERLY ROOT: A. J. Liebling says he knows nothing about that "Eustace Tilley" dispatch story you sent for him from Spain to get through the censors. He says he left no dispatch with you.

DAMON RUNYON: There'll be room for many more visitors to your Dade County, Fla., this winter. Grossinger's, the famous Catskill resort, is building a Miami Beach branch, and the ground already has been broken.

DORIS DUDLEY: John Barrymore will reopen in "My Dear Children" at the Los Angeles Biltmore Theater on September 9.

JUDY GARLAND: "Nobody's Baby," the song you revived in "Andy Hardy Meets a Debutante," was written 20 years ago. Two of the authors, Milton Ager and Lester Santly, now have their own publishing companies—but a third publisher, Leo Feist, Inc., now owns the rights to this song which again is popular.

ELSA MAXWELL: Lady Jersey, who arrived here recently, met with another tragedy and has left N. Y. You'll see her in Hollywood soon.

WENDELL WILLKIE: The President's Birthday Ball Committee is proceeding this year, as usual. Long before the convention, the committee leased offices on East Forty-second street and is continuing with the birthday-celebration plan for January 20, 1941—taking it for granted that Roosevelt will be reelected, and his birthday celebrated by the Nation.

JOHN GUNTHER: Now that you and Hemingway and Vincent Sheean all have written plays, Pierre Van Paassen, author of "Days of Our Years," also is writing one.

WM. KNUDSEN: The President soon will appoint a noted doctor to join the ranks of your National Defense Council. He'll be in charge of medicine's participation in the defense program.

GARY COOPER: Clifford Odets went to a Forty-second street movie house last week to see you in a picture billed as "The Gorge of Death." He went inside the theater, seated himself and then realized that the film merely had been retitled—that its original title was "The General Dies at Dawn," the movie written by Odets.

DRAMATISTS GUILD: Ferene Molnar has completed two new plays. He won't permit anyone to read the first, because he doesn't like it. M.-G.-M. has an option on the second.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, July 23 (INS)—It's been a long time since there was talk of "another Jean Harlow," but Twentieth Century-Fox think they have found her in Mary Beth Hughes, who is certainly as vividly blonde as the little Harlow was. Whether Mary Beth turns out to be the screen dynamite Jean was, remains to be seen—but mark her name down in your "future book" for stardom for there's no doubt about it, Mary Beth is going to be given every opportunity to click. Today she was assigned the star spot in Louis Bromfield's "Marching as to War," a Salvation Army epic.

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Interesting the way these youngsters crop up in Cinderella fashion from time to time. Less than a year ago Mary Beth had just a bit in a Lana Turner picture. M.-G.-M. did not take up her contract. So she went to Twentieth and really made a hit with the critics in "Four Sons." Now it looks as if she's on her way.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Hedy Lamarr was with Gene Markey when his father died and by his side at the funeral services yesterday morning; a cute addition to the Carmel Myers-Ralph Blum household is a little girl named Susan, adopted in New York; the Don Ameches also will adopt a little girl. They have four boys and perhaps have despaired of the stork's bringing a Miss Ameche. Richard Ainley entertaining his mother, Baroness Bettina von Hutton. That's why he and Constance Bennett haven't been seen together as much of late; Barbara Hutton and Cary Grant at Lake Arrowhead Sunday.

The salaries of the talent at Victor Hugo's Sunday night would almost pay the national debt. Top names appeared out of courtesy to Lou Holtz, who was in rare form. Eddy Duchin, always so gracious, played a medley and later accompanied Virginia Simms, pretty soloist with Kay Kyser's orchestra. Jack Benny welcomed Holtz in his inimitable way; Milton Berle, terribly funny; Frank Fay, Harry Ritz were a few of the comedians who helped make the evening one to remember; Corinne Griffith and George Marshall were with George and Kitty Archainbaud; the Stu Erwins, Raphael Hakim and Ruth Hussey were an appreciative foursome.

Have never seen anyone change as much as Dorris Bowden since her marriage. Wouldn't have known her at Victor Hugo's.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, July 23.

Wonder if Melvyn Douglas and wife, Helen Gahagan, can tear themselves away from that three-ring circus in Chicago to keep their acting dates. Melvyn's booked to make love to Myrna Loy — Miss Gahagan is to start rehearsals of "Wind in the Sails" to be tried out here before getting a New York run-around. And speaking of that Chicago shindig, wouldn't it be a joke on the New Deal if Jim Farley turned 'round and offered his services to the Willkie campaign? As Martha Raye says it, "Ohhhh! Boy—!"

HOPPER

Ronald Reagan plays the part set for Dennis Morgan in "Santa Fe Trail," 'cause Ginger Rogers wants Dennis for the lead in "Kitty Foyle."

John Charles Thomas won't make that picture this summer. He's now at the Bohemian Grove above San Francisco for the Hi-Jinks, after which he picks up his concert tour, stopping off in Santa Barbara for a visit with Clara Belle Walsh, who's here for a couple of weeks' visit.

No prima donna ever had a more hilarious press reception than "Oomphy Elsie," the bovine star for "Little Men," at Ciro's. What poise, stability, character—and how she carries on the traditions of her race! And how we need more of those Barnum methods in our business!

I understand Universal is thinking of running a chariot race from San Francisco to Syracuse, N. Y., to advertise "The Boys From Syracuse." I suggest they have special truck built with a treadmill and let the horses gallop on the treadmill through the towns, but rest on the truck through the wide-open spaces in between. Horses, like people nowadays, have grown soft. Can you see the populace in the various towns, with horses "Ben-Hur-ing" their way from coast to coast?

And speaking of "The Boys," it will probably start a cycle, as "My Man Godfrey" did. Remember how many screwball pictures went on from that—ad nauseum? But the first is always the best, and "The Boys" will kill you.

This year's $100,000 from the Will Rogers Memorial Fund goes to the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital here, to furnish beds free to our needy actors.

When Bob Hope arrives today he'll be presented by our Chamber of Commerce with the first annual Hollywood Civic Award for garnering national good will for Hollywood.

Richard Greene couldn't accompany Ty Power, Nancy Kelly and Brenda Joyce to Maryland for the opening of that picture because he had been called to England to join the colors. Now he's started another picture . . . Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh closed their New York engagement of "Romeo and Juliet" because England called. Now they're announced for two pictures in Hollywood—probably both studios will battle over them.

But Bob Coote, who wasn't called, left quietly, after some of the most heart-breaking parties given in this town.

Jean Cagney Finds Fight Talk Puzzle

Having majored in languages, Jean Cagney thought she was equipped at least to understand the tongue of her native United States.

While working in "Golden Gloves," however, she has discovered that the lingo of compatriot stage hands, when mixed with the patois of prize ring pugs, is virtually unintelligible.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Detroit, Mich., July 23.—Delmar David Baker, who manages the Detroit Tigers balked gently at coming right out and saying his club would win the pennant. But he seemed highly pleased with the thought. And his grin at the question could be easily translated. It was an eloquent "Why not."

POVICH

Well, why not? Why can't the Tigers take it all in the pennant scramble? There they are. Up in front and doing very well for themselves. They are the one team in the league that seems to have the courage to keep driving in there. With three other first-division clubs, perhaps better equipped, fumbling around and making the least of their chances, the Tigers have kept plodding and now look at 'em—leading the league.

Baker's club won a new host of supporters last week when it slapped down the Red Sox and the Yankees in five straight games. Any sign of weakness by the Tigers in those games would have been doubly damaging. They were carrying the fight to the two clubs that appeared to be the most troublesome and in each city they spiked a budding resurgence to power.

The Tiger's triumphs in the East were in striking contrast to the woeful showing of the Indians who went into Washington leading the league and proceeded to lose three straight—and their lead. Baseball men place great store by such comparisons, because pennants are won only by edging out the tough teams, but by beating the living daylights out of the push-over clubs.

Baker, however, knows it is going to be a long haul from here to the finish. The Tigers, despite their eminent rating in the league standings, are by no means a solid club. They have infield and pitching worries of which they are too shockingly aware. They are gambling at shortstop and third base with such as Frank Croucher and Red Kress who never were rated as stars. Croucher can't hit and Kress can't run. They are replacing the regulars, Dick Bartell, who can't get around, and Frank Higgins, who is similiarly no gazelle.

The Tigers have that ugly-sounding but very expressive attribute called guts, however. Another club might have folded if it lost the services of the best pitcher on its staff as the Tigers lost Buck Newsom due to a broken thumb, but Baker's club rebounded from that jolt characteristically. Tommy Bridges and Harold Newhouser held the Yankees to a single run in a doubleheader.

Down South this spring the Tigers appeared to be hopeless as pennant contenders. They looked for all the world like the same club that had finished fifth in 1939, and only a few weeks before Judge Landis had deprived them of 96 players in their farm system. In nobody's imagination did the Tigers appear to be a good ball club. Their pitching was dubious and their outfield was laughable.

Baker, himself, was painfully worried. Fred Hutchinson, the $75,000 rookie pitcher, wasn't able to win in the South. Thirdbaseman Frank Higgins, never able to cover much ground, could neither field nor throw. At first base Rudy York was woeful. A half dozen times Baker was ready to call off the whole experiment which sent Hank Greenberg to the outfield and reinstall him at first base as a defensive measure. York was on the market.

The most amazing feature of the race the Tigers are making concerns York. All of a sudden he has blossomed not only as a fair firstbaseman, but as a good one. It's apparent now that his slovenly play in the South was due to his slowness in rounding into condition. Forgotten, perhaps, at that time was the fact that York, a big man, needed steady work to be at his best. Once the season sarted York began to prove himself.

A year ago Detroit was a town divided against itself. A Detroiter belongs to one of two camps—York's or Greenberg's. The city was cleft down the middle on the first base situation. York was no firstbaseman, one faction insisted. He was a better firstbaseman than Greenberg, others declared. The argument has resulted in a pretty good draw. York is no worse, no better than Greenberg as a firstbaseman, which is no insult to York.

Similarly, Greenberg's shift to the outfield has kept his big bat in the line-up. How important that is may be seen in the league's run-batted-in figures which show Greenberg leading the league in that item with 79 runs driven across the plate. York could not catch and he refused to play the outfield. First base was his only haven as a big leaguer, and to the successful York-Greenberg shift, Baker can credit most of the Tigers' triumphs.

We don't mean to make out a case for the Tigers as pennant winners, however. We think their infield is too shaky and that Newsom's loss will be too much of a jolt even for the club with the most courage in the league. The team that we think will win the pennant is now down in fourth place, only seven games out of it, and with 71 more games to play.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, July 23.—The police arrested only one gent among the several hundred low-down, yellow-striped fans who tried to bash in the skull of Umpire Joe Rue at the Yankee Stadium Sunday. The culprit was one Manuel Perez, of Waterburn, Conn., and Magistrate Alf M. Lindau fined him $5 on a disorderly conduct charge.

CONSIDINE

The five-buck fine probably hurt, but it is to be regretted that the good magistrate wasn't more severe. Perez and his spineless counterparts, all of them made brave by the fact that they were safely separated from Rue by some yards of grandstand and other obstacles, are a mockery of the word sport. It is too bad that there wasn't some way to identify all of them, get their pictures or fingerprints into a baseball rogue's gallery and keep them out of ball yards for life.

That Perez and the others missed Rue's head by a few inches doesn't reduce their crime to the disorderly conduct class. They endangered not only the life of an honest official who had the courage to call a foul a foul but also the lives of men and women and women fans who were helpless in the path of bottles.

Mark Hanna, a nephew of the late Gustave Fan, suggests a punishment which would throw fearful terror into bottle-slinging cowards. He suggests that the local owners ask for a larger police detachment at the park and that the sensible fans themselves be asked to spot bottle throwers so that the police can nab them. Then follows the inquisition which would reduce most of the gutless jerks to masses of swooning flesh. Then police would drag them off their chairs, down the ramp and present them face to face to the ump or the coach or player at whom they heaved the bottles. Then Hanna would seek the support of the newspapers and have the bum's picture printed, to give proper circulation to the felony, then turn him over to the nearest night court—which would prove a haven to the tramp after the horror of facing the defenseless man he was getting so tough with when he had the protection of a fence and anonymity.

Gene Sarazen and Lawson Little have done right well by fat Eddie Oliver, the Hornell, N. Y., pro who tied them for the United States Open title, only to be disqualified for starting too early. Little played him a couple of money-making exhibitions, and predicted that he would win the Open within the next few years. Now Sarazen is going to take him on an ambitious exhibition itinerary, sponsored by Golf Magazine. The tour starts August 1 and will include many of the States.

We can't understand the cry of horror that has gone up from certain legislators at the suggestion by a group called Pari-Mutuel Service, Inc., that it be permitted to open legalized off-the-course betting booths. Attorney General Bennett of New York says that it would be putting the State in the horse-parlor business.

Seems to us that it was reasoning of this nature which enabled the Capones, Torios and the rest of that rancid creed to form and thrive during prohibition. The drys said that the country never could legalize beer, wine and alcohol because it was evil. Eventually we recovered consciousness and muscled the bootleggers out of business and brought about laws which took the bathtub flavor out of drinking. And the country, instead of the muggs, began making money out of our thirst.

Another Free-for-All as Dodgers Drop Pair to Cincinnati

The usual high old time was had in Brooklyn yesterday as the Flatbush boys battled for a pennant chance. Lower is what started it all when Pee Wee Reese (No. 1) jumped into a battle at second, after Linus Frey slid into the base with his spikes up and engaged in a punching battle with Pete Coscarart, Dodger second sacker. Coscarart and Frey Start 'Riot' in Opener; Brooklyn Now 7 Games Back

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, July 23.—The brash Brooklyn Dodgers got into another brawl and out of the National League pennant picture in one long, turbulent scene today, dropping a double-header to the Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 3 in 11 innings, and 9 to 2 in nine.

Cincinnati's conquests in front of a noisy, capacity crowd of 40,000 at Ebbets Field increased the margin separating the two clubs to seven full games.

The first fracas was as wild and furious as any adventure story, climaxed by a fight between Lonnie Frey, of the Reds, and Pete Coscarart, of the Dodgers, in the eighth inning.

The Battle Starts

The Reds were trailing 3 to 2 at the time, and had Bill Werber on third and Frey on first as the result of a single, a sacrifice and an error. Then Frank McCormick grounded to Peewee Reese at short, who threw to Coscarart as Frey came sliding into second high and hard to forestall a double play.

As soon as Coscarart got his throw away he and Frey dived at each other and the players of both teams rushed into the melee. Pitcher Whitlow Wyatt of the Dodgers, who still is bothered by a knee injury he reecived in a collision with Frey last summer, got in several good licks with his glove as Frey lay prostrate on the ground.

Pitcher Gene Thompson of the Reds was spiked on his right ankle and two stitches were necessary to close the gash. Coscarart also was spiked on the left knee in the scuffle, but not seriously.

When order was restored, Coscarart and Frey were out of the game by direction, Thompson was out with his injury and the score was tied, Werber having tallied on the critical play.

Reds Fnally Win

It took until the eleventh to get another run across, but the Reds finally made it on a scorching double down the leftfield foul line by Ernie Lombardi, a sacrifice and a single into left center by Mike McCormick. Lee Gamble did the running for Lombardi.

It was the twenty-first game this year that the Reds had won by one run, and was credited to Relief Pitcher Joe Beggs, the former Yanke farmhand, who has won six and lost two in Cincinnati livery.

Brooklyn outhit the Reds, 10 to 8, and could have triumphed except for four errors, three of them costly. Wyatt struck out nine men, three in one inning, and was in trouble in the regulation distance only when his mates let him down.

The second game was a nonstop excursion for the Reds to their tenth double-header victory of the year.

Dodger Pitchers Shelled

The champions slammed four Brooklyn pitchers for 17 hits and rolled up six runs before Lloyd (Whitey) Moore gave the Dodgers a run in the sixth. In getting his fourth win, he held Brooklyn to seven hits, including a homer by Harry Lavagetto in the eighth.

Werber started Cincinnati's scoring with a home run in the third, and the Reds drove Curt Davis to

2 Set Record In Publinx Golf Tourney

149 Needed to Qualify for Match Play; D. C. Boys Fail

By the Associated Press

Detroit, July 23.—All scoring records for United States Golf Association amateur competition were obliterated today with a mighty conquest of par by the Nation's crack public links players.

Striding the fairways in breathless, sultry heat, two of the 190 contestants in the national championship—Worth Stimits, jr., of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Edward J. Furgol, of Utica, N. Y.—smashed the 19-year-old qualifying record of 139 by a stroke and the 64 players who survived the qualifying test shot 149 or better, the lowest qualifying mark in the history of this or any other U. S. G. A. event.

Oliveri Qualifies

Andy Oliveri was the only one of the four District of Columbia entries to qualify, the airplane factory worker making the grade after a one-hole playoff with others who carded 149. John Jankowski, Kenneth Dent and Robert I. Morris failed with 160, 163 and 159 respectively.

Washington finished twenty-seventh in the race for team title, which was won by San Francisco. The D. C. squad score for the 36-hole route was 472, an aggregate of rounds by Zent, Oliveri and Jankowski.

Stimits, a senior of Colorado College and champion of the Rocky Mountain Conference, added another 69 to his 2-under-par score of yesterday.

Furgol, 22-year-old metal polisher who had been playing golf only four years, scored 68 today to go with his 70 of yesterday. He had a great chance to take the undisputed lead when he came to the last hole 4 under par, but an approach into the rough wrecked his hopes.

Two other 68s, lowest score of the tournament, were fired today.

Ties Former Mark

Charles Lind, of Denver, scored one of them to go with his 71 of yesterday, tying the former qualifying record and taking third place. Walter Gilliam, of San Mateo, Calif., was the other 68 shooter and his 140 total deadlocked him with Adrian French, of Huntington Park, Calif., for fourth position. French, one of six men who had 69c to lead at the halfway mark, scored a fine 71 today.

Stimits and Furgol took the record away from George Aulbach, of Boston, a competitor in the 1922 tournament at Toledo, and Don Erickson, of Alhambra, Calif., who equalled the mark in the 1937 meet at Toledo.

The highest score ever to qualify for match play was the 151 record set at Cleveland in 1938.

For the national amateur the qualifying record is 139, set last

Borotra to Emphasize Athletics in France

Grenoble, France, July 23 (AP).—Jean Borotra, former internatoinal tennis star and now France's director of sports, has announced physical educatoin henceforth will occupy a place of importance equal to that of intellectual education in French schools.

The newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois, in a dispatch from Vichy, quoted Borotra as saying his job in the revolutionized educational scheme will be difficult because of the nation's "softness and previous indifference."

Browns Stop Yanks, 9 to 5, AmidManyHits

Both Starting Pitchers Batted Out in First Inning of Battle

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, July 23.—The St. Louis Browns walloped the New York Yankees, 9 to 5, tonight in a free-hitting contest in which both starting pitchers were batted from the hill before the 11,755 paying customers had settled into their seats.

The Yankees pounded Emil Bildilli for three runs in the first when Charley Keller's double sent two runners across, but the Browns matched the outburst in their half as Walt Judnich hit the first of his two homers with a mate on base.

Bildilli gave way to a pinch hitter in the first and Steve Sundra, who started for the Yanks followed him to the showers in favor of Bump Hadley in the second when the Browns got another three runs on two walks and three singles.

Bill Trotter who took over the mound duties for the Browns at the start of the second frame, held the New Yorkers to one run over the remainder of the route.

Judnich, with two homers and a single driving in four runs, and Harold Clift with four for four, including a double, led the St. Louisans' 14-hit attack.

Van Horn, Rogers Bow In Seabright Net Play

Bellis Tops Third-Ranked Ace, 8-6, 6-8, 6-2, While Irishman Yields to Schroeder; Hunt, Grant and Other Favorites Reach Third Round

By the Associated Press

Seabright, N. J., July 23.—Two seeded performers—Welby Van Horn, of Los Angeles, and George Lyttleton-Rogers, of Ireland—were driven to the sidelines today in upset conquests as the annual Seabright Lawn Tennis Club Tourney went into the round before the quarter-finals.

Isadore Bellis, of Philadelphia, outlasted Van Horn, 8—6, 6—8, 6—2, and Frederick (Ted) Schroder, jr., 19-year-old from Glendale, Calif., eliminated the former Irish Davis Cupper, 2—6, 6—2, 6—2.

Runner-up for the National Championship to Bobby Riggs last September, Van Horn was seeded third in the tourney's favored list of home players. Lyttleton-Rogers was in the second preferred position in the foreign group.

Bellis, who missed several opportunities to run out the match in the second set, stood up remarkably against Van Horn's devastating but erratic power and won out by tireless retrieving.

Schroeder, ranked No. 1 last year among America's junior players, combined steadiness and speed overhead to tire and defeat the 34-year-old Lyttleton-Rogers.

Defending Champion Frankie Parker of Pasadena led the way into the third round with an impressive 6—1, 6—2 triumph over Edward C. Alloo, San Francisco. Parker kept the ball chipping the corners and the baseline and never gave Alloo real opportunity for attack.

The second day was a good one for veterans all along the line. Former National Titlist Wilmer Allison, Houston, Tex.; Ladislav Hecht, ertswhile Czecho-Slovak Davis Cup ace; Bryan M. Grant, Atlanta, and Henry P. Prusoff, Seattle, survived extended tests.

A duel between a pair of veterans ended with Sidney B. Wood, jr., New York, topping Hal Surface, Kansas City, 6—2, 6—4.

Allison played the longest match in ousting young William Talbert, Cincinnati, 11—9, 4—6, 7—5.

Keeping pace with the advance were Gilbert A. Hunt, Washington, D. C.; Owen Anderson, Los Angeles; Jack Kramer, Montebello, Calif.; Gardner Mulloy, Coral Gables, Fla.; Elwood T. Cooke, Portland, Oreg.; Jack Kovacs, Oakland, Calif., and George A. Toley, Los Angeles. Riggs won his way into the third round yesterday.

Play in the women's division followed form, National Champion Alice Marble and Seabright Titlist Helen Bernhard, of New York, leading the field into the third round.

Angott Favored In Nontitle Go With Castiglione

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 23.—Sammy Angott, of Louisville, Ky., recognized as the lightweight champion in 46 States, was a strong favorite tonight on the eve of his non-title 10-round battle with young Nick Castiglione, of Chicago.

The two will mix in Mills Stadium in the West Side.

Angott won recognition as the National Boxing Association titleholder by whipping Davey Day, of Chicago, last May.

Castiglione is a rugged fighter and sharp puncher, but lacks Angott's experience and ring savvy. The Louisville fighter, however, is taking nothing for granted.

This is evidenced by the fact that his manager, Charlie Jones, has engaged Jack Blackburn, trainer of Joe Louis, to second Angott tomorrow night.

Wooderson in Final Race Before Joining Army

London, July 23 (AP).—Sydney Wooderson, the little bank clerk who holds the world record of 4:06.4 for the mile, ran his final exhibition race today before joining the British army.

He won from a set of clubmates what received varying handicaps, but his time was comparatively slow —4:22.5.

Nats Upset Detroit, 6-3; Chase Victor

Southpaw Allows Leaders Seven Hits; Griffs Slug Hard

By Shirley Povich.

Post Staff Writer

Detroit, July 23.—The mean old Nats came into Detroit today and jarred a few of the natives' illusions about the Tigers. With no regard for the lofty estate of the league-leading Detroit club, Washington's nondescripts handed the Tigers a 6-3 defeat and shattered their three-game winning streak.

Ken Chase, who is in the sixth year of his tryout as a Washington pitcher, chose this afternoon to contribute one of his well-pitched ball games. In defiance of the long-held theory that left-handers are not supposed to beat the Detroit club, Southpaw Chase let them down roughly with seven hits.

Two of the Tiger blows were home runs—by Dick Bartell and Rudy York—but not until the ninth did Chase give up more than one hit in any one inning, and the last Tiger run was tainted by an error by Cecil Travis.

Baker Starts Rookie

Manager Del Baker reserved his best pitchers from the game and attempted to beat the Nats with Rookie Johnny Gorsica. Humph! They unloaded a 14-hit attack against Gorsica, Tom Seats and Dizzy Trout, and no less than six of their blows were two-baggers.

Chase was bearing down magnificently to hold the Tigers in check, while the Nats wiped out the little matter of that 1-0 lead Detroit acquired when Dick Bartell greeted Chase with a home run into the left-field seats in the first inning. Chase didn't give up another run until the seventh when York led off the inning with a blast into the center-field bleachers to end five consecutive scoreless innings.

Now, here's the way the Nats won the ball game:

Myer Doubles

They slugged themselves into a 1-1 tie in the second inning when Travis led off by beating out a hit to Bartell. Buddy Myer walloped a long double to center and Travis streaked all the way home.

The gave Chase a 2-1 lead in the fourth inning when Walker led off with a single to center. Travis whacked a line drive against the fence in right center for three bases. The Nats muffed a big inning at that point when Myer grounded into an out and Pofahl fanned.

In the fifth, George Case and Gee Walker collaborated to improve Washington's lead to 3-1. Case produced a two bagger down the leftfield line and after Lewis struck

Whizzer White Won't Sling Hash For School Board

Boulder, Colo., July 23 (AP).—Whizzer White isn't going to sling hash again after all.

Byron White, 1937 Colorado all American football star who was paid $15,000 for one pro football season, turned down today a campus table waiting job so he could have time to visit friends as well as study during the University of Colorado summer school session.

He had been offered the job he had while he was an undergraduate at his Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity house, operated as a women student's boarding house in summer.

White, forced by the war to quit Rhodes scholarship study at Oxford, will return to the Yale University law school in the fall.

Louis to Retire at End of Year, Predicts N. Y. Boxing Official

Oklahoma City, July 23.—Col. D. Walker Wear, member of the New York athletic commission, predicted today Joe Louis would retire as heavyweight champion at the end of this year.

"I talked with Louis recently and he is all wrapped up in his riding stable near Detroit. The guy has never cared much about fighting and now I think he definitely has decided to quit. He simply has lost interest in the game."

Wear had some other observations about boxing. For instance, he thinks Mike Jacobs is a saviour of the business and not the mitt monopolist he has been painted by some of his enemies.

"He's a lot like Tex Rickard, only smarter. He's smarter in that he puts his boxers under yearly contracts, but I wouldn't call him a monopolist. He's taking a big gamble with every boxer he tied up."

Milnar Hurls Six-Hit Ball Under Lights

Roy Weatherley Knocks in Lone Run Of Game at Cleveland; John Babich Is Loser

Cleveland, July 23.—Al Milnar pitched his thirteenth victory of the season tonight as the Cleveland Indians edged the Philadelphia Athletics, 1 to 0, to draw within a half game of the league leading Detroit Tigers. Roy Weatherly singled home the deciding run in the hurling duel between Johnny Babich and Milnar, each giving up six hits.

Both flingers fanned four, but Milnar got in some tight spots through issuing five walks. The Cleveland southpaw has lost five games while Babich now has eight setbacks against the same number of victories.

The Athletics threatened in the fourth and Ben Chapman misjudged Al Brancato's drive, allowing it to go for a triple. The shortstop was caught attempting to steal home.

The winning run came in the fifth on Rollie Hemsley's single, Milnar's sacrifice and one of Weatherly's three singles.

Dick Siebert singled to start the ninth and after Milnar retired two men, he walked Brancato. However, Pinch-hitter Earl Brucker fouled out to end the game.

About 25,000 watched the contest, the first game of a two-week home stand for the Indians.

Hubbell Holds Bucs; Giants Score by 9-1

By the Associated Press

New York, July 23.—Carl Hubbell found the electric lights to his liking again tonight and pitched the New York Giants to a 9-to-1 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates, holding them to five hits.

The veteran southpaw, who made his debut as a night game star only last week at Pittsburgh with a six-hit victory, never allowed a run after the first inning, and that one was unearned.

He had the help of a 17-hit attack led by his roommate, Mel Ott, with a home run and two singles good for five tallies.

From All Over Nation, Publinkers Dig in for Annual Links Play

Gathering at Detroit from all over the United States, and even from Honolulu, public links divot-diggers yesterday participated in qualifying rounds for their annual golf championships. Honest Publinker Nearly Misses Tourney Berth

By the Associated Press

Detroit, July 23.—Howard Olson, a golfer from Tacoma, Wash., called a two-stroke penalty on himself today in the qualifying round of the National Public Links championship and as a result had to go through a playoff ordeal to earn a place in the match competition that starts tomorrow.

Coming to the last green Olson hooked his drive into the rough. He got out nicely and down in five only to discover the ball he had played was not his own.

Olson, who was the only person aware of the change in balls, immediately informed officials of the incident, went back and found his own ball, and accepted a two-shot penalty for holing out the wrong ball. As a result he took a six on the hole and finished with a 149 stroke total. He played off with ten other golfers for nine places and survived.

Regatta Heads Okay New Dates For Annual Event

The President's Cup Regatta committee last night confirmed the dates of September 27, 28 and 29 for the fourteenth annual running of Washington's motorboat classic. Following a meeting of committee chairmen at the Shoreham Hotel, Chairman John A. Remon announced that the dates sanctioned by the American Power Boat Commission had been approved, and that the annual regatta will be staged with the many additional features that have made this racing event one of the most colorful in the country.

The complete program, as announced by Remon, includes sailing races on the week-end of September 14-15; model yacht races, September 15; swimming events, Saturday, September 21; canoeing and rowing events, Sunday, September 22; illuminated water carnival, Friday, September 27; outboard races, September 27, and inboard races, the week-end of September 28-29.

Ken Chase was the standout guy for the Nats yesterday as they opened their Western swing with a 6-3 victory over Detroit. On the basis of the game, Man of the Month points were awarded as follows:

To Chase, 15 points, because he held the Tigers in check with seven hits and won his game, allowing only two earned runs.

To Buddy Myer, six points, because he drove in the Nats' first run with a double, and because his sixth-inning double figured directly in two more runs.

To Cecil Travis, four points, because his single led to the Nats' first run and because his triple produced their second run.

To Gee Walker, four points, because he made three hits, scored a run and drove in a run.

To George Case, three points, because he doubled and singled, scoring a run and driving in a run.

To Buddy Lewis, three points, because he doubled and singled, driving in a run.

To Rick Ferrell, two points, because he drove in a run with his two-bagger. The totals:

Woman Asks $34,000 Damages For Alleged Slander of Horse

By the Associated Press

San Francisco, July 23.—Can you slander the good name of a horse by saying in a letter he is the victim of a disease?

This extraordinary social issue came up today in a $34,000 suit involving War Glory, a thoroughbred stallion owned by Mrs. May Carreaud.

She believes War Glory, a son of the great Man 'o War and a three-quarter brother of War Admiral, has been laid open to public shame, humilition and even disgrace by the mere suggestion of such a thing.

In her suit, Mrs. Carreud says that Mrs. Jane Richey Rolph, wife of James Rolph 3d—son and namesake of the late Governor and mayor of San Francisco—hired the stallion for breeding purposes at $5,000 a year in 1937.

Mrs. Rolph was said to have written in May of 1939 that War Glory had contracted the disease and would Mrs. Carreaud please come and get her horse and forget the lease.

Mrs. Carreaud, whose stables have housed a number of famous racers, including Time Supply, would not do anything of the kind. She said a contract was a contract and War Glory was a clean-living horse without a blemish, let alone the disease mentioned.

Dr. J. E. Peters, a veterinarian, testified today War Glory was not diseased. The Rolphs produced a laboratory analysis saying he was.

So the judge and jury will have that one to figure out after hearing some more opinions of technical witnesses.

Mrs. Carreaud, saying the horse formerly was worth $25,000 and now wouldn't bring $1,000, asked for $24,000 for impairment of War Glory's value, plus $10,000 she contends remains unpaid on the contract.

Accident Gives Publinx Golfer Correct Swing

By the Associated Press

Detroit, July 23.—No golf professional or anyone else for that matter has ever told Edward J. Furgol, of Utica, N. Y., new co-holder of the National Public Links qualifying record, about the golf fundamental of keeping the left arm stiff at the moment the club hits the ball.

The reason is that Furgol, who has been playing golf for only four years, can't keep the left arm anything but stiff because of an injury received in an automobile accident.

Few golfers ever set a record under more trying circumstances. Furgol drove all night Sunday to get to Detroit, arriving at the Rackham Course 16 minutes before the time he was to tee off. Without any knowledge of the layout he went out and shot a one-under-par 70. Today he added a 68 to set the record he now shares with Worth Stimits, jr., of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Oklahoma Star Joins Redskins

Bob Seymour, All-Big Six fullback from Oklahoma, forwarded his signed contract to the Redskins yesterday, bringing to 40 the total number of players in the fold. A good passer and blocker, Seymour was considered the standout line plunger in the conference last year year at Chicago by Thomas Sheehan, of Detroit.

The lowest score ever required to qualify for the amateur was 150 in 1933 and only 32 men qualified as compared to the 64 here.

All alone in sixth place, four strokes off the pace, was James Johnson, Detroit insurance salesman, who carded a 70 today to go with his Monday's 72.

Andrew Szwedko, of Pittsburgh, the 1939 victor, rallied with a fine finishing 35 for a 73 and a 147 total.

David A. Mitchell, of Atlanta, champion in 1934, carded his second 74 for a 148 score.

Carl F. Kaufman, of Pittsburgh, winner in 1927, 1928 and 1929 and the only three-time champion, shot a nice 73 to go with his 72 of Monday.

Most astonishing of the casualties was Charles Ferrera, of San Francisco, 1931 and 1933 winner, who was one of the first-day leaders with a 69. Ferrera could do nothing right today and finished with an 82 and a 151 total, two strokes too many.

Al Leach, of Cleveland, winner in 1938, improved two strokes on his 77 of yesterday in falling by the wayside.

The team championship and possession of the Warren G. Harding Trophy went to San Francisco's trio of William Fritz, Einar Hanson and Edward Castagnette, who combined for a 435-stroke total. Pittsburgh was second with 437 and Chicago third with 442.

Los Angeles forfeited the team honors which it had won for the last two years when William C. Train picked up.

Two 18-hole rounds of match play tomorrow will reduce the field of 64 survivors to 16 contestants. The semifinalists who will battle over the 36-hole route on Friday will be determined by two more rounds on Thursday.

In a play-off for 9 places among 11 contestants who scored 149, Samuel Alexander, of Omaha, and Frank Ogrin, jr., of Chicago, were eliminated, both men taking sixes on the par 4 420-yard extra hole.

Eastern Stars Beat Central In B. C. Loop

The Eastern Division All-Stars blanked the Central Division All-Stars, 7-0, yesterday in a Washington Boys Club Baseball League exhibition as Gosnell and Dorgan between them allowed only four hits and fanned 15.

Gosnell worked the first five innings, permitted three hits and struck out 7. Dorgan finished the game, yielding but one safety in the last four frames while fanning 8.

The Eastern Division stars clinched the game with a five-run outburst in the fourth inning. They added their last two runs in the sixth. Randolph, going four innings, and Vail pitched for the losers.

Cubs Beat Bees in Opener

Rookie Southpaw Holds Boston as Chicago Wins, 6-1

By the Associated Press

Boston, July 23.—Rookie Ken Raffensberger's southpaw slants baffled the Bees in all but the first inning today and the Chicago Cubs opened the Boston club's long home stay by subjecting it to a 6-1 drubbing.

Raffensberger gave the Bees eight hits and had four strikeouts while limiting his victims to one base on balls. The Cubs salted the game away against Joe Sullivan, the Bees' young portsider, by combining four singles and a pass for three runs in the first inning. Hank Leiber drove in two of them by connecting with the bases loaded.

The Cubs loaded the bases before Sullivan could get any of them out in the second inning, but Al Javery took over the mound and worked himself out of the hole at the cost of another run. The Cubs added two more tallies in the eighth on Leiber's double, two more singles and a wild pitch.

The Boston attack stalled after Johnny Cooney, Sebby Sisti and Chet Ross singled in close order in the opening frame.

Zeke Bonura reported to the Cubs in time to take over the first base assignment, and he beat out a roller for a hit and handled five fielding chances cleanly.

CardsBombard Blanton, Beat Phillies, 7-3

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, July 23.—St. Louis shelled Cy Blanton for ten hits in the first five innings today to open their Eastern invasion with an easy 7-to-3 victory over the Phillies before a ladies' day crowd of 4,000.

The Cards clinched the game in the fifth by bunching four hits with Catcher Bill Atwood's error to score four runs, their ultimate margin of victory. Walter Beck replaced Blanton at the start of the sixth to stop the scoring thereafter.

Merrill May, star Phil third baseman, watched the game from the grandstand, sidelined by a foot injury suffered in Sunday's doubleheader at Chicago. He will be out of action for several days.

Confusion Hits Maryland Open as Rains Flood Columbia Course

Half of Field To Complete Play Today

George Miller, Cox In Temporary Lead; Coffey Has Best Score With 11 to Go

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The afternoon cloudburst that transformed the Columbia Country Club fairways into rivers and the greens into lakes forced a temporary postponement of part of the Maryland State Open Championship yesterday and threw a record field of 81 contestants into temporary confusion.

Action was thick and fast from the minute the torrential rains started until officials ruled the course unplayable and the contestants who did not complete their rounds will start at 9 o'clock this morning from the point of interruption.

Course Is Flooded

Less than half the field had completed the double rounds when the rains came and in just a few minutes the course was flooded. Some players straggled in, others sent caddies in for a decision, one threesome played it out and still others quit in disgust and went home before a ruling was made.

The coleaders who beat the storm were Wiffy Cox, Congressional pro, with 74, 71—145, and George F. Miller, host club amateur, who played the last half of the thirty-sixth hole in the rain and finished by chipping in the cup for a birdie three for 73, 72—145.

The morning round leader from Winchester, Va., Rut Coffey, had played eight holes in even par and, with his sub-par 69 in the morning, he was definitely the man to beat. Coffey will start this morning at 9 o'clock by driving from the ninth tee. He can go five over par on the last 11 holes and beat Cox and Miller.

Houghton Scores 144.

Gamest player of the day was the four-time champion from Beaver Dam, Al Houghton, who met the rain on the thirteenth hole and, despite the conditions, he and partners, Volney Burnett and Bill Parker, completed the round. Houghton with 144. They played through the streams and puddles, the amateurs merely keeping the leader company.

Houghton was 71 in the morning and out in 35. He was one over par for 10 through 13, and then played what he termed "the greatest five holes of my life" in two over par. However, his 144 total is not official and he will play from the thirteenth on today, if able. He slipped and fell hard while taking a shower and injured his back and leg.

Burnett also had his troubles. The golfing fireman was playing a shot on the thirty-fourth hole and the club slipped from his hands into the water rushing down the fairway and the current carried it to the bottom of the irrigation lake bordering the thirty-fifth hole. In addition, his rain-soaked glasses were swept away while he was playing a shot. He had placed them on the ground.

Two Threats Remain

Coffey, one under par for 26 official holes, and Houghton, two over for 31, will have to watch East Potomac Pro Cliff Spencer and Suburban mentor Ralph Beach today. Spencer was 72-35 and bogeyed the tenth hole. He will start on 11, or 29, three over par. Beach, a playing partner of Coffey, trailed him by four shots, three over par for eight holes with 72-32.

In temporary possession of second place is Lewis Worsham, Burning Tree, with 70-76, 146, and Johnny Bass, Clifton Park, with 72-74. Worsham led the morning finishers until Coffey finished, but he hit trouble in the afternoon. Woodmont Pro Gene Larkin finished with 75-72, 147. All were in before the storm.

The unprecedented situation that confronts the rained out played this morning will be a mad scramble, with all the boys starting from the golf shop to resume their places when forced to quit by the storm. Otto Greiner, Baltimore amateur, and former Champion Charles Betschler, of Hillendale, will drive 40 miles to play just two holes, 35 and 36. Billy Shaa, Congressional amateur, was the last one off in the afternoon and he had 13 holes to play.

Overton Has Chance

Spencer Overton, the Middle Atlantic champion, is the only amateur with a chance to top Miller and he needs a par 35 on the last nine for 145. He quit with 73-37.

Andy Gibson, also a former champion from Bonnie View, was playing the eleventh hole and ran for shelter with his ball on the edge of the green. When the rain slackened and he went for his ball it had washed 100 yards down the fairway.

The lake between 16 and 17 overflowed and Houghton's threesome waded in water up to their waists to get from the eighteenth tee to the fairway. They finished barefooted.

Leo Walper was stopped in the midst of the hottest streak of the day. The driving range professional slumped to a 43 on the first nine and in the afternoon was out in subpar 34. He was one over par for four holes of the back

Biltmore Medal To Dorothy Kirby

Asheville, N. C., July 23 (AP).—Dorothy Kirby, slender links star from Atlanta, toured the Biltmore Forest Country Club layout in 76 shots today to capture medal honors in the women's invitation golf tournament from a field of 49 competitors.

Playing consistently, the Georgian won the medal by three strokes over Jane Crum, of Orangeburg, S. C., Miss Kirby was out in 37 and back in 39 for her one-over-women's-par score. Miss Crum carded a 39-40.

Little Louise Suggs, the Georgia champion from Lithia Springs, posted a 42-40—82 for third place, and one stroke back was Jane Cothran, defending champion from Greenville, S. C.

The torrential rains washed out all or part of the last nine holes for half the Maryland Open championship field yesterday at Columbia, and the players who did not finish before the rain will resume play this morning. Left—An umbrella covers Rut Coffey (left) who was one under par for 26 holes, and John O'Donnell, defending champion, who was nine over for 32 holes. Center—The rain flooded the eighteenth green and fairway and made play virtually impossible, although Al Houghton played the hole in a one over par five. Right—Houghton, a four-time champion, wrings the water from his shirt. A few minutes later he slipped in the shower and he may not be able to complete his round today. Nile Kinnick Leading Poll For Star Game

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 23.—Nile Kinnick, Iowa's dazzling little sparkplug of 1939, will get one more chance to show his football wizardry whether he takes a shot at the pro game or not.

Kinnick, who has been debating a future in the pro ranks, leads the Nation's players in polling votes for the All-Star game in Soldier Field August 29. The voting deadline is tonight at midnight.

Kinnick's votes assure him of a place on the squad and if he is one of the top two among the halfbacks in the final count, he'll be a member of the Collegians' starting lineup.

Opposing the All-Stars, composed of college seniors of 1939, in the annual spectacle will be the Green Bay Packers, champions of the National League.

Final results of the poll will be announced tomorrow.

Weatherly Told To Calm Down, or Face Final Ban

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, July 23.—Roy (Stormy) Weatherly must tone down his blasts at umpires or the American League may suspend him indefinitely, Oscar Vitt, Cleveland manager, said today.

The Cleveland outfielder was tossed out of the first game of a double header at Boston Sunday for protesting a strike called by Umpire Bill McGowan.

League President William Harridge wrote Vitt there will be no fine or suspension this time. But Vitt said:

"Harridge is burned up plenty about our Roy. He told me if there is a repetition of last Sunday's affair the league is going to take drastic action—probably suspending Weatherly indefinitely."

Weatherly was suspended three days and fined $25 earlier in the season for a dispute with an arbiter.

CHAMP OF LAKE MICHIGAN:

Chicago Yacht Bangalore Wins Annual Race to Mackinac Island

By the Associated Press

Mackinac Island, Mich., July 23.—Flying the colors of the Chicago Yacht Club, Bangalore today compiled the best recorded time of the first 28 boats to cross the finish line in the Chicago-to-Mackinac yacht race.

The Bangalore, in the cruising division, posted a corrected time of 62 hours 42 minutes and 56 seconds, which placed it ahead of Otto Dreher's sloop, Lively Lady, of Milwaukee's South Shore Club. Corrected time of Lively Lady was 62:58:27.

In third place was the Gloriant, of the Racine (Wis.) Yacht Club, with a corrected time of 63:25:57, followed by the Warrior, of the Chicago Yacht Club, with a corrected time of 63:49:34.

Near Dead Calm

As the wind died down and left the boats almost becalmed, the race lost its spectacular interest toward the finish of the 331-mile course up Lake Michigan. Approximately ten boats have still to cross the final mark.

First to cross the line at 8:35 a. m. was Revenge, in Class A cruising division, the scratch boat in the race. Elapsed time for Revenge, owned by Blair Walliser and Kenneth Griffin, of Chicago, was 65 hours 35 minutes and 24 seconds. As a scratch boat, the elapsed time of the Revenge had to stand while other boats surpassed its mark on a corrected time basis.

Crosses Before Noon

Manitou, winner of the Port Huron-to-Mackinac race two weeks ago, crossed the finish line before noon. Its corrected time was 68:07:43.

Among the other finishers were: Apache, of the Detroit Yacht Club, corrected time 66:54:47; Royono, of Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, corrected time 67:40:34, and Siren, of the Toledo Yacht Club, corrected time 66:22:24.

Mayfair and Capitol Win Softball Games

Mayfair came up with three runs in the eighth yesterday to defeat the Earle Theater band ten, 11-8, in an extra-inning Nightowl Softball League game. In another league encounter Capitol Theater, though outhit 14-10, beat Wardman Park Hotel musicians, 8-7. Star in the Mayfair victory was Bernie Askin, who had four hits for a perfect day at bat.

Gilbert Mayo, Truminello Fight Monday

Pair Matched for a SixRounder on Card At Griffith Stadium

Gilbert Mayo, local Golden Gloves featherweight champion, and Vince Truminello, Baltimore's Golden Gloves titleholder, both campaigning as professionals, yesterday were matched for a six-rounder on Monday night's boxing card featuring Joe Louis' fighter, Holman Williams, against Wild Bill McDowell, of Dallas, at Griffith Stadium. The Brown Bomber will referee this six-round semiwindup bout.

A few weeks ago Mayo, an Alexandrian, and Truminello fought to a stirring four-round draw at the ball park, and hundreds of fans have asked for a rematch.

Mayo went to the semifinals of the Eastern Golden Gloves tournament in New York before losing. Truminello cleaned up all Golden Glaves opposition in Baltimore. It will be the third pro bout for both Mayo and Truminello.

Matchmaker Gabe Menendez announced that Johnny Dean, the colorful North Carolina lightweight, has returned to town for a six-rounder against El Brookman, of this city. Dean is the lad who enters the ring with a cap cocked on the side. He has been headlined locally.

Another item of particular interest was the news passed along by John Roxborough, Louis' comanager, that he and the Bomber are willing to guarantee Henry Armstrong $15,000 to defend his title against Holman Williams either in Chicago, Detroit or Washington—provided Williams defeats McDowell Monday.

It also is recalled that Joe Turner has offered Armstrong $15,000, too, to risk his title in Washington, but thus far has heard no word from the champion.

Jurges Out of Line-up for Week

New York, July 23 (AP).—Bill Jurges, the sure-handed shortstop of the Giants, who was hit by a pitched ball a month ago today, will be lost to the team a week longer and perhaps indefinitely, it was disclosed tonight.

Upon the club's return today from a road trip Jurges was examined by Dr. C. R. Palmer, who found him suffering from a "derangement of the inner ear of the left ear."

Jurges suffered dizzy spells when he tried to return to the line-up in the West.

The physician added that there was no way of foretelling how long Jurges would need to recover.

Those Guys Who Enlighten You Daily on Sports Declare Battle

The paunchy gents who tell you how others look playing sports will have their chance to perform tonight at 7:45 when the Radio Commentators All-Star softball team meets Buckingham All-Stars in the first game of a double-header at Ballston.

Playing for the radiomen will be Arch McDonald, Bill Coyle and others, with recruit Abe Rosenfield pitching. Bob Masterson, star Redskins end who has blossomed this season into a standout softball pitcher, will be on the mound for Buckingham. Masterson is claimed to have a strikeout average of ten per game. Relief pitcher for Masterson will be Hal Steffis, another star recruit.

Following this game will be a Dixie League engagement between Standard Linen, finalist in the recently concluded Middle Atlantic Softball Championships, and I. B. M., one of the teams Standard eliminated in that tournament. I. B. M. protested the loss, forwarding its complaint to headquarters of the national association in Chicago where a final decision will be made.

Eager to avenge the Mid-Atlantic tourney loss, I. B. M. tonight will send to the mound Jack Smith, its ace hurler and reputedly the fastest pitcher in local softball ranks. He is undefeated this season.

Ex-Red Player Dies At Cumberland

Special Dispatch to The Post

He was a native of Baltimore and had been a professional ball player with the Cincinnati Reds for 20 years. In later years he was connected with horse racing. He was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Midland.

Surviving, besides his wife, the former Mary L. Nolan, are two stepsons, Patrick Merrbaugh, Gilmore, and John Merrbaugh, Midland, and three brothers and four sisters, all of Baltimore.

Sweepida Runs Saturday in Gold Cup Race

Los Angeles, July 23.—H. C. Hill, owner of Sweepida, champion of the California 3-year-olds, said tonight he would start the gelding in the Hollywood Gold Cup race at a mile and one-quarter Saturday against such top notchers as Challedon, Kayak II, Can't Wait and Viscounty.

"Might as well gamble a $250 starting fee against a winner's prize of $35,000," said Hill. "Sweepida came out of the Hollywood Derby last week in good condition and gets into the Gold Cup with 114 pounds, scale weight for a 3-year-old, to 133 for Kayak II and Challedon. I think we have a chance."

Ralph Neves will ride Sweepida.

Indications were that Challedon, the handicap champion, might go to the post the favorite at 8 to 5, with Kayak, the Argentine he beat twice last year, at 2 to 1, with his stablemate, Advocator.

Big-Time Boxing Goes Back to Coal Mines Tonight as Young Soose Takes on Overlin

Idol of Scranton Meets 165-Lb. Champ In Nontitle Bout

By Jack Cuddy.
United Press Staff Correspondent.

Scranton, Pa., July 23.—They're trying to bring big-time boxing back to the coal mines—trying to lure the leading larrupers back to the land of Latzo and Walker.

Hence we find Middleweight Champion Ken Overlin—most picturesque of current pugilists—reluctantly forsaking his cocktail lounges and squaring off tomorrow night at the Scranton Stadium against brilliant young Billy Soose, pride of the coal and steel men.

Because of a weight agreement, Overlin is not risking his crown against tall, dark and handsome Soose in this interesting ten-rounder, and here in Scranton the swarms of swat enthusiasts assure you that it's lucky for Overlin that his diadem is not on the block, because the Hungarian youngster from Farrell, Pa., will lick him for sure.

Soose, former Penn State amateur, has had 28 professional fights. He performed six times in Scranton and registered six victories, four by the knockout route. Hence the Scranton-wide admiration for Belting Billy.

Moreover, the brawny men of the collieries and various factories never had much respect for Overlin because of his weakness for the wine and dance salons—because of his philanderings along the primrose path. They were completely unimpressed by Gonga Ken's title victory over Ceferino Garcia.

In fact, when E. P. Dietrik and Jack Davis, two wealthy Scranton sportsmen, announced that their bring-back-boxing syndicate had arranged an Overlin-Soose brawl, their announcement was greeted with city-wide yawns. It was a complete dud because the natives figured Dietrik and Davis were importing a washed-up old gaffer for Soose to belt out.

Show saved

Fortunately for Dietrik, Davis and associates, the show was saved when Overlin got mad in New York—one night recently—and butchered hard-hitting Harry Balsamo, Brooklyn's belting brakeman. Overlin's bloody job on Balsamo, who quit in the ninth round, saved the Scranton show. Now, around the Casey Hotel you'll find a few Scrantonians brave enough to offer 6-5 that Overlin actually wins.

If the show sells out as expected it will draw about 12,000 fans and a gate of $15,000. Local fistic experts say the bout may achieve both marks because it's the most important fight slated in this anthracite region since Pete Latzo wrested the middleweight title from Mickey Walker at the armory in 1926. That brawl grossed more than $80,000.

Limit Field Seeks $1,000 Purse as Bel Air Meet Opens Today

Sprint Test Lures Good Performers

Red Wrack, Royal Business Named; First Steeplechase Of Season Listed

By Walter Haight

Bel Air, once only a signal to motorists that they were nearing Baltimore, but now the location of Maryland's fastest-growing turf plant, opens its gates for a ten-day meeting today. With a 6-furlong track, which threatens to put it in the big time of the State's racing family, Bel Air offers all that is modern in racing, including the American totalizator, the Puett starting gate, the photo-chart camera and enough thoroughbreds to mount a division of cavalry.

In fact, the call for entries yesterday found Racing Secretary Eddie Brennan up to his neck in what is believed to be a record attempt of the horsemen to put their charges in action. Despite the fact that 16 horses are allowed in the line-up for each race here, Brennan was forced to exclude 243 horses.

Even the feature race, the $1,000 Bel Air Inaugural, drew more horses than could be accommodated. Six trainers sighed as their hopefuls were drawn out of possible action.

Red Wrack, Irish Moon, Walter Light, Squabble, Tristernagh and Sun Salvator were some of the lucky ones. On the six-horse "also eligible" list, is Royal Business, "Queen of the smaller tracks," and eager to carry the colors of O. S. Jennings, if a place materializes in the field.

Because Belair's stretch is long and because the track is but a few feet narrower than Maryland's major ovals, ten horses, instead of the usual eight, will be allowed to start.

The track has been resurfaced, additions to the clubhouse and grandstand have been made and the number of boxes has been increased.

A downpour, bordering on cloudburst proportions hit the track shortly after noon yesterday. Track Superintendent John Wells said that he would begin work on the oval as soon as possible with a fast track at post time of 2 p. m. his objective. The pressbox consensus, however, was that the oval would be "off."

The daily double at Bel Air will be conducted on the first and second race with the steeplechase to be listed as the third event on each program.

Bill Bennings

At the Post

Selections at Belair.

Dear Al:

Jockeys at Belair yesterday all but demanded that they be allowed to have agents. Since the Charles Town meeting began, the riders have had to dig up their own mounts with a central jockey agent making the final assignment. When informed that the rule would be in effect as it was at Hagerstown, the boys named a committee of three to carry their case to the Maryland Racing Commission. Sammy Palumbo, Buddy Root and George Witmer were selected and they left for Baltimore to talk to Chester F. Hockley, chairman of the commission. Taking off weight, working horses at sunrise, riding all afternoon and chasing mounts had some of the boys worn down to a frazzle they say. Among other reasons, the jockey agents were removed to save the boys a dollar a mount. Most of them contend this is cheap when they have someone to look out for them. I have had several inquiries about Apprentice W. Herman. He is from Kansas, rode some at bush league tracks, weighs 108 pounds and was 21 years old last March 25. F. T. Hart has his contract. He rode his first winner at a recognized track on Mahi at Hagerstown. The jockeys are thankful for their new quarters. They are well ventilated and have modern equipment. Some 40 horses were sent over the steeplechase course yesterday morning. Some of the trainers with timbertoppers in action were John Bosley, Arthur White, G. C. Everhart, Lou Leith, Miss Judy Johnson, Vic Noyes and J. W. Etheridge. The new mile and a sixteenth chute here has the approval of the horsemen. It is an addition to the stretch and allows the horses to go over a distance of ground while making only one swing of the main course. There also is a 5-furlong chute, similar to the 4½-furlong course at Charles Town. Jockey Herbie Lauch, who hasn't been around since he left for Wheeling early in the Charles Town meeting, has returned. He appears in good shape. Jockey Jack Mayer also reported, having returned from a brief visit to Thistledown. Sorry I can't agree wth the Benningite who still complains about Palumbo's ride on Time Saver at Hagerstown. The horse stumbled several times and pulled up lame. But I will agree that Palumbo lacked a lot of his old zip at that meeting.

BILL.

Firs race—Deuces Wild turned in an excellent race at Delaware Park and seems to be the logical choice in this field. Needs only to get off the reserve list. True Line won at Hagerstown and is a dangerous contender. Kelly's Lad for the minor award.

Second race—Beacon Queen took care of a good horse when she won at Hagerstown. The prospect of an off track makes her doubly dangerous. Autumn Echo has been rested and should be a threat with this kind. Ann Groucher gets in light and deserves attention.

Third race—The Black-Bosley entry of Capstan and Redlander is the natural choice in the day's steeplechase event. Both are fit and ready. Axacan has worked well and is dangerous. Our Manager could be the third one.

Fourth race—Saranite, first on the also eligible list, has defeated better than these. I'm going to string along. Colored Post won in startling fashion at the other track and is dangerous. Miss Ksar's early speed gives her a chance.

Fifth race—Red Wrack has been rested and appears capable of winning in the day's feature. Likes a six-furlong track and I'm going to go along with this fit one. Royal Business is on the reserve list but will have to be reckoned with if sent postward. Squabble is too fit to be disregarded.

Sixth race—Quatredom raced in good fashion at Delaware Park and has a class edge over this crew. Gets in with light weight. Sure Touch gets away from sharp turns this time and is a threat. Darby Du has done about everything asked.

Seventh race—Cawbelle gets in this with 101 pounds. Has plenty of stretch punch and could be the right one. Bellthorn, with 116 pounds, has speed and should go well. Chalatour for the minor money.

Eighth race—Charles F. appears nicely placed in the day's finale. Likes the route. Officiate is a fair sort and belongs with these. Sealoch comes from a good stable.

Best bet—Deuces Wild.

Swell Chance And Potranco Score Upsets

Two Win in Features At Chicago; Bring Backers Good Prices

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 23.—Favorites flopped under the torrid heat at Arlington Park today, as Mrs. J. F. Waters' Swell Chance and Lexbrook Stable's Potranco won the two best races on the card before a crowd of 10,000.

Swell Chance, a recent $2,500 claim from the Calumet Farm, came powerfully in the stretch to beat five candidates for Saturday's $50,000 Futurity in the Peoria Purse. Swell Chance paid $78, $20.40 and $6.

Eased up a bit at the end, Swell Chance beat Cleveland Putnam's Swain by a neck, with the favored Our Boots, owned by the Woodvale Stable, taking third.

Other beaten Futurity hopes were Millsdale Stable's Kansas, Woolford Farm's Kansas City and Mill River Stable's War Result. The time was 1:05 1-5.

Joe E. Widener's Roman, a 4-to-5 shot, was beaten in a photo finish by Potranco in the Decatur Purse. Shady Brook Farm's Connaught was third. Roman was given a weak ride by Ken McCombs, who was fined $100 for letting his mount swing wide on the stretch turn.

Potranco paid $12.80 and gave Jockey Carrol Bierman the fastest 6-furlong ride of the meeting, 1:10 4-5.

Empire City Feature Won By Roman Flag

Shortest-Priced Favorite of Meet Wins by 1½ Lengths

By the Associated Press

Empire City Track, Yonkers, N. Y., July 23.—The Fort Lee Purse, for 3-year-olds, enlivened an otherwise drab afternoon here today. Arnold Hanger's Roman Flag drove to a length and a half victory in the 6-furlong dash to become the shortest priced winner of the meeting at odds of 2 to 5.

R. S. Clark's Sainte Anne II, a maiden whose Delaware races were so ordinary that the filly was the rank outsider in today's feature, gained the place by a length. Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Merry Knight was third, with Shipmadilly beaten off.

Last Frontier tossed Albert Schmidl out of the saddle right at the start, the boy fortunately escaping with a shaking up. Merry Knight, a notorious post horse, again delayed the start.

The time was 1:09 3-5, made over a good track. A crowd of 9,866 viewed the event.

After Merry Knight had reversed his former tactics of crawling forward under the gate and succeeded in escaping the back way, the colt got away on top in a good start. Roman Flag, winner of slightly less than $30,000 last year but brought along slowly by Trainer Max Hirsch this season, set after the Wheatley table colt and refused to allow the pacemaker to get far away.

Merry Knight had enough entering the stretch. Roman Flag gained command but the surprising Sainte Anne II rallied and forced the favorite to a drive.

Betting and attendance were in keeping with the dullness of the weather today. The first five events saw a mutuels handle of $382,500.

Suffolk Feature To Burning Stick; Payoff: $18.80

By the Associated Press

Boston, July 23.—E. A. Bischoff's Burning Stick, in with 104 pounds, showed the way by three-quarters of a length today in the $1,300 allowance mile and a sixteenth for 3-year-olds in Grade C at Suffolk Downs.

H. T. Palmer, jr.'s Playhouse finished second, with Dave Harrison's Army Song third. Wesley M. Sears' Dusky Duke, winner of the $5,000 added Constitution Handicap, ran a poor fourth, with Danny J. Sullivan's True Knightess bringing up the rear.

The winner ran the distance in 1:45 and paid $18.80, $8.20 and $4.80 as he registered his first win of the year after 16 failures. Playhouse paid $6.40 and $3.80, while Army Song paid $3.80.

U. S. Auto Plants Declared Less Adaptable Than in 1917

Studebaker Head Says Present Machinery Won't Do for Arms

By the Associated Press

New York, July 23.—Paul G. Hoffman, president of Studebaker Corporation, said today the extreme specialization of this mass production era had made the huge automobile plant of the United States much less adaptable to turning out arms than it was in 1917.

"Virtually all of the machinery in an automobile plant of the present day," he said in an interview, "Is special purpose machinery, good only to do the thing it was made for. Twenty-three years ago, a much larger proportion of automobile machinery was of a general purpose type."

He said the automobile industry had little to offer rave management experience, trained personnel, and factory buildings. As far as buildings were concerned, he said, this availability was not so important as it might seem, as new buildings for arms manufacture could be put up more quickly than the machinery for them could be obtained.

The automatic process of present-day automobile production, he explained, had also reduced the proportion of highly skilled labor available in the motor industry. He said this proportion was now about 10 per cent, while some arms manufacture jobs required as much as 40 per cent highly skilled labor.

"As a result of these changes since 1917," he continued, "the jobs of preparing for arms manufacture is much more involved than is popularly supposed." He added, however, that the industry was cooperating to the fullest extent, with a number of companies cutting through red tape, and making preparations in advance of actual orders.

Nickel Discovery Reported in Arizona

Phoenix, Ariz., July 23 (AP).—The Nation's most important nickel deposit has been discovered in a remote section of northern Arizona near Littlefield, W. J. Graham, secretary of the Arizona Mineral Resources Board, declared.

Engineers of Columbia Steel Co., United States Steel Corporation subsidiary, are at the scene attempting to determine the depth of the deposit which extends for 12 miles and varies in width from 600 to 1,400 feet.

Slight Rise Sends Steel Output Rate To High for Year

New York, July 23 (AP).—Steel operations in the current week will be at the rate of 88.2 per cent of capacity, the highest since December 18 and an increase of 1.4 points from last week's rate of 86.8 per cent, the American Iron & Steel Institute reported today.

A month ago operations were at the rate of 86.5 per cent and a year ago 60.6 per cent. This is a third consecutive weekly rise since operations were resumed after the fourth of July shut-down.

The Market

By C. Norman Stabler
A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Tend Upside, Continue in Rut; Rails and Aviations in Moderate Demand

New York, July 23.—Trading continued at a dull pace in security and commodity markets today and price changes were restricted. That has been the story for about a month and nothing developed today to indicate when the list will eventually break out of its rut. On the big board 251,460 shares changed hands. Early in the day it appeared likely that a new low record for recent years would be established by the volume figure but a few large transactions in low-priced shares boosted the total above that of Monday.

Support for the better grade rails, aviations and miscellaneous manufacturing issues contributed to a modest advance of 0.07 point in the composite average. Gains of a point or more were made by Loft, Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, Union Pacific and Westinghouse, but most of the favorites held within a small fractional range. Johns Manville dropped a point. Loft was the day's most active stock.

Alleghany Issues Rise

The four Alleghany issues played a prominent part in the tape at higher prices following announcement of the proposed modification of the Alleghany debentures. The prior preferred advanced 2¼ points and the preferred with warrants was up about a point in active dealings.

Metal shares held their own although the copper price was reduced to 10½ cents a pound. The cut reflects the interference with foreign markets, caused by the war. The same influence is blamed for the unprecedented lethargy in the markets.

Reports coming out of Germany indicate that the invasion of England is to start soon, but of course there have been similar reports for several weeks or a month. Until it develops and until the world can appraise Great Britain's ability to stand up in the face of a blitzkrieg, the prospect is for a prolonging of the market's present waiting attitude. Politics takes second place in importance to the war as a market factor for the moment.

Earnings Show Gain

Business news contains a number of favorable items, but their market influence is retarded by hints of a seasonal tapering-off in the next few weeks. A threat of this is seen in some of the loading reports coming in from railroads. Steel mills are operating at a new high rate for the current recovery. Encouraging have been the various reports now being made for the second quarter and the first half of the year. The vast majority show sharp gains as compared with the similar periods in 1939. This has been notably true of the aviation concerns.

Business services which look for some irregularity in the near future and generally convinced that the major trend will remain upward, helped along by the defense program. Since the beginning of this month, Army and Navy orders have amounted to more than $1,000,000,000 and an additional $300,000,000 to $400,000,000 is expected to be let within the next 30 days.

Some Large Blocks

Within the stock market, although the tape dragged along in a lifeless manner, there were several cases of fairly large blocks of shares changing hands. There was one lot of 3,100 shares of McIntyre Pocupine Mines at 28. The same was true of the curb exchange, where there were some large sales of Standard Power & Light common. Its total volume was 32,500 shares and for the first hour of trading it accounted for more than half the curb's share turnover. There was one block of 20,700 shares, but of course the dollar volume in the issue was insignificant.

Listed bond trading picked up slightly in volume today from the 11-month low touched Monday, but the increase was slight. Government obligations were still quiet, with a volume of only $80,000 on the exchange. Late over-the-counter prices for all issues showed shadings up to 4-32.

Axis Bonds Weak

Axis bonds were weak in the foreign sector, with German, Italian and Japanese obligations showing losses of up to a point, with Japan 6½s dropping 4 points. Latin American issues were mostly higher, although some fractional recessions were noted. Canadian and Australian issues lost fractions. Trading amounted to $480,000, against $380,000.

In the corporate field Boston & Maine liens lost most of their early gains which were scored on the strength of the I. C. C. decision. Alleghany Corporation debentures scored initial gains on news of the practical completion of plans to modify the debentures, but surrendered the advances later. Most rail and industrial bonds were mixed, with changes being limited largely to fractions.

Defense Role Of Real Estate Men Is Cited

Electrical Builder Outlines Program Of Decentralization

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Real estate men will be able to render invaluable services in assisting in a decentralization of defense industry, in the opinion of J. Norman Pierce, electrical builder and chairman of the National Electrical Contractors Association's special housing committee.

He has outlined a program of national defense contemplating wide decentralization of manufacturing activities included in the rearmament program. His plan would combine present-day efficiency in straight-line production of airplanes, tanks, artillery with the military security of old days when "minute men" were armed by small gun-shops and forges scattered over the countryside.

Munitions manufacture, he reminds, should be conducted along the same lines as the automobile industry. Auto parts are made in hundreds of plants and finished products assembled at points close to market. In military manufacturing, safety is more compelling than costs. Besides this, acceleration of military movements by air and motor makes it even more dangerous to centralize munitions manufacturing.

DeForce, chartered life underwriter and general agent for the company in this city, reports the company now has $25,000,000 assets and $135,000,000 insurance in force. During the past 33 years, it has paid $24,000,000 to policyholders and beneficiaries.

Clyde D. Harrison, associate manager of the company's local office, continued on to Bretton Woods in the White Mountains after the New York convention, for the special "President's Club" trip earned by his production over the period since December 1, 1938. He was accompanied by his bride. They were married on July 13.

Apparently awaiting the next move of Hitler most speculative commodity markets drifted yesterday in an uneven range.

New Yor cotton futures idled in a narrow swing, closing unchanged to 3 points higher. Santos coffee and hides brought modestly higher prices. Straits tin was quoted ½ to 1 cent a pound up in a nominal market.

Brewster Aero Plans To Triple Working Force

New York, July 23 (AP).—The Brewster Aeronautical Corporation, with plants at Long Island City and Newark, N. J., expects to increase its working force from 3,000 to 10,000 employes in attaining peak production, it was announced today by James Work, president.

In the first half of this year, he said, employes were increased from 1,000 to 3,000.

At midyear, he reported, unfilled orders amounted to $44,877,626 against $2,300,353 at the same time last year.

Work said the manufacturing peak would not be reached for at least six months because of difficulties in obtaining additional manufacturing equipment and skilled mechanics.

Capital Stock Tax Again Is Upheld

Philadelphia, July 23 (AP).—The constitutionality of the Federal capital stock tax, which has been under attack in Federal courts throughout the country, was upheld yesterday by United States District Judge William H. Kirkpatrick.

The law, enacted in 1934, has been upheld in all other cases where its validity has been challenged. Corporations have been trying to obtain an adverse decision so that an appeal can be taken to the United States Supreme Court.

Today's decision was in a suit by the American Viscose Corporation for return of $131,923 paid by it and two affiliates on capital stock for 1935. The tax rate is one-tenth of 1 per cent of the declared value of the capital stock.

Far West Makes Strong Claim For Shift of Key Arms Plants

By Merryle S. Rukeyser
A Special Correspondent.

The new and quickened impulse for fuller national defense is likely to remake the industrial map of the United States. Strategic arguments are being advanced for avoiding undue industrial concentration near the Eastern Seaboard and for greater geographical diversification in the locating of key industries.

In typical American spirit, a competition among local areas has developed for favorable consideration at Washington. Delegations from cities and regions have accordingly been making a march on to the Nation's Capital to make articulate the claims of their sections before E. R. Stettinius, jr., and William S. Knudsen, leading personalities on the defense commission, as well as before regular Federal officials.

George W. Malone, consulting engineer-manager of the Industrial West, Inc., supported by the business interests and State Governments of the 11 Far Western States, in a message to this column, reveals:

"It is my opinion that the greatest contribution the West can make to national security is to develop its own resources—since the strategic minerals are largely located in this area, and we are peculiarly equipped to produce many of the products in which the Nation is deficient, such as flax (we import about $100,000,000 of linens annually), large amounts of olive oil, sugar, vegetable oils, etc.

"There is no question but that there should be a nucleus of heavy industries—steel, steel alloys, textiles, etc.—established on the Western slope, as well as air bases, munition dumps (such as Hawthorne, Nevada) at strategic points, back of the Sierra Nevada Mountains (this range cuts through Western Montana, Idaho and Nevada to the Colorado River near Boulder Dam). Nitrates, the base of munitions and fertilizers, should be manufactured at two or more low-cost power centers.

"The first line of defense would be the Pacific Coast—the second line, including munitions dumps, air bases, certain necessary factories, would be located in that great area between the Sierra Nevada and Rocky Mountain ranges.

"When this is achieved, the national industrial production could proceed virtually uninterrupted in the event of an attack on either coast."

Mr. Malone added, "California and the other Western States are establishing official 'defense council' committees, and we have been requested to furnish factual material upon which such a program can be based.

"Such a program would go far toward relieving the unemployment situation. It would develop new markets and new taxable property to help carry the load.

"It is the West's opportunity to establish its proper place in the industrial picture."

Mr. Malone expressed the opinion that of the eight strategic materials indispensable in the manufacture of high speed steel and munitions, all but tin could be produced in the West.

Home Financing Continues Brisk Here in June

Assets of District building and loan associations totaled $148,560,000 at the close of June, according to the monthly report released last night by F. Willson Camp, secretary of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League.

This compared with assets of slightly more than $150,000,000 at the end of May, he added. Loan activity continued unabated, with 924 advances recorded by home financing units.

Breakdown of the mortgage transactions disclosed that 236 were for construction purposes, 288 for new houses not previously financed, while other loans amounted to 400. The dollar total of all loans made during June was $3,975,500.

Volume of new share accounts opened during the month reflected a substantial increase over the corresponding period of a year ago. According to Camp, outstanding mortgage loans now stand at $139,270,000, with total surplus of the 28 groups at $10,971,660.

Chase Hurls, Nats Defeat Tigers by 6-3

Southpaw Allows Leaders 7 Hits; Griffs Hit Hard

out, Walker singled to right to move Case home.

West Starts Rally

By the end of the sixth, it was 5-1. Sammy West touched off a two-run uprising with a single to center. Myer banged a smartly placed double into leftfield that moved West to third, and Pofahl moved him home with a line drive to Greenberg. Rick Ferrell drove in the second run of the inning with a two bagger down the leftfield line.

The Tigers tried to get back into the ball game in the seventh after York hit his homer. Higgins drew a walk, and Chase appeared to be wavering. But Rick Ferrell eased the tension for him with a superb catch of Fox's pop foul against the backstop's screen. The Tigers got a break when Travis muffed Tebbett's grounder, but Travis redeemed himself immediately by grabbing pinch hitter Kress' hard shot and starting a double play.

Nats Hike Lead

In the ninth the Nats improved their lead to 6-2. It was very simply done. George Case singled to center and Buddy Lewis simply doubled to left. Dizzy Trout was the victim of those blows.

Chase had to struggle for his victory in the ninth. York led off the inning by getting on base when Travis made a two-base wild throw of his grounder. The Tigers went strategic at this point and Chase was deeply obliged. Higgins bunted, and Chase threw him out. But Pete Fox revived Detroit's hopes with a single to left that scored York. Tebbetts flied out, but Pinch-hitter Bruce Campbell singled to right. The 10,239 customers pleaded for another home run by Dick Bartell which would tie the score, but Bartell could produce only a harmless grounder to Travis.

nine, and today has five holes to play with par for 146.

The Official Ruling

The second-round play of the Maryland State Open Tournament was declared null and void under stroke 2, paragraph 2, when the storm made the course unplayable.

The committee decided to accept the last card as that of a threesome played by Freddie McLeod, George Miller and Capt. Auton.

All remaining players are considered as not having finished their second round and will resume play on Wednesday morning at 9 a. m., starting from the tee on the hole in which they were forced to stop their play due to the storm.

U. S. Cutter Verifies Report Of Russian Base Near Alaska

Coast Guard Says Natives Saw Troops And Submarines

By the Associated Press

Seattle, July 23.—Reports that a Russian air base is being developed on Soviet-owned Big Diomede Island in the Bering Strait, only a mile from American-owned Little Diomede Island were confirmed by the United States Coast Guard cutter Perseus on a visit to the Far North.

This was learned when the cutter arrived here en route to its base at San Diego.

Only ten days ago officers of the cutter talked to the four whites and leaders of the native population of Little Diomede, learning definitely of the presence of a small detachment of Russian soldiers and construction of a large plane hangar and field on the Soviet island.

Eskimos Now Barred

The American Eskimos, who formerly paddled across the channel separating the two islands to trade ivory, now are barred from the Russian island, it was learned.

With the aid of binoculars those on the American island have been able to follow activity on the Big Diomede.

The Eskimos said a detachment of Russian soldiers, probably about 20, has been statoined on the island for some time. Before they were barred from Big Diomede, the Eskimos saw several Russian submarines berthed along the rock shore, officers of the Perseus were informed.

Moscow, July 23 (AP).—Russia's northern fleet recently concluded maneuvers in "Trans-Polar waters," the newspaper Red Navy reported today.

"Trans-Polar" could mean almost any waters off the north coast of Alaska, Canada or Greenland.)

Reports that Russian soldiers and submarines are active at Big Diomede Island in the Bering Strait were confirmed yesterday by men of the U. S. Coast Guard cutter Perseus. Big Diomede is in Siberia, 4 miles from Little Diomede, part of Alaska. The international boundary runs between the islands. The strait is approximately 50 miles wide at the capes shown

Listen! with Glynn

This member of WJSV's Gertrude Niesen Fan Club hastens to announce that that pretty songstress, heard altogether too seldom on the American air since her return from continental triumphs (or is that a bad word to use these days?) a year ago, is to provide one of the musical highlights of the next C. B. S. "Forecast" show over WJSV next Monday, July 29. The exotic Miss N. rose to stardom under the C. B. S. aegis a few years ago and her violent enthusiasts around C. B. S. include just exactly all those who know her. This, of course, not taking into account those who don't know her but have just heard her sing and who also think she's wonderful. Miss Niesen has been too busy filling theater engagements throughout the country to go in much for radio since her return. But here's hoping some wiser sponsor does something about that for us all this fall.

Along with our favorite, in the New York portion of "Forecast" at 8 p. m., you'll hear Ed Gardner recreating the role of "Archie" which he made so popular in C. B. S.'s "This Is New York" series last winter, that wear-well comedian Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle, the harmonia wizard Larry Adler, the Golden Gate Quartet and John Kirby's Orchestra. It sounds pretty good to us. Oh shucks, who are we to be so restrained—it sounds perfect.

The Hollywood half stars Loretta Young in a specially written drama of the Red Cross. It's written by True Boardman and titled "Angel."

LES MORGAN and JAN SAVITT will be coming week-end attractions on the S. S. Potomac. Les and his band will spread harmony over the waves next Saturday night and Maestro Jan and his orchestra are booked for Saturday, August 3. On these weekday nights when the good ship Potomac is crammed with refugees from the heat wave, there's dance music with a cool sparkle by Charlie Strong's band. And those interludes on the top deck!

'MEMBER PRETTY PEGGY WOOD, of the King Cole Room, a couple of months ago? A bid to her wedding to Ronnie Herren, of Washington, has just arrived. The marriage will take place at Selma, N. C., on August 29.

NEW REDUCING METHOD. Wearing a fur coat on a hot evening will automatically cause you to lose 2 to 4 pounds, according to society girls who modeled in the last fur style show on the Shoreham Terrace. . . . And now the Shoreham has arranged for two more fur style shows on August 1 and 9. At this rate the models figure they'll be sylphs or living skeletons before fall. P. S.: St. Clair and Day will give free conga lessons to Shoreham Terrace patrons this week.

SIDNEY'S LITTLE DAUGHTER. A darling young visitor at the Lounge Riviera recently was little Shirley Seidman, daughter of Maestro Sidney, of the Mayflower. Pete Macias was delighted. He played for Sidney for 14 years and has known Shirley since her teething days . . . Don Stoos is back greeting all Riviera comers. He just went up to Vermont to be best man at his brother's wedding.

RETREAT FROM HEAT. That's the Lotus. Not only is the air cooling going full blast, but the Lindsay pretties are parading as snow, rain, et cetera. Miss Snow wears a muff, neckpiece and shorts of white fur. Miss Rain, from where we sat, seemed to be costumed in a parasol dripping with tinsel and looked very comfortable, indeed. . . . Star novelty at Lotus is the "Florodora" skit by Lynn and Derring. They first do "Tell Me, Pretty Maiden" in 1890 rhythm and costumes, and then bring it up to 1940 with a bounce. . . . Marcia Harris does the same tap dance that she featured in N. B. C. television.

CHAMPAGNE PORTRAITS. Bandleader Arthur Herbert, of the Starlight Roof, is using all of his spare time trying to keep up with the demand for his champagne cork portraits. We're told they look like the subjects after they've had a magnum of bubbly.

PROPHETS AROUND GLEN ECHO are saying that the skyhooting popularity registered by Paul Kain's orchestra and Singer Adele Van can have but one logical result—their return to Glen Echo next season. The park management states that the Kain music has received more praise than any ever booked in the park's 30 years of operation. This is splendid because it shows that Glen Echo patrons are smart people who appreciate brilliancy and the unexpected element in modern rhythm. P. S.: The Spanish Ballroom remains one of the coolest and breeziest dancing spots around town.

TEASER. Eileen George, of the Anchor Room, has a tantalizing trick of tacking unexpected endings to song verses, then saying sotto voce to ringsiders, "Roll that one away."

LES COLVIN, minstrel man at O'Donnell's Farms

THE RHYTHM BOYS. Morty Jacobs, of Milt Herth's Neptune Trio, has just found himself an apartment with a piano, but out of tune. He says it's all right for arrangements because he gets such unexpected effects. . . . Milton Davis, of the Rainbow Room, reports no less than 50 requests for "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair" in the last few days. . . . Leader George Stein, of River Bend, tells us that the "Girl With the Light Blue Hair," tops hotcha number, is based on an old French tune, "La Cinquantaine." . . . That lone lad who plays the guitar with Nadine's Coeds at Maryland Gardens is Bob Miller. He loves being the only man in a girls' orchestra. Well, who wouldn't?

RANGE FINDERS. Possessors of voices with exciting ranges are Marianne Lee, of the Hi Hat, and Billy Brill, who's just arrived at the Club Esquire. Marianne is a soprano, alto or contralto just as the mood strikes her. And Billy can imitate either Caruso or Chaliapin.

HARMONY WITH IMAGINATION. Ray Bradford's Del Rio band doesn't begin a new dance group in unison. First one instrument strikes up, then another until the whole orchestra is in full swing. The idea is gradually to attract the customers' attention. It works beautifully. . . . Jack Schaeffer's Casino Royal Orchestra has a really "different" way of doing "Cecilia." . . . Madrillon's Trio Lirico does South American music in a way that "creeps up" on you. Listen to it for an hour and you'll be sold completely on the Trio Lirico. . . . Mayfair's new "Mousey" Garner Trio are specialists in clowning rhythm. "Mousey" wasn't a Ted Healy stooge for nothing. . . . Young Maestro Rod Raffell, of the Nightingale, has just devised a trick of using two muted trumpets with two trombones to attain the sonority of a full trombone quartet.

"PERFECT PITCH" is a musician's term for possessing an infallible tone-sense. You're either born with it or not. For it is not to be attained. Both of the New Bavarian's Heintze Brothers and their sister, Greta, have "perfect pitch." It's interesting to know that their ancestors were also musicians.

COOL AND REFRESHING are both the main dining room and the grill at Hogate's. We have a weakness for the grill because of the soft-toned marine murals painted directly on bricks. And we have an even greater weakness for that special platter of cold shellfish. . . . When you come out of an air-cooled office or theater downtown, it's a swell idea to walk right around the corner to the air-cooled Harrington Tavern—and stay there for hours.

CRAB EXPERT. Dick Ashby, proprietor of Dick's Grill, knows all there is to know about hard-shell and soft-shell crabs. He says that the only crabs that should be served are large male crabs, fat and fresh. That's the only kind he'll buy.

Kremer, Once Democratic Official, Dies

J. Bruce Kremer, 61, attorney and former vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, died yesterday at his home, 4926 Glenbrook road northwest after a long illness.

One of the oldest members in point of service of the Democratic Committee at time of his retirement several years ago, Mr. Kremer had represented Montana for 20 years and had held many key positions in party organizations.

President Roosevelt yesterday wired his condolences to the widow.

Mr. Kremer served as secretary of the Democratic National Convention in 1916 and was chairman of the speakers' bureau for the Western division in the campaign that year. He was named vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee in 1919 and reelected to that post in 1920.

A native of Louisville, Ky., Mr. Kremer attended the University of Virginia and was awarded a bachelor of laws degree at the University of Louisville in 1898.

Moving to Butte, Mont., three years later, he practiced there and was active in politics until he came here in 1933.

In partnership with Herbert M. Bingham, he maintained law offices in the Tower Building.

He was a member of the Congressional Country Club, the University Club of New York, the Butte Town Club, and the District and American Bar Associations.

Mr. Kremer leaves his wife, Mrs. Cornelia Kremer, and a daughter, Mrs. Anne Post, of Los Angeles.

Funeral rites will be at 11 a. m. tomorrow at the home, with burial in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Defense Tasks Suited to Women Listed By Bureau

A study of defense industry jobs best suited to women has been completed by the Women's Bureau of the United State Department of Labor.

Listed in the report as best suited to women were the assembling and operating of delicate machines, loading shells, filling powder bags, and operating machinery which demanded a minimum of strength.

Stressing the value of five 8-hour days per week for women, the report warned against speeding up production by longer hours.

Mary Anderson, director of the bureau, urged that women be given opportunities for employment in the expanded production program. Although women require more intensive training than men, many jobs can be done by them as well or better than by men, she said.
